KIDNAP RICH DENVER BROKER

FARMERS FACE BANKRUPTCY IN LOW MILK PRICE

Leaders Called to Confer on Crisis.

BY PAUL POTTER.

There will be at least 4,000 farm bankruptcies among the 18,000 farmers in 30 counties surrounding Chicago and suburbs, and the quality of the metropolitan milk supply will be endangered if farmers continue to receive less than 3 cents a quart for milk for the remainder of 1933.

This is the challenge which 300 leaders from the dairy districts of Illinois, Wisconsin, and Indiana expect to voice in a meeting to be held in Chicago tomorrow. Calls for the meeting were sent out from the Pure Milk association offices upon the insistence of its country districts, it was learned yesterday.

Farmers Alarmed.

The meeting will be held in the Auditorium hotel at Congress street and Michigan avenue, and will be attended by two officers of each county or township local in the association.

Interviews with several of these district farm officials indicated that the entire membership was "alarmed over the situation" and that "if something isn't done to relieve it soon the farmers will have to take more drastic measures of their own." They intimated that the Pure Milk association would be instructed to insist upon immediate negotiations with the dairy companies of Chicago and to urge that retail prices be raised from 9 to 10 cents per quart if no other way can be found to pay farmers more.

"We are not asking for pity, but we demand a fair share of the consumers' price for our milk," declared Edgar L. Killam of Lake Geneva, Wis.

Farmers Bear Price Cuts.

"Over the last three years most of the reductions made in order to lower retail prices have fallen on the farmers. Yet our taxes keep soaring, utility rates seem to be immune from reductions, machinery prices have come down but little, and our fixed expenses cannot be met at the present price if we are to continue giving Chicago pure milk. Walworth county's 1,000 dairymen send Chicago more milk than any other Wisconsin county. Not a one of us can show a return for our own work, let alone a profit under these conditions."

Killam, who owns and operates a 200 acre farm, drew out his records since 1926 to show what has taken place on the average dairy farm in the Chicago milk area. His production has remained almost constant throughout the last 3 years. In December, 1929, he sold 28,089 pounds of milk for $834.90. In December, 1932, the last month for which he has been paid, he sold 28,475 pounds for $391.41.

Income Less than Costs.

"Out of this income of less than $400 a month must come wages for 3 men capable of handling a good dairy herd, taxes, insurance, herd replacements, machinery, and concentrates in feed," he explained. "It just can't be done, even though we work long hours seven days a week throughout the year."

C. J. Peterson, president of the dairymen's unit at Beecher, Ill., declared that if the 200 producers in his district "were to pay as we go along we couldn't continue to produce milk another month."

"It is up to the city market in Chicago to straighten out this situation if they want up to continue producing good quality milk," Peterson said. "We are willing to go along even though some are forced into bankruptcy and others are threatened, if there is hope for better times in the future.

Fight Off Bankruptcy.

"The lowest figure that the University of Illinois gives as the cost of producing milk in this area is $1.23 a hundred pounds. When we subtract hauling costs from the $1.43 paid the association members now, farmers aren't paid even that much. They also take a loss on the surplus milk produced for the dairy companies."

Farmers in McHenry and Kane counties "have come to the end of the rope," in the opinion of several interviewed last night.

"We have made temporary savings of 23 per cent in the overhead costs of dairymen here," declared Fay H. McKenzie, farmer near Crystal Lake. "But that won't save the situation. Most of our farmers are bankrupt now, but won't admit it. Buying power has been almost entirely cut off."

HOME RAIDED; ASK $60,000 TO RELEASE VICTIM

Family Fears He Will Be Slain.

Denver, Colo., Feb. 13 [Monday.]—[Special.]—Charles Boettcher II., 32 year old member of one of the two wealthiest families in Colorado, was kidnaped from his home by two gunmen last night.

Mr. Boettcher is being held for $60,000 ransom. Unless this demand, or the greater part of it, is met, it is feared that he will be killed. Police and family began at once a secret search for the missing young millionaire.

Detectives explained that details "must be kept secret if Boettcher is to be returned alive."

Grandfather Sugar Baron.

Mr. Boettcher is the son of Claude K. Boettcher, a partner in the brokerage firm of Boettcher & Newton, and the grandson of Charles Boettcher, founder of sugar and cement industries in Colorado. The kidnaped man is president of the brokerage firm. The family, as a unit, is interested in many Denver and state financial houses and other enterprises.

With police and members of the family maintaining secrecy, details of the kidnaping plot were not made clear. A ruse aided in the plot, it was evident.

Wife an Expectant Mother.

The home of Boettcher is located at 777 Washington avenue, in the finest residential section of the city. It is a new house.

Some time after darkness had fallen the two kidnapers appeared at the front door and rang the bell. Mr. Boettcher and his wife, who is an expectant mother, were in the living room. Whether Boettcher or a servant answered the bell was not revealed. In any event, the gunmen carried out their victim by force and then tossed in a cryptic note announcing that he would be held for $60,000 ransom.

Boettcher was driven away in a car. It is probable that accomplices worked on the kidnaping, remaining in the machine while the two committed the crime. Alarm immediately was given to police and to relatives.

Appeal to Newspapers.

Chief Albert D. Clark and William J. Armstrong, captain of detectives, took active charge of the investigation. James Newton, partner of the victim's father, also was summoned. He pleaded with Denver newspapers not to sensationalize the case, and police made a similar request, warning of the peril to Boettcher.

Police were naturally handicaped in their task by the inadequacy of descriptions of the kidnapers. Nor was a description of any automobile possibly used obtainable. Nevertheless, undercover men were sent out into the badlands areas in and outside the city, and all mountain roads were put under patrol.

The Boettcher family began its career in the west through the grandfather, Charles, who came to America from Germany in 1869. He engaged in mining, mercantile and hardware business extensively, and settled in Denver in 1890. He is associated in a dozen major western enterprises and lives at the Brown Palace hotel here. His son, Claude, father of the kidnap victim, a Harvard graduate, is chairman of the board of the Denver National bank. His operations exceed even those of his father. They include investment houses, banks, hotels, railways, cement and mining businesses and other interests.

EARLY CHRISTIAN DATA FOUND IN EGYPTIAN TOMBS

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

CAIRO, Feb. 13.—Excavations carried out by the Egyptian government in the Byzantine-Nubian cemetery at Ballana in upper Egypt have thrown new light on the early Christian civilization in Nubia.

The finds indicate the people of Ballana were in touch with Christian teaching and had partly adopted its symbolism, although adhering to savage practices connected with their previous pagan religion and to the worshiping of the old gods of ancient Egypt. Most of the personal possessions, such as pottery, weapons and horse trappings, show a distinct Egypto-African origin, while the less intimate property, like furniture and metal vases, suggests a Byzantine influence.

Robbers Shoot Policeman; 1 Bandit Slain

Policeman Edwin D. Johnson of the Lincoln park force was seriously wounded last night when he trapped a bandit in the Shop and Save food store at 521 Diversey parkway, and was fired upon by the robber and the latter's companions who were waiting outside of the store. The bandits escaped.

At almost the same hour Policeman Arthur Novotny of the Lawndale station more than evened the crime score when he shot and killed a bandit who was robbing the cashier of the Douglas theater, 3236 West 22d street. Before dying at the Bridewell hospital the gunman identified himself as Walter Barry, 25 years old of 2502 South Whipple street, recently of Winnipeg, Canada.

Confederates Save Bandit.

The shooting of Policeman Johnson was witnessed by two patrons and a clerk, who were in the Diversey shop, and a number of pedestrians on the outside. But for the opportune firing of the trapped bandit's lookout confederates, Johnson might have slain him.

The bandit entering the store a few minutes earlier had herded Nick Dandes, 2822 Cambridge avenue, the clerk, and the patrons, Mrs. Myrtle Davis, 420 Wrightwood avenue, and John Storey, 2740 Hampton court, into a rear room, and was rifling the till when Policeman Johnson appeared. He had been told of the robbery by a pedestrian.

Attack Distracts Johnson.

"Drop your gun," ordered Johnson, leveling his revolver at the startled bandit. Before Johnson could fire the gunman's pals on the outside fired three bullets through the store front window, all narrowly missing the officer. This unexpected attack distracted Johnson and gave the trapped bandit a chance to open fire on the policeman. One bullet struck Johnson in the hip, fracturing a bone. The bandit then dashed out, escaping in a car with his pals. Johnson fired no shots.

Oris Mateson, 927 Buena parkway, and W. F. Worthly, 320 Webster avenue, took the policeman to the Columbus Memorial hospital. Johnson, who is 36 years old, married and father of five children, lives at 3130 Clifton avenue.

Cashier Sets Off Alarm.

The killing of Barry, the theater bandit, occurred just a few minutes after the north side shooting. Barry, exhibiting a revolver, stepped up to Miss Annette Grann, 23 years old, ticket seller at the Douglas theater, and presented a note demanding the receipts. She stepped on an electric buzzer alarm.

Maurice Tillis, manager of the theater, heard the alarm and notified Policeman Novotny, who was in the theater on his regular round of inspection. Policeman Novotny opened the lobby door and fired one shot. The bullet struck Barry near the heart, causing his death shortly afterward. Policeman Novotny was commended for his act by his superiors.

OPEN KNIFE REMOVED FROM BOY'S STOMACH BY AID OF SPINACH

The boy swallowed the knife, blade open, last Tuesday. Surgeons at the county hospital decided on the cotton-treated diet as a means of avoiding a major operation.

They figured the cotton would cling to the knife and prevent injury to the young patient.

After a few days of the fare the boy rebelled, but his father promised him a feast of chicken and ice cream if he followed it.

BOY BEGINS PONY RIDE TO WATCH INAUGURATION

Chula, Ga., Feb. 12.—(AP)—Toby Cook's four ponies are groomed and with sunrise tomorrow the seven-year-old boy will start riding them in relays 300 miles to Washington, for the inauguration of his good friend, Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Another friend, Senator Richard B. Russell Jr. of Georgia, will try to see that Toby and hi ponies have a place in the inaugural parade.

The young horseman expects to travel about 75 miles a day, changing mounts every five miles. His departure will supply a civic celebration. Playmates and neighbors will accompany him to Tifton, where the journey will get under way officially.

His route will lie through Eastman, Dublin, and Augusta, Ga.; Johnston and Columbia, S. C.; Raleigh, N. C., and South Hill, Richmond and Fredericksburg, Va.

His father, J. D. Cook Jr., and three Negro servants will accompany him in an automobile.

Boy, 3, Solves One Puzzle; It's the Doctor's Turn Next

A puzzle, consisting of two twisted nails, so interlocked that a good deal of study and patience are necessary to separate them, had been lying around the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Mullikin, 1721 Washburne avenue, for several days. But yesterday their 3 year old son, Richard, found the puzzle and succeeded in unlocking the two nails. Then he swallowed one of them. The child was taken to the county hospital, where Dr. Richard Parritt removed the nail.

280 Chinese Die in Quake; 300 Injured

PEIPING, Feb. 13.—[Monday.]—(AP)—Official reports reaching the Chinese international famine relief commission headquarters here this morning said that as a result of an earthquake in northwest Kansu province Dec. 26, 280 persons died and 300 were seriously injured.

Eight hundred homes were destroyed and seven districts were affected by the shock. Reports that much greater numbers were killed were discredited.

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

PEIPING, Feb. 12. — Seventy thousand persons lost their lives in the Dec. 26 earthquake which rocked the Kaotai district in northwestern Kansu province, according to eyewitness reports given by Bjorsted Friss-Johanssen, former member of Sven Hedin's central Asiatic expedition and at present connected with the Eurasia Aviation corporation.

He arrived in Peiping today from Suchow.

Kaotai is located southward of the region wherein the Great Wall ends. It is a thickly populated area on a geological fault which causes devastating floods to accompany earthquakes, altering the courses of streams and rivers. The city of Kaotai, which was leveled, is on the banks of the Hwei river.

Overtakes Refugees.

The scene of the disaster is 1,000 miles west of Peiping and the only communication is by camel caravans.

The district that suffered most is north of Lake Koko Nor, the great salt lake between the Kuen-Lun and the Nan Shan mountain ranges.

SECOND IN A YEAR.

This is the second earthquake disaster in China within a year. Dispatches from Hankow, China, on April 17 said an earthquake in the northeast Hupeh province on April 6 took a terrible toll, "several tens of thousands of persons perishing."

The Kaotai earthquake was recorded by seismographs throughout the world, but, because of the remoteness of the shaken district, news of the disaster did not reach Chinese officials until the foreign expedition reached Peiping today.

J. J. Shar, seismologist of the West Bromwich observatory in England, fixed the center of the disturbance at 4,560 miles from London and placed it in Mongolia. He was not far away in his calculations, because Kaotai is near the boundary of Mongolia.

Rival Forced Love Suit, Says Mrs. Willett

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

Two women most concerned in the million dollar suit filed Saturday over the affections of the wealthy Howard L. Willett took contrasting attitudes towards the matter yesterday. Mr. Willett, in his suite in the University club, had nothing to say on the affair about which social circles still buzzed.

Mrs. Mary Cave Hall, the comely widow whom the suit accuses of stealing the love of the Willett Teaming company president, was in seclusion in her apartment at 5490 South Shore drive. Miss Alice Greenacre, a long time friend and personal attorney for both Mrs. Hall and Mr. Willett, was at hand to encourage her client and to discourage prospective interviewers. Miss Greenacre said, frigidly and firmly, that Mrs. Hall had nothing to say.

Mrs. Willett Explains Suit.

High above the snowy stretches of Lincoln park, in the luxurious penthouse that tops 2130 Lincoln Park West, Mrs. Grace Williamson Willett, the plaintiff in the love litigation, was readily accessible and gracious to callers. Her slim, dark-eyed daughter, Mrs. Samuel Gale Taylor III., was chummily ensconsed on a love seat opposite her mother at the great fireplace in the open hall. They were engrossed in designing a top for a mirror table when they were interrupted.

Petite auburn-haired Mrs. Willett was poised and calm as she talked about her suit. Only once, as she told of the overtures she declared she had made to both her husband and Mrs. Hall in attempts to "settle matters quietly," tears glistened in her brown eyes and her fingers shook as she demanded, "Give me a cigaret, Jane."

She was herself again in a moment as she accepted a light. The smile came back and she continued with a wave of one hand toward the room.

Tells of Vain Appeals.

"This was a real home before Mrs. Hall, who is in her forties and old enough to know better, broke it up. If she were younger and if I had been a different sort of person there might have been some excuse for her. But I discussed this matter with her and with my husband several times. It did no good.

"So I was forced into taking the court action and I can assure you it was not done without much reflection. When Mr. Willett left his home here on Jan. 6 I was placed in a precarious financial condition which could not be permitted to continue. I tried to telephone him at his office the middle of last month and he refused to talk with me. Therefore I took the step I did."

Mrs. Hall's late husband, David Hall, was known as one of the best friends of Howard Willett from his college days at the University of Chicago, where she also was his classmate, Mrs. Willett explained. He was best man at their marriage. As a matter of course, Mrs. Hall joined the gay gatherings in the penthouse on Lincoln Park West. But after Mr. Hall's death Mr. Willett's attentions to the widow brought remonstrances from Mrs. Willett.

Out of Social Circle.

"Mrs. Hall was indebted to me socially," Mrs. Willett said. "But it made no difference, it seemed, when I last talked with her about this matter, in March of 1931. Since then I have not included her in my social circle and she has not been here. If I had not been a dignified and home-

SEES CONGRESS ACTING TO SAVE IT FROM ITSELF

Ready to Add Power for Roosevelt.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 12.—[Special.]—Congress, the well known pork barrel addict, is going to authorize the new President, Mr. Roosevelt, to save it from itself and repair the havoc to the country it has wrought.

That's what all this talk of a dictatorship boils down to. Before the end Johanssen left Suchow late in No- will grant the executive vast powers to consolidate and abolish bureaus, boards, and commissions, eliminate nonessential activities of the central government, and otherwise reduce federal expenditures.

Garner Would Go Further.

Speaker and Vice President Elect John Nance Garner thinks that measure of autocratic power does not go far enough. But he doubts that this congress and Mr. Hoover will be willing to make Mr. Roosevelt the kind of a dictator that the emergency warrants: One with unlimited authority not only to reorganize the administrative branch but to reduce veterans' compensation and the pay of the bureaucracy, discharge employes, abolish subsidies, and otherwise cut the cost of the federal government a billion dollars a year before July 1.

This large measure of autocratic power, Mr. Garner says, the new congress, when it is called into extraordinary session, will be asked to confer upon Mr. Roosevelt for two years.

Like the drug addict who cannot reform himself, congress confesses itself unable to wean itself from the pork barrel.

Admit Shortcomings.

For more than two months the senators and representatives of both parties have been testifying almost daily that congress cannot be relied upon to consolidate and abolish functions and otherwise reorganize the government.

Every consolidation and curtailment, they explain, means the separation from the pay roll of a legislator's constituent or the abandonment of activities in a community of the legislator's constituency. By log rolling the legislators affected prevent any reorganization at all. The legislators confess the frailty of their flesh and agree that the executive alone can accomplish what they are too weak to do.

"Save us (and the country) from ourselves" is, in effect, the cry that is going up from the senators and representatives as they contemplate the taxpayer bowed beneath the burden of the pork barrel, now filled with more than a billion dollars' worth of pork, one-fourth of the annual cost of the federal government.

Veterans' Aid Cited.

The shining example of the weakness of the congressional flesh is afforded by the billion dollar appropriation for war veterans. It has been shown that 452 millions a year of this appropriation could be saved by limiting benefits to disabilities actually incurred in military service.

But congress fears the veterans' vote. Of all the 531 members of both houses not one introduced a bill to effect that limitation until yesterday, when Senator Reed Smoot [Rep., Utah] did so. Smoot is a lame duck who is leaving congress March 4, probably forever, and even he took the step only as the result of a dare he accepted on the floor in the heat of debate, when Senator Millard Tydings [Dem., Md.] challened him to do so.

Last year congress cut the proposed reductions of veterans' benefits from the economy bill and postponed the evil day by creating a joint committee to study the question. The joint committee further postponed the evil day by dawdling through this session on an inquiry the result of which is to be reported too late in the session for action.

Promptly Defeated.

The only move in this session to curtail veterans' benefits—an amendment in the senate to withdraw benefits from a veteran with an income of $1,000 or more—was defeated without a record vote.

Both sides in the fight over reduction of payments to veterans went into action today.

Director Henry H. Curran of the National Economy league demanded a temporary curtailment of all appropriations for veterans until President Roosevelt has had opportunity to express his views on the matter to the special session of congress. John Thomas Taylor of the American Legion legislative committee, voiced a protest against the proposal to slash 5 per cent from the 1934 appropriations for the veterans' bureau.

Would Wait on Roosevelt.

Said Mr. Curran, in a letter to Frederick Hale [Rep., Me.] of the senate appropriations committee, which is now considering the 1934 independent offices supply bill, carrying nearly a billion dollars for veterans:

"President Roosevelt takes office on the fourth of March and a considerate regard for his coming incumbency may well prompt your honorable committee to wait until he takes office and makes his own responsible recommendation to the congress with regard to this particular appropriation which, ordinarily, consumes nearly one-fourth of the federal budget.

"We press our respectful contention that the financial condition of the country and the huge size of the proposed appropriation make such a postponement vital from every prudent point of view.

Sees $50 Million Saving.

"The principle which would govern the reform of veterans' legislation is the repeal of all statutes granting money payments and free hospitalization for causes not in fact the result of military service—in other words, a return to the principles of the act of Oct. 6, 1917. By such repeal at least 350 million dollars per annum would be saved immediately from the world war veterans' cost and about 110 millions from the Spanish war costs—or over 450 million dollars now. Since the costs are constantly rising under the present laws, the saving in future years would, of course, be much larger."

From the American Legion headquarters, to each member of the house and senate conference committee, now considering the treasury-postoffice supply bill, with its Bratton amendment providing for a 5 per cent cut in every federal department and bureau, went a letter which read, in part:

"It seems apparent that the full weight of the Bratton amendment may fall upon that part of the independent offices bill carrying the operating expenses of the veterans' administration and its hospitals, as the portion of the veterans' appropriation providing direct payments on account of veterans would not be susceptible to the 5 per cent reduction without amendment to existing law.

Object to Reduction.

"This would have the effect of reducing the operating cost of the veterans' administration by 43 per cent, as the entire 5 per cent reduction would have to be taken from only 28 per cent of the appropriation. Such action would greatly restrict the functions of the veterans' administration and almost paralyze its operations. The effect upon the hospitals would be tragic.

"The Legion hopes that the conferees will rectify this situation, so that the 5 per cent reduction will be computed solely against that portion of the bill which must bear the entire reduction—the administrative and hospital expenses."

BURY 62 DEAD IN GERMAN GAS BLAST TOMORROW

NEUNKIRCHEN, Saar Territory, Germany, Feb. 12.—(AP)—The death toll, less than originally estimated, from an explosion of a gas tank at the Neunkirchen iron works Friday, was set by police today at 62, including 23 women and 5 children. Funeral services for the victims will be held Tuesday.

Over the week-end, despite hindrances from thousands of sightseers who flocked to the scene of the catastrophe, preliminary check of the debris led police to believe that no more bodies were buried in the wreckage.

One hundred and sixty seriously injured persons were still in hospitals, a few of whom were expected to die. Vice Chancellor Franz von Papen will represent the government at the funeral.

BOY FALLS FROM CLIFF, DIES.

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 12.—(AP)—Arthur Murray, 9, was killed today in an attempt to scale a 100 foot cliff in San Dimas canyon, near here. The boy plunged to his death as a rock gave way beneath his feet.

30 HOUR WEEK URGED TO YIELD 6 MILLION JOBS

Report New Idleness Peak for January.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 12.—[Special.]—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, declared today that inauguration of the thirty hour work week in industry would furnish immediate jobs for over half of the 13 million persons who were idle last month.

"Idleness in January," said the labor head, "was at its all time peak with more than 12,000,000 wage earners out of work. This new peak is the worst tragedy of the depression. It makes the need of shortening work hours more than ever urgent. Hundreds of thousands of jobs have been completely eliminated during the depression; the only way we can ever put our working population back on a basis of self support and turn our man power to creating wealth is by shortening the work week."

Sees Improved Morale.

"The thirty hour week is the recovery standard," he continued. "To put to work six and a half million would give impetus to every one. It would put new hope into the hearts of millions who for years have known nothing but despair; it would give new courage and raise our national morale to have these men at work instead of walking the streets in idleness while their fellow citizens carry the heavy burden of relief. Thirty hours a week is a conservative standard, leaving nearly five and a half million still to be absorbed into work as industry recovers."

Progress Is Reported.

Mr. Green stated that the movement toward shorter working hours has made some progress, and because of this headway, he said, the total of idle is less by nearly a million than it would have been had conditions taken their normal course.

The federation president pointed to the rising burden of government relief for the idle, stating that in November the total cost of city and county relief was 202 per cent greater than in the same month a year ago, and that the number of families on the relief rolls had increased by 152 per cent during the year's time.

ROBBERS INVADE W. F. M'LAUGHLIN COMPANY OFFICE

Two armed men, one of them intoxicated, gained entrance to the office building of W. F. McLaughlin & Co., 610 North La Salle street, yesterday and fled after failing to open two safes on the second floor. They entered the building through an alley window and surprised the watchman, John Donnelly, 515 South Trumbull avenue whom they bound with rope and tape. The men worked on the safes for more than two hours before they were frightened away by the arrival of Donnelly's son, Jack, who came to relieve him.

ROOSEVELT WILL END HIS YACHT VACATION WEDNESDAY MORNING

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Miami, Fla., Feb. 12.—[Special.]—President Elect Roosevelt will disembark from the yacht Nourmahal at Miami next Wednesday evening, and leave almost immediately for New York, it was announced today.

Marvin H. McIntyre, press secretary for the President elect, made it known that Mr. Roosevelt has changed his original plan to land at Jacksonville Tuesday. According to the present plans, the President elect will leave Miami at 10 o'clock Wednesday night, in a private car attached to a regular northbound train, and will arrive at New York City early Friday morning.

In a message received from the Nourmahal today, Vincent Astor, owner of the yacht and Mr. Roosevelt's host, reported: "On our way to Northern Eleuthera to try our luck."

James A. Farley, national chairman of the Democratic party left Miami this morning to return to New York, taking with him most of the highlights of Democracy who came with him to enjoy a southern winter vacation. Late last night Mr. Farley was the chief guest of honor at a dinner given by civic leaders of Miami.

At the dinner James M. Cox, former governor of Ohio and the Democratic standard bearer in 1920, made a strong plea that President Elect Roosevelt be given dictatorial powers by congress to effect economies in government.

"I would not be surprised," Gov. Cox said, "to see Mr. Roosevelt lead us out of the economic confusion in a year's time. Accept his leadership. It is no time for back seat driving."

DEBTS STUDIED BY LOCOMOTIVE LABOR GROUP

New York, Feb. 12.—[Special]—Holding that foreign dissatisfaction with existing terms of payment or war debts threaten friendly international relations, the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers announced the beginning of a campaign of education among its members on the issues involved. It made public today the first of a series of pamphlets analyzing the problem.

The brotherhood, of which D. B. Robertson is president, was one of seven leading railway labor organizations which urged President Hoover last May to adopt a plan of settlement closely akin to proposals made by former Gov. Alfred E. Smith.

The plan favored by the railway brotherhoods called for the appointment of a commission of five by President Hoover, who was urged also to grant a twenty-five year moratorium to each debtor nation which might request it. The plan also proposed that each year during the moratorium, cancellations of debt should be made in proportion to the imports into the United States from the debtor nations, provided such cancellation did not exceed 25 per cent of the total of the debtor nations from the United States.

MRS. WILLETT EXPLAINS LOVE SUIT FOR MILLION

Says Husband and Rival Forced Action.

loving woman, she might have had some excuse. But she hadn't."

Her glance took in the details of the home she designed, which was one of the earliest of its type and has remained distinctive for its interior decoration and individuality of its features. It includes an ingeniously arranged stage for the production of private theatricals, testifying to the hobby of Mrs. Willett, whose chief interest for years has been the Drama league of Chicago. She has served as its head for a number of years.

Callers Enter Upon Stage.

Stepping out of the elevator into the hall of her home, the callers enter directly upon the stage. A broad flight of steps leads down into the stately living room, with its parquet floor, its vast stone fireplace, cosily placed deep loveseats; its grand piano, invitingly open, and its sweep of landscape visible through the triple panel of glass that forms the lakeside wall.

Beyond the living room, at the opposite side of the stage, another wide stairway leads down into the dining room and other rooms beyond, permitting entrance of the actors from behind curtains. Extremely high ceilings lend statelliness and the atmosphere of a baronial hall in a completely modern home.

In her smart, close fitting gown of black crepe with its blouse of white, sleeves slashed to the elbow and bordered with diamente, her wavy hair cropped close about her ears and massed on top of her head, Mrs. Willett looked hardly more than half the years she confesses.

Determined to Press Suit.

"A reconciliation?" she repeated a question. "I hardly see any prospect of one at this stage of proceedings. As for a settlement out of court, I can't imagine one right now, either. And I see no reason why my husband should have said that he did not believe this case would ever come to court. I know of nothing that will prevent it, and I have made up my mind to go through with it."

Mrs. Taylor, bride of a few months, has been spending the past few days at her parents' home. As Jane Willett she was a popular member of the younger social set, being especially active in the Service club. Her marriage to Dr. Samuel G. Taylor III. took place last December at her home, and was followed by a large reception there. She has one brother, Howard L. Willett Jr.

Mrs. Hall also is the mother of two children, a boy and a girl, the son, David Jr., being 20, and Beatrice, 16 years old.

SEES A NEW GANG BACK OF LATEST LINDBERGH PLOT

Roanoke, Va., Feb. 12.—(AP)—Norman Harvey, charged with participating in a $50,000 extortion plot against Charles A. Lindbergh, was subjected to a second questioning by federal agents today. The government is seeking a confession to present to United States Commissioner Charles D. Fox Jr., at the preliminary hearing tomorrow.

The government asked Harvey to explain conflicts in his statement and the story told by Joe Bryant, another of the trio arrested in connection with the plot, which threatened the kidnaping of Col. Lindbergh's second son. Bryant was quoted as saying there was an agreement to split in three equal parts the $17,000 check which police planted in a hollow stump.

Harvey's first grilling, which lasted for several hours yesterday before United States District Agent T. N. Stapleton, was concluded when the former gave a 5,000 word statement. He denied any agreement to divide the money, but said Bryant promised to give him $10,000 for endorsement of the check.

His first questioning was under the direction of John M. Keith, expert special investigator for the United States department of justice, who aided in investigating the kidnaping and death of the flyer's first son less than a year ago. Bryant protested his innocence.

Keith asserted he had ascertained to his own satisfaction that the Roanoke case was in no way connected with the former Lindbergh case, but added "there seems to be a closed case" against the Roanoke trio.

Household of Pope Pius Denies Report of Illness

[Copyright 1933: By the New York Times.]

ROME, Feb. 12.—Considerable excitement was caused here today when a report spread rapidly that Pope Pius XI. was dead or at least seriously ill. Hundreds of anxious inquirers visited the Vatican, which was flooded with inquiries from news agencies. Although the pope was seen by hundreds this morning at the papal mass, it was thought he might have suffered a stroke. The pontiff is enjoying the best of health, members of his household said.

GERMAN YOUTH ENLISTS IN NEW WORKING ARMY

500,000 Earn Their "Keep," Pocket Money.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Feb. 12.—Germany's Volunteers Labor Service has proven one of the most satisfactory experiments attempted in recent years to combat the demoralizing consequences of unemployment.

One million men and 400,000 women under the age of 25 are looking for jobs. Thanks to the Volunteers Labor Service almost half a million men and several thousand women have been able to earn their keep and a few cents extra.

In November 280,000 youths were enlisted as labor volunteers. With winter halting most of the outdoor work, they number less than half of that total, but authorities expect that half a million youths will again be found toiling under the banner of Volunteers Labor Service in the spring.

Some Even Sew.

Volunteer squads are working in all parts of Germany at all kinds of jobs. Their tasks range from draining rivers and reclaiming land to scientific work. Some even darn and sew for unemployed girls.

The volunteer labor movement was started by the Young German Order. It was then taken up by the Steel Helmet war veterans and similar organizations. First their groups contracted directly with towns or farmers, offering to work for their "keep" and pocket money.

The movement now is drawn up on a national schedule. The government's labor offices pay 47 cents a day, provided the work the volunteers do is "of value to the nation's business" and does not conflict with regular labor projects.

A community, for instance, finds that it needs a new highway but is short of funds. It applies to the labor office of the district, explaining why the road should be built, how it will assist business, and asks for money to finance the work of the labor volunteers. The community must provide the material for the project.

Squads Sent Out.

If it convinces the labor office that its scheme is sound the labor office will, if desired, detail a volunteer squad for the job and pay it directly. In most cases, however, it advances part of the funds for the volunteers to the community which chooses its own volunteers—either from church groups or political organizations.

Leaders who have proven that they can enforce discipline and keep up the right spirit in their groups are placed in charge of the squads.

Labor offices train these leaders systematically. If they prove particularly capable they are enlisted for two years' service in the Labor Volunteer corps. They are not permitted to work longer because "they must not develop into routine officials, nor be much older than the men with whom they work."

All members of the Volunteers Labor service may enlist for twenty weeks. In some cases involving special work they may be enlisted for forty weeks.

Work Six Days a Week.

The squads work six days a week, between six and eight hours a day, depending on their strength. At first it was believed that these youths who suffered privations in their childhood during the world war blockade, then in inflation days and now in the depression, lacked the necessary strength for hard physical work. But regular meals and a regular routine helped build up their stamina, and leaders of the movement declare they "average 75 to 80 per cent of the working capacity of regular workers and are developing steadily."

Out of the $3.29 a volunteer is paid, he or she must be fed, housed, and clothed. A few cents for cigarets and stamps are left.

It would be an almost impossible task to feed the youths on this sum in a city. But the jobs are usually in the country, where farmers are ready to sell their food for almost nothing. In Pomerania, for instance, farmers get one-quarter of a cent for a quart of skimmed milk. It costs seven cents in the city. It is the same with all foodstuffs, and the farmer sells food at specially low rates to the volunteers.

Fare Is Primitive.

The fare is primitive—potato soup, cabbage soup, pea soup, with an occasional slab of meat generally cooked in field kitchens. Barns with straw bedding form the headquarters. Five to seven cents a day is pocket money.

Communists have attempted to exploit the dissatisfaction of volunteers from cities, who are not accustomed to this primitive life. But they have failed because most of the workers are grateful for a chance to earn their daily bread and keep a roof over their heads.

In Saxony the Young German order is proud of the Albrecht's bach, a river which formerly flooded the Meissen district regularly every few months. The labor squads of the order regulated it. Dikes and roads have been built, and swamps reclaimed.

Aid Former Farmers.

The youths aided former farmers, who could get no work in cities, in the building of homesteads and planting of new gardens. In October, out of 250,000 volunteers, 81,090 men, or 32 per cent, were working reclaiming land, swamps and marshes; 47,446 men, or 19 per cent, were improving roads; 25,425, or 10 per cent, were working in forests, and another 25,000 were homesteading and gardening.

The government advanced $13,000,000 to labor offices of the volunteer service. Another $4,000,000 was advanced by the unemployment insurance company.

President von Hindenburg in his Christmas message appealed to the nation to help provide work for the "young." The "emergency help" he suggested will be extended to all groups which manage to find something useful or beneficial to do for four hours a day. They will be paid 5 cents for each four hour shift. This nickel will provide one meal.

The county board will hold its first meeting tomorrow to begin consideration of the budget recommendations drafted by its three finance experts.

Beats Rival, but Parachute Jumper Pays with Life

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 12.—(AP)—Spectators saw Harold H [Bud] Brandon, airplane-stunt man, pay with his life today for victory over a rival parachute jumper. The rival, "Spud" Manning, had challenged Brandon to a contest to ascertain which man could drop closest to the earth before opening his 'chute. Brandon waited until he was about 100 feet from the ground before pulling the cord. The delay was too long. He was crushed to death.

REPORT HITLER TO WED KIN OF RICHARD WAGNER

Chancellor Heads Guests at Ceremony.

LEIPZIG, Germany, Feb. 12.—(AP)—Gossips who expected to verify by the actions of Chancellor Adolf Hitler and Frau Winifred Wagner rumors of their impending engagement were disappointed today.

Arriving at a ceremony commemorating the 50th anniversary of the death of Richard Wagner, the composer, both the bachelor chancellor and the widow of Wagner's son, Siegfried, greete deach other very formally, though cordially.

Neither gave any indication of emotion, although one of the composer's grandnieces assured a representative of the Associated Press that the family "wouldn't be surprised at some later date to see Herr Hitler and Frau Wegner married."

Takes Leave Formally.

"Auf Wiedersehen, Gnaedige Frau," was Hitler's formal farewell to her after the exercises, at which official and cultural Germany paid homage to Wagner in the city of his birth, or day before the world commemorates the anniversary of his death.

Then, with no more ado, the chancellor quickly stepped into his limousine and was whisked away.

Hitler's presence here today was the signal for 1,000 Nazis to assemble before the historic Gewandhaus, where the ceremony was conducted. They lustily cheered their chieftain.

The chancellor, with Wilhelm Frick, Wilhelm Goering, and Lutz Schwerin von Krosigk of his cabinet, headed a distinguished assemblage which gathered before noon at the Gewandhaus. There a musical and oratorical program was presented.

Guests of honor included besides Frau Wagner and her son Wieland, representatives of the federal, Prussian, Saxon, Thuringian, Hamburg, and Danzig governments, and foreign diplomatic representatives.

Not the First Rumors.

This is not the first time that rumors of Hitler's and Frau Wagner's engagement have circulated.

In July, 1932, this question was asked:

"Is Hitler the man who persuaded Winifred Wagner to break with Wilhelm Furtwaengler, who was to have been the principal conductor at the 1932 Bayreuth festival?"

Gossips also wanted to know at that time: "Will Winifred Wagner some day be Frau Adolf Hitler?"

Hitler was a chum of Siegfried Wagner, and encouraged him to carry on the Bayreuth festival tradition. Brownshirted guards marched behind the family in Siegfried Wagner's funeral procession in 1930.

There were predictions two summers ago that the announcement of the engagement would come if the July 31, 1932, elections would elevate Hitler to the chancellorship.

11 SLAIN, 40 HURT AS REDS CLASH WITH HITLERITES

Communists Fire on Nazi Troops.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Feb. 12.—Political clashes between National Socialists and communists resulted in eleven deaths today. More than forty persons were seriously injured.

At Eisleben Chancellor Adolf Hitler's storm troopers paraded down streets inhabited by communists and were fired upon. Two Nazis were killed by bullets and a third in a hand to hand fight when the Nazis broke into the communist headquarters and demolished its furnishings. The battle continued for half an hour. Police separated the combatants. Fifteen were taken to hospitals with severe injuries.

Reds Hide Their Dead.

Police believe the death toll there is higher, for witnesses said that the communists had concealed their dead and injured comrades.

Two persons were slain at Bochum and one each at Bensheim, Dortmund Anhalt, Striegau, Hecklingen, and Dessau.

50 Reds Arrested.

Fifty communists were arrested in Duesseldorf when police discovered weapons and ammunition in their headquarters.

Other clashes occurred at Stuttgart Cologne, and Brunswick. There were several hand-to-hand encounters in Berlin streets.

IDENTIFY BODY OF VICTIM SLAIN ON GANG RIDE

The body of a "ride" victim, found early yesterday morning in Harlem avenue near 23d street, North Riverside, was identified at the county morgue last night as that of Charles A. O'Neill, 35 years old, 18 South Waller avenue.

C. A. O'NEILL.

Detective bureau records showed that O'Neill was sentenced to Pontiac reformatory on Jan. 20, 1916, for burglary, following his violation of probation granted in the case shortly before. Last year he was sent to the House of Correction for three months for larceny.

Identification was made by a sister, Mrs. Myrtle Daley, and her husband, James P. Daley. They told Lieut. Edward Weber of the Willow Springs county highway police that O'Neill started in the trucking business two years ago after having worked in the city water department. They said, however, that for two weeks he had stayed close to home, going outside for the first time Saturday night.

11 HURT IN PANIC AS STREET CAR BURNS ON S. SIDE

Eleven persons were injured late last night when a State street car came to a sudden stop at 90th street and burst into flames. The passengers, most of them Negroes, became panicky, and jumped out windows and trampled on one another in their haste to escape. Four of those injured were white. No one was burned.

The street car was traveling south and as it rolled under the double viaduct of the Belt line and Rock Island railroads its trolley sprung off the wire. The motorman applied the brakes fully, and the car came to a sudden stop, lurching the passengers forward.

At the same time flames shot out from beneath the floor. In a moment all was panic. By the time police and firemen arrived the street car was fairly well burned. It was taken away.

Those hurt were Anthony Jasen, 21 years old, and his wife, Eunice, 23, 10742 Wabash avenue, and Henry Germeraad, 43 years old, and his wife, Elizabeth, 41, 50 West 105th street, all white, and Elaine Richmond, 1324 West 109th street; Nina Rogers, 1216 West 109th street; Willaie, Adam, and Johnnie Henderson, 49 West 95th street; Edgar Carter, 9523 Yale avenue, and William Patterson, 9537 Lafayette avenue.

"Look," said Sergt. Walter Kelly yesterday afternoon to Lieut. Edward Birmingham, as the two were driving to the detective bureau, "that's Gus Winkler." It was.

GUS WINKLER.

Winkler and a companion, John Moran, 1927 North Clark street, formerly of St. Louis, were about to enter an automobile at Homan avenue and Jackson boulevard. They said they had been visiting John J. "Boss" McLaughlin, ex-legislator, now a gambling boss.

"What's this about your taking over Teddy Newberry's territory?" asked Lieut. Birmingham as Winkler and his friend were being taken to the detective bureau on "general principles."

Known as Bank Robber.

Winkler, known for years as a bank robber, was formerly identified with the Capone gang but was not known to have participated in the booze or gambling rackets. However, as Winkler is now 32 years old and has his pictures and finger prints on file in scores of cities, the reports that he had undertaken the more genteel occupation of booze syndicate organizer and gambling racketeer were not regarded as strange. Winkler has been quoted as saying that the booze racket was nice work if a fellow could get enough of it.

Newberry was killed last month after many years of domination of the north side's illicit industries. In recent years he had commanded one of the wings of the Capone syndicate. Recently north side saloonkeepers have been warned: "You'll take your beer from Gus Winkler from now on. Winkler is the new syndicate boss."

Word of this drifted into police headquarters. The men representing themselves as Winkler's agents who spread the warning had a side line—slot machines. Various north side beer purveyors told friendly police that one of Winkler's trucks had stopped and two slot machines were delivered with orders to get them filled with quarters.

Seek to Learn Truth.

Shortly after police were ordered to find Winkler and get the truth about what was going on north of the river. Perhaps, it was said, some hoodlums were taking advantage of Winkler's reputation to help them in beer selling and slot machine operation. For a crook to change his line is unusual, police said.

They recalled that Winkler had been cleared of a lot of trouble by turning over to the Secret Six, amateur detective organization, $583,000 of negotiable securities taken in a robbery of a bank in Lincoln, Neb. That was a year ago. At that time Winkler was under indictment for a bank robbery in Plano, Ill., and also under indictment in Nebraska. He was the first deputy of Fred "Killer" Burke, who robbed thirty or forty banks throughout the middle west and who is now serving a life sentence in Michigan for the murder of a policeman at St. Joseph, Mich.

When arrested in Michigan, Illinois and Nebraska both asked for Winkler's extradition. Suddenly the Secret Six, through Alexander Jamie, announced that Winkler was not guilty of either robbery. He had acted as go-between in the recovery of part of the loot of the Nebraska bank robbery, Jamie said.

When Gov. Charles Bryan of Nebraska learned of the deal through which Winkler was given immunity in return for the securities he said it was "one of the blackest pages in the history of Nebraska and one of which every citizen should be ashamed." The Plano, Ill., charge was dropped with the explanation that the identification of Winkler was a mistake.

"So you are now in the booze racket?" Lieut. Birmingham commented to Winkler. Apparently the reformed bank robber decided he had talked too much in mentioning the name of "Boss" McLaughlin, so the police queries about the booze racket went unanswered. Winkler said that he lives at 4126 West 26th street, Cicero. A message was sent to St. Louis asking about the past of Moran and the two prisoners who made the mistake of getting within the vision of Kelly and Birmingham spent the night in cells.

280 PERISH IN EARTHQUAKE

Arrow on map points to the city of Kaotai in northwest Kausu province of China, in which region 280 Chinese lost their lives in an earthquake on Dec. 26. The district that suffered the most is north of Lake Koko Nor, the great salt lake between the Kuen-lun and the Nan Shan mountain ranges. The news of the disaster did not reach Chinese officials until yesterday because the only communication is by camel caravan.

HOOVERS GUESTS AT TONIGHT'S LINCOLN DINNER

New York, Feb. 12.—(AP)—President and Mrs. Hoover will be guests of honor tomorrow night at the 47th annual Lincoln dinner of the National Republican club in the grand ballroom of the Waldorf Astoria.

The President will arrive here late in the afternoon, going direct to the hotel. He will begin speaking at 10 p. m.

The club announced that about 1,500 guests from all parts of the country would be present. Maj. Gen. James G. Harbord will make the address presenting Mr. Hoover, and Miss Edith Barrett, actress and granddaughter of Lawrence Barrett, who was a friend of Lincoln, will recite the Gettysburg address.

Alleged Robber Shot by Bartender in Speakeasy

An unidentified man, about 25 years old, was shot in the head last night when, it was alleged, he attempted a robbery in a speakeasy at 604 North Dearborn street. At the Henrotin hospital it was said he would die. William Frazis, 44 years old, 639 North Wells street, the bartender, and several witnesses told Detectives P. J. O'Shea and Walter Behnke of the Chicago avenue station that Frazis wrenched a pistol away from the robber and shot him.

SUNDAY BETTER; 'OUT OF DANGER,' PHYSICIANS SAY

Des Moines, Ia., Dec. 12.—(AP)—The Rev. William A. (Billy) Sunday, stricken seriously ill during a revival meeting here, was pronounced "out of danger" tonight.

Physicians attending the evangelist at his hotel, where he was taken after collapsing last night, added, however, that a long rest would be required to restore the patient's strength and preparations were being made to move him to California.

The Rev. Mr. Sunday fainted while delivering a typical exhortation and was taken to his quarters in a delirious condition.

His ailment was diagnosed as "general run down physical condition," due to overwork, with acute indigestion as a complication.

The evangelist suffered a similar attack earlier in the week and physicians had advised against his continuing the revival. He recovered quickly, however, and said he felt fit to finish the local engagement which was to have been concluded tonight.

HELD IN THREAT AGAINST WITNESS IN ROBBERY CASE

Francis Milano, 2740 North Sayre avenue, who said he was an insurance agent, was paraded before crime victims at the detective bureau yesterday.

"What are you in for?" asked Deputy Chief of Detectives William Blaul.

"I went to see a man about getting bonds reduced for a friend of mine charged with robbery," Milano replied.

"O, yes," Blaul said, reading from the record. "Herman Heifitz, 2554 Hirsch boulevard, was robbed on Jan. 9 and he identified Frank Restizo as the robber and Restizo is in the county jail under $10,000 bonds. Since then Heifitz has received two letters telling him it would be dangerous for him to prosecute Restizo. And then you went to Heifitz's house, did you?"

"I only wanted to help Restizo's family," said Milano.

"The state's attorney will call that obstructing justice," Blaul remarked.

HUNT 3 SUSPECTS IN $500,000 LOOP POSTAL ROBBERY

Inspectors Quiz Couple Trying to Sell Bond.

Three suspects were reported being sought by postal inspectors at Springfield last night after they had questioned a man and a woman held in connection with the $500,000 day light mail robbery at Adams and Clark streets on Dec. 6.

The prisoners, William Golden, who gave his address as 1625 South Central Park avenue, Chicago, and Jean Stenger, a half Indian, were seized Saturday after Golden attempted to dispose of a $1,000 bond taken in the holdup.

Inspectors Reluctant to Talk.

Inspectors J. R. McWhorter and D. F. Lyon hurried to Springfield from Chicago and questioned the prisoners, but declined to make any statements except that "half a dozen persons may be involved."

Golden, who has arrest records for confidence games in Pittsburgh and St. Louis, offered a $1,000 RKO bond to a clerk of the Fernandes Grain company, Springfield, for $80.

Bond Identified by Number.

The grain company wired its Chicago correspondents and learned that the number of the bond was that of one of the stolen securities, whereupon Golden was trailed to a garage where the woman waited. She claimed to be the wife of an 80 year old wealthy Osage Indian in Bartlesville, Okla.

The RKC bond is the first so far recovered since the robbery, in which five bandits held up Fred Voelsch, a letter carrier, and Frank Stastny, his guard, while they were on their way to the First National bank with a registered mail delivery.

13 ARE DROWNED AS SHIP SINKS IN GALE OFF ALASKA

Dutch Harbor, Alaska, Feb. 12.—(AP)—Thirteen lives were lost when the small motorship Umnak, owned by the Umnak village community, sank in a heavy gale near Umnak island Jan. 24, said delayed reports reaching here tonight.

The meager reports said that among those who drowned when the vessel went down during the storm were Capt. Andrew Nelson, well known in Alaska as the former commander of the motorship Eunice, and Bishop Antonin of the Alaska Greek Catholic church.

The master, Capt. Stankus, his wife and their infant child, and Mike Tutiakoss, a Russian priest at Umnak native village, also were lost.

Three natives aboard the vessel were saved.

DE VALERA DOFFS HAT AS STREET HARPIST PLAYS IRISH ANTHEM

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Feb. 12—(AP)—Timothy O'Ryan, a street musician who twangs his harp to Dublin theater queues—always keeping one eye open for a policeman and the other for pennies that many pitch at his feet—stage a "non-command" performance before President Eamon de Valera tonight.

When the president emerged from the studio where he delivered an address O'Ryan, who was playing in front of a movie theater, recognized him. The musician changed his number quickly from "Lily of Laguna" to "The Soldier's Song," the Irish Free State national anthem.

The president, hearing the familiar strains, stopped. He took off his hat, and so did the rest of the audience. Everybody, including policemen, stood silently at attention until the anthem was completed. Then the theater queue, forgetting the movie, crowded around and applauded President de Valera.

ADMITS PLOT TO STEAL WHITLA'S 2 DAUGHTERS

Sharon, Pa., Feb. 12.—(AP)—Pleading guilty to extortion by blackmail, in connection with an alleged threat to kidnap the two small daughters of the late William F. Whitla—himself the victim of a sensational kidnaping 25 years ago—Harold Best, 21, is in jail tonight.

The nation was aroused when, as a child of eight years, Whitla was kidnaped as he left school in Sharon.

He was carried away in a horse-drawn buggy and held in Cleveland until $10,000 ransom was paid by his wealthy parents. The child was then left in a Cleveland hotel, as promised by the kidnapers.

Helen Boyle and her husband, James, were convicted of the crime. Boyle died in prison. His wife, sentenced to 25 years in prison, was later paroled and is reported living in Chicago.

PROF. PICCARD HERE; GREETED BY SCIENTISTS

Prof. Auguste Piccard, explorer of the stratosphere, visited Chicago yesterday with his brother, Jean Piccard. He is en route to Milwaukee where he is to speak tomorrow night. A group of Chicago scientists welcomed him on his arrival and accompanied him to the Stevens hotel.

Prof. Piccard will describe his balloon flights into the stratosphere in a lecture here March 7, at Mandel hall of the University of Chicago. He will be introduced by Prof. Arthur H. Compton, winner of the Nobel prize for physics.

FRENCH CHAMBER BACKS CABINET'S BUDGET SCHEME

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Feb. 13.—[Monday.]—Sitting in an all night session while thousands of peasants and townspeople paraded from one end of France to the other to protest their tax burdens, the chamber of deputies early today reached an agreement on the government's budget program. As a result, it appeared that Premier Edouard Daladier's cabinet will last a while longer.

The chamber voted a surtax of from two to ten per cent on public and private salaries and also agreed on an amended proposal to reduce military appropriations 18 per cent. The surtax applies only to those whose salaries have not been reduced in the last two years and is obviously aimed at the salaries of public officials.

Most of the drastic measures in the budget program have fallen by the wayside in an effort to run the chamber gantlet, so that now experts predict grave difficulties in the senate for the very reason that the program has no teeth in it. On the other hand, although the taxes are lighter than those previously proposed, it is not certain that the French taxpayers will accept them.

STEER COURSE LINCOLN HEWED, NATION URGED

Emancipator Eulogized on 124th Birthday.

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 12.—(AP)—Abraham Lincoln's theories of government and social justice were upheld today as the solution for the nation's problems.

Governors of two states and a federal judge paid tribute to the civil war President upon the 124th anniversary of his birth in ceremonies at Springfield, Lincoln's home and burial place.

"We must learn anew the great fundamental truths exemplified by the life of Abraham Lincoln," said Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson of Chicago.

"As long as human history is recorded, Lincoln will stand out as the conspicuous example of the method of true reform."

Eulogized by Two Governors.

Governors Clyde L. Herring of Iowa and Henry Horner of Illinois, both Democrats, also eulogized the teachings of Lincoln. It was in Springfield that Lincoln made his reputation as an attorney and came into the prominence that led to the White House.

"Abraham Lincoln's great message to the world," said Wilkerson, "is that in the evolution of government, lasting reform cannot be wrought by the command of the enthusiast, but that it must have its foundation laid deep in the spirit of the people, and that the true reformer is the one who can interpret that spirit and who has the courage to withstand the abuse of the rash and impatient and to wait until the right hour for action has come."

Urged to Heed His Teachings.

Wilkerson reiterated Lincoln's theory that the social system need not be swept away because "there are evils to be removed and abuses to be corrected."

Under similar conditions, the speaker said, Lincoln's administration devoted itself to correction of conditions rather than believing that "the whole social system is wrong and must be swept away."

Gov. Herring declared Lincoln's life was devoted to the preservation of constitutional government. Its study, he added, "may bring us back to the vital principles upon which our national life and the orderly life of the world depends."

Moderation Needed.

Declaring that disrespect for law is increasing and "self-constituted agencies working in secrecy are taking upon themselves the duties of judge and executive," Iowa's governor added:

"What the nation needs to feel today more than anything else is that extravagance is no fit measure of a people's life; that moderation and plain homely living such as marked an earlier age are preferable from any standpoint to mountains of debt; that, after all, human happiness is to be found not in indulgence but in the fundamentals of affection, comradship, the blessing of work, the thrill of courageous effort, and kindly service to our brother man."

Points to Russian Tyranny.

"Looking about the world today," Gov. Herring continued, "what do we see? In Italy, a dictatorship, in Germany, practically a dictatorship; in Japan, a dominance of the military; in Russia, a tyranny. In all of these parliamentary government is practically effaced."

After discussing Lincoln's life, Gov. Herring said:

"At times we are prone to wonder whether in this marvelous age, with its mastery of the forces of nature, we may not have set in motion forces beyond our mastery, have placed our lives and those of our loved ones in the meshes of a machine so vast and complex that the mind of man is unable to grasp the laws which govern it, or to subject its intricate processes to the beneficient service of mankind.

"The dislocation of war is but one phase of our failure to handle the forces set loose in the world. With all our vaunted education we are drifting in the storm."

Havoc of the War.

Although the heart of Lincoln was torn by the sorrows and losses of the civil war, Herring said, "the dislocation wrought by that conflict can bear no comparison either in lives lost or billions of wealth sacrificed with that which has sprung from the mighty conflict of the world war.

"As we grieve for the havoc of war in the lives of those we loved and lost, let us grieve too for those millions upon millions of men and women and children whose daily life is today a living sacrifice to the shattering devastation of war in the twentieth century."

WOMAN SAVED FROM FIRE.

Litchfield, Ill., Feb. 12.—[Special.]—Mrs. James Hearn, 75, was rescued from a fire which entirely destroyed her four room cottage here early today. She was carried out by firemen just before the blazing roof caved in.

BANKS, MARKETS, SCHOOLS PAUSE FOR LINCOLN DAY

Behind and above St. Gaudens' majestic statue of the Great Emancipator in Lincoln park, an American flag whipped in the wintry breeze yesterday and this morning, signaling the city's tribute on the 124th birthday of the martyred President. Yesterday was the actual date. Today, the legal holiday honoring that momentous day, finds many of the major activities of Chicago's routine held in abeyance.

La Salle street observes the lull with closed doors at the Board of Trade and the stock exchange, all banks and many business houses. The only market in operation will be the live stock mart. New York and southern stock and commodity exchanges will be closed.

Mail Carriers Get Half Holiday.

Postmaster Arthur C. Lueder announced on Friday that mail carriers will enjoy a half holiday today. There will be no delivery of mail this afternoon, and, according to custom, public schools will not be in session.

In all of Chicago today no more significant ceremony will be held in observance of the anniversary than the annual memorial services to be conducted under auspices of the Grand Army of the Republic, at its headquarters in the main branch of the public library. Songs of civil war days and reminiscences of their service under Abraham Lincoln will center in the band of white haired old soldiers who were the "boys in blue" of 1861-'65.

Their deep blue uniforms and old campaign hats were much in evidence yesterday morning at 7847 South Halsted street, where a dozen veterans gathered to march in a group to Calvary Methodist Episcopal church for a Lincoln memorial service.

Washington His Grandfather?

When Robert Todd Lincoln's collection of his father's correspondence is published under the terms of his will, in 25 years, George Washington may be revealed as the grandfather of Abraham Lincoln, Mrs. Eleanor Gridley asserted yesterday in a talk to visitors to the Lincoln exhibit at the Pearson hotel. Mrs. Gridley, the aged author of "Log Cabin to White House," stated that many stories of the day quoted Lincoln as suspecting himself of being of the lineage of a Virginia gentleman, and that it is likely his letters may reveal some investigation by himself of that belief.

More than 1,000 persons already have inspected the current exhibit of Lincolniana at the hotel. It will remain open to the public until tomorrow night. The articles shown have been left by collectors.

At the Chicago Historical society yesterday, Dr. Louis A. Warren, who recently completed months of research on Lincoln's youth, gave an address on the boyhood of the rail splitter.

Mrs. Harvey Fox, president of the Chicago Woman's club, presided at the annual Lincoln goodwill massmeeting under auspices of the club yesterday at its theater, 72 East 11th street. James Geary, 839 West 59th street, winner of the high school essay contest on the life of Lincoln, read his prize contribution. There were brief talks by former Judge Charles S. Cutting, Dr. Hugo Simon, dean of the consular corps; Dr. Charles E. Shulman, Dr. Robert M. Kelly, president of Loyola university; the Rev. A. Wayman Ward and Superintendent William J. Bogan of the public schools.

CHINESE TROOPS CHECK JAPANESE DRIVE IN JEHOL

Repulse Effort to Break Lines in Battle.

PEIPING, Feb. 12.—(AP)—Chinese advices from the capital of Jehol province today said that a stiff battle occurred yesterday at Kailu, in the northern part of the state, between Japanese and Manchukuoan forces and Chinese regulars and volunteers.

The dispatches said that under the cover of artillery fire and air bombing the Japanese-Manchukuoan forces attempted to break through the Chinese lines, but were repulsed. The Japanese were reported to be bringing reinforcements from Mukden and Chinchow.

Call Situation Serious.

The situation in the vicinity of Chaoyang, south of Kailu and to the north of Shanhaikwan, which was taken over by the Japanese in January, was described by the Chinese dispatches as extremely serious. Volunteer forces under Generals Liu Kewitang, Wang Yun-pin and Fen Chanhai were reported being rushed to the rescue of Chinese regulars at Fushin.

Another Chinese report said that at least seven thousand Japanese troops were massing on the Jehol border and that the headquarters of the Japanese army was established at Tahushan.

Chang Ching-hui, minister of war for Manchukuo, was reported to be at Tungliao, the terminus of the Tahushan-Tungliao railroad, conferring with Japanese commanders.

Soong Arrives in Plane.

The arrival of Dr. T. V. Soong, finance minister and president of the executive yuan of the Nationalist government, who reached here last night by airplane from Nanking, was causing much speculation among political observers.

Strict silence was maintained in official circles and rigid censorship was established, but Soong's chief mission was thought to be to tighten up cooperation between Marshal Chang Hseuh-liang, Chinese military leader, and the Nanking government regarding the defense of Jehol province, where a Japanese offensive is expected toward the end of the month.

Tokio's Reply in Geneva.

GENEVA, Feb. 12.—(AP)—The Japanese delegation to the league of nations today received Tokio's reply to inquiries concerning the Manchurian situation, saying that Japan cannot renounce Manchukuo.

The reply may be delivered to the committee of nineteen of the league tomorrow when it meets to consider a draft report of a subcommittee which has drawn up recommendations.

[The draft report of the subcommittee of the league of nations on the Sino-Japanese troubles strongly indicted Japan for its polity in Manchuria. Recommendations drawn up included one that members of the league continue not to recognize Manchukuo, and that China and Japan enter into negotiations looking to a settlement of the matter under the guidance of a special commission in which Russia and the United States would be invited to participate.]

Japan Defies League.

TOKIO, Feb. 13 (Monday).—(AP)—Japan will not deal with a committee to direct Sino-Japanese negotiations, as proposed by a league of nations subcommittee which has drawn up recommendations for settlement of the Manchurian issue, it was stated today. A foreign office spokesman said, "Such a committee is illegal, and the covenant of the league does not provide for it."

He said the recommendation that such a committee supervise the return of Japanese troops in Manchuria to the limits of the southern Manchuria railway zone is "like reading a page of medieval history." The spokesman personally expressed the opinion that Japan's withdrawal from the league was a "foregone conclusion."

Manchukuo Defies World.

CHANGCHUN, Manchuria, Feb. 12.—(AP)—A threat to slam the open door in Manchuria in the world's face if the powers attempt to outlaw Japan was voiced today by a spokesman for Manchukuo, the new state set up several months ago with the assistance of Japan.

The spokesman was Chuichi Ohayashi, a Japanese subject who holds the post of vice minister of foreign affairs for Manchukuo.

"If the league and other powers shut the door of recognition against Manchukuo," he said, "boycott Japan and then Manchukuo, Japan may be forced at the same time to slam the open door in Manchuria against them.

"Let the league and the powers go their way and we will go ours without misgivings for the future. Regardless of the world's recognition, we have one of the richest and most self-supporting countries in the world and we can feed ourselves indefinitely without help."

Officials Not Alarmed.

Both Japanese and Manchukuo officials here professed to believe that the league's attitude concerning independence of Manchukuo and the campaign in Jehol province, the adjoining state, made Japan's withdrawal from the league inevitable. They asserted they were not alarmed by this prospect and were confident the league would lose more thereby than Japan and Manchukuo.

[The Japanese have said they consider Jehol a rightful part of Manchukuo. Recent dispatches have told of the reputed massing of troops by Japanese to invade the province on a large scale.]

The officials indicated that a rupture was likely especially if the league attempted sanctions against Japan which might nullify Manchukuo's recent agreement to liquidate American and other foreign claims against the old Mukden régime.

Meanwhile the army of Gen. Nobuyoshi Muto is rushing preparations for a conquest of Jehol on behalf of Manchukuo. Gen. Muto is the supreme military and diplomatic representative of Japan in Manchuria.

ENVOY'S SECRET PAPERS STOLEN; THEN RETURNED

Not "Ordinary Burglary," Hungarian Says.

BY EMIL MAASS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, Feb. 12.—Some military documents were stolen from and have been mysteriously returned to the apartment of Gustav Henyj, Hungarian military attaché at Belgrade Jugo-Slavia, it was learned here today.

Henyj, returning from a vacation in Budapest, discovered his safe had been broken open. The next day he found the missing documents on his front doorstep. Henyj complained to the Jugo-Slavian government, which replied that "it is an affair of mystery."

It is learned that a similar incident is alleged to have happened to the Italian military attaché at Belgrade.

Rejects Burglary Theory.

To suggestions that the raid on his office was committed by burglars, Henyj points out that the intruders did not touch customary valuables such as money and jewelry, and removed only secret papers.

The document mystery is the latest in a series of events which have the Balkans in a stir. A secret telegraphic code was stolen from Austria's ministry of defense and Vienna's military secret service has not yet found it or determined the motive for its disappearance.

Rumania yesterday decreed the dissolution of all communist organizations. Recently in that country an espionage plot was revealed in the post-office department and martial law was declared. Also after the oil field and railroad strikes martial law was declared even after quiet had been restored.

Protest Arms Traffic.

Reports of Italian arms shipments to Hungary and also Italian pilots were flying planes to Hungary and returning by train have recently stirred Europe. Yesterday the British and French ambassadors at Vienna asked for further information and pointed out that if arms were shipped through Austria they must be returned to Italy, and that the powers would consider it unfriendly if such shipments occurred again.

Concurrently Italy issued a cryptic denial that it had entered into alliance with any other states. The denial was presumed to allude to reports in Paris papers of a "triple entente" between Italy, Germany, and Hungary for the purpose of gaining the Danzig corridor for Germany and Albania for Italy. At the same time Paris papers printed vigorous articles referring to "a new situation in Europe," and pointing the danger of Chancellor Hitler of Germany and Premier Mussolini of Italy joining forces to gain arms concessions at Geneva. Berlin and Budapest made denials similar to Rome's.

BUSINESS BOOMS IN JAPAN IN WAKE OF FALLEN YEN

Wages Up, Too; Opinions Clash on Permanence.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Feb. 12. — Conditions throughout Japan are in general showing a distinct improvement, reports indicate. Despite their enormous debts, the farmers are managing, by selling rice, silk and other farm produce at the highest prices in years, to breathe more easily. The railways, too, are earning a substantial profit for both passenger and freight services. This reflects a marked improvement in industry which seems finally to have entered a period of revival.

The most tangible evidence of better times is a rise in wages and salaries.

Opinion differs, however, as to whether the present wave of revival will last. Bankers and financiers are inclined to be optimistic. Industrial magnates are convinced that the boom will continue only as long as the exchange rate of the depreciated yen and commodity prices remain where they are today.

Foresee Tariff Walls.

The consensus of opinion among those who feel the boom is only temporary is that Japan should make hay while the sun shines. They are certain that other countries will erect tariff walls to cope with a situation in which Japan is able to export at ridiculously low prices, and they assert that when commodity prices rise in Japan, as they must sooner or later, this country will find itself holding the bag.

For the time being, however, the public it not worrying. The people are too busily engaged in taking advantage of the boom. Figures published Jan. 28 by the department of commerce and industry reveal that Japan almost doubled the amount of her exports during the last 10 months, with orders from all over the world deluging the country.

Trade with China Increases.

Manufacturers in many lines are working overtime, but are still unable to keep up with the increasing demand. Moreover, despite the boycott and other anti-Japanese agitation in China, both politically and economically, Japan's trade with her nearest neighbor registered an increase of 80 per cent last year over that of 1931.

India also was one of Japan's best customers for it practically doubled its imports from this country in 1932. Shipments to the United States likewise registered a remarkable gain. In fact, Japan tripled her exports in electric bulbs, rubber goods, hats, lead pencils, celluloid goods, and toys to America last year.

Shipping Comes to Life.

Reflecting the increase in exports, Japan's shipping, which has been in the throes of depression for 10 years, has finally begun to show signs of life. Practically all vessels sailing out of Japanese ports are fairly well loaded, frequently even to capacity. The low exchange rate of Japanese currency, however, has acted both ways and these same ships carry little back for Japan is unable to purchase much abroad with her depreciated yen.

Conditions in the farming areas, although they have shown considerable improvement in the last few months, are not to be compared with those in the industrial districts. In most localities the average debt of a household is still more than 1,000 yen [normally $500] and despite the increase in prices of farm products and silk, the rapid rise in the price of fertilizer is cutting into the profits of the agrarian people.

Many of the villages, accordingly have awakened to the realization that they must work out their own salvation and have heroically embarked on five and ten year plans of debt readjustment.

PERSHING IMPROVING, HIS PHYSICIAN SAYS; MAY CONTINUE WEST

Midland, Tex., Feb. 12.—(AP)—Dr. W. E. Ryan said today Gen. John J. Pershing was improving from the throat infection and bronchitis from which he has been suffering for several days.

"The general is in no danger," his physician explained. "It was simply a recurrence of an old bronchial trouble. I think he will be able to get out of doors in two or three days."

He said Pershing had spent a restful night.

Pershing and his sister, Miss May Pershing, motoring to Arizona for a vacation trip, halted here last week when they learned that their brother, James F. Pershing, was seriously ill in New York. He died Thursday night and Miss Pershing left hurriedly for the east to attend the funeral.

At that time physicians advised the commander of America's world war expeditionary forces not to leave his hotel here. A severe blizzard had brought subzero weather to Midland.

Today, however, the general spoke with friends on the mezzanine floor of the hotel and said he planned to leave for Tucson in continuation of a motor car vacation trip early this week.

SERB YOUTHS CHARGE VATICAN LETS DUCE USE CHURCH AS TOOL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, Feb. 12.—Charging that the Vatican is permitting the church to be used by Premier Mussolini as a tool to enforce his Fascist brand of imperialism outside of Italy, Sokol, an organization of patriotic Jugo-Slav youths, "declared war" today. They bombarded the city of Zagreb with leaflets and billboard notices denouncing the Vatican as a "black vampire" and summoning all patriotic Jugo-Slavs to ignore the "attempt to disrupt Jugo-Slav unity."

The Sokol leaders assert that Pope Pius, through Slovenian and Croatian archbishops denounced the Sokol organization in a pastoral letter.

Sokol officials contend the pastoral letter is an indication that the church is being used for Mussolini's purposes in the Balkans.

SMILES GREET COPS CALLED TO QUIET A PARTY

Policemen John Deady and Edward Farr, riding in a radio car early yesterday, received orders to go to 6217 Dorchester avenue, where a complaint had been made of a noisy party.

They were admitted to the apartment by a smiling man, who met their questions with more smiles. In the various rooms were 35 other men and women, all quiet, and all smiling. The mystification of the police was dispelled when the hostess, Mrs. Ruth Brown, explained that her guests were deaf mutes.

With Mrs. Brown for an "interpreter," her guests denied, still smiling, that they had been making any noise. They smiled more broadly in denying that they had heard any noise. The policemen left, content. A half hour later they got another radio message that there had been a complaint of noise at the party. They returned to the apartment, were met again by smiles and quiet.

CARSON PIRIE SCOTT & CO

ASSAILS JUDGE'S DECREE IN OLD COLONY AWARD

Removal of Insurance Co. Receivers Sought.

BY WALTER FITZMAURICE.

The Old Colony Life Insurance company has been defunct nearly five months, but expensive litigation continues to harry the bankrupt concern and a group of lawyers are now engaged in a hot fight over disposition of the few remaining assets. Meanwhile the 25,000 Old Colony policyholders have received nothing but a reinsurance contract.

Attorney George D. Kimball, representing a woman and son each holding a $1,000 policy, has appealed to the Appellate court against the decree of Circuit Judge William V. Brothers awarding the Old Colony reinsurance contract to the Life and Casualty company of Chicago. Contending that Judge Brothers committed a "glaring and harmful error," Mr. Kimball asks that the contract be voided and the Old Colony receivers, Alvin Keys and J. A. O. Preus, be removed.

Each Has Own Law Firm.

The Appellate court has given Messrs. Keys and Preus until Feb. 16 to file an answer. Each receiver has his own law firm, Mr. Keys being represented by Schuyler, Weinfeld & Hennessy, and Mr. Preus by Barrett, Barrett, Costello & Barrett. Neither th receivers nor their lawyers have yet filed a claim for fees, but Mr. Kimball's bill avers that when they do he is prepared to contest any payn ent to them on the ground that their appointment was unconstitutional.

Five companies submitted bids for reinsurance of the Old Colony. Mr. Kimball maintains that if Judge Brothers had given any consideration to the relative financial strength of the bidders, he would have awarded the contract to the Illinois Bankers Life Insurance company of Monmouth, instead of to the Life and Casualty company.

Illinois Bankers Life had net assets of $18,540,723, he sets forth, whereas Life and Casualty had only $1,910,516. Illinois Bankers Life offered only $25,000 for the contract in contrast to Life and Casualty's offer of $35,000, he admits, but adds that in paying the $35,000, Life and Casualty used more than 70 per cent of the $52,000 cash it had on hand.

"Disregard of Rights."

"This disregard of the rights and claims of the policyholders is a most serious abuse of discretion on the part of the court in approving the order giving upwards of $25,000,000 of insurance to the Life and Casualty for a mere pittance and without proper restrictions," Attorney Kimball's brief avers. "It allows Life and Casualty to profit by such reinsured business to a much greater extent than it would dare to do through policies originating and issued in its own name."

Mr. Kimball cites the "haste" with which Judge Brothers decreed the receivership and questions the procedure of the receivers in advertising for reinsurance bids. He sets forth that as early as December, 1931, his client, Mrs. Theresa Stengel, had applied for the $400 loan to which her policy entitled her and, getting no satisfaction, had applied for a receivership against Old Colony on Aug. 3, 1932, before Superior Judge William L. Lindsay.

Notwithstanding that her petition was still before Judge Lindsay on Sept. 20, he avers that Leo H. Lowe, director of trade and commerce, went before Judge Brothers on the morning of that day and asked the receivership. That same afternoon, without notice to him or his client, Attorney Kimball adds, B. R. Nueske and other officers of Old Colony came before Judge Brothers and consented to Mr. Lowe appointing Mr. Keys, who was in charge of the state insurance department's liquidation bureau at Springfield, as receiver.

Says Law is Invalid.

Mr. Kimball concedes that Mr. Keys' appointment was in accordance with provisions of the liquidation and dissolution statute, but declares the statute is unconstitutional. The naming of receivers, he maintains, is a judicial function which the legislature had no right to transfer to an executive official such as Mr. Lowe.

As for Mr. Preus, he maintains there is nothing in any statute providing for appointment of a co-receiver for an insurance company. The record discloses that Judge Brothers named Mr. Preus at solicitation of the former officials of Old Conoly who, despite the $600,000 deficit and the $158,000 unpaid death claims of the company, still had funds to employ Attorney Samuel A. Ettelson to plead their cause.

On the reinsurance bids, Mr. Kimball avers that the advertisements were limited to two issues of "the then existing Chicago Evening Post a newspaper with next to no circulation."

Finally, Mr. Kimball raises a point concerning Old Colony's $100,000 guarantee stock deposit, which was held in custody of the state auditor at Springfield. Mr. Kimball maintains that this deposit should be considered a trust for the benefit of policyholders alone, but the receivers insist it is a trust for all creditors. Under their contention, Mr. Kimball points out, the deposit can be used to pay receivers' salaries and expenses.

BIDDERS TO QUIZ EXPERT ON ILLINOIS LIFE PLANS TODAY

A further hearing on proposals to reorganize the Illinois Life Insurance company, or reinsure its 76,000 policy holders, will be conducted by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson today. Edward B. Fackler, New York insurance expert who selected two proposals from thirteen submitted by bidders for the business, will be examined by attorneys favoring other plans.

The plans favored by Gen. Abel Davis, the receiver, on advice of Mr. Fackler, were submitted by the Lincoln National Life Insurance company of Fort Wayne, Ind., which proposed to reinsure the Illinois Life policy holders, and by James S. Kemper & Co. of Chicago, which offered to put up $1,250,000 of new capital and reorganize the company.

Attorney David Stansbury, who claims to represent policy holders with $150,000 of insurance, is the chief objector to the proposed plans. He wants the company to continue operation without placing any liens or moratoriums upon the policies.

Plane Rushes Serum to 10 Bitten by Diseased Dog

Akron, O., Feb. 12.—(AP)—Ten of fourteen persons bitten by a dog believed suffering from rables were awaiting Pasteur serum treatment tonight as an airplane rushed a new supply of the serum here from Indianapolis. County Health Commissioner R. H. Markwith ordered the new supply after all available serum had been used in treating four high school pupils. Eight of the other 10 persons bitten were members of one family. Dr. Markwith said he was informed by laboratory workers that the dog later died of rabies at the city pound.

CROSS COUNTRY FREIGHT AIR TRIP MADE IN 13 H. 50 M.

New York, Feb. 12.—[Special.]—A night freight plane of the Air Express corporation set a new transportation record for the 2,559 mile flight from Los Angeles to New York, when it landed today at Floyd Bennett field, Brooklyn, just 13 hours and 50 minutes after leaving Los Angeles. The plane, in charge of Pilot Jesse Hart and carrying 306 pounds of freight for New York, began its transcontinental journey at 7:30 p. m. [10:24 p. m. eastern standard time.] Saturday.

Hurried along by a stiff tail wind, it soared over the Rockies and pulled into Wichita, Kas., far ahead of its schedule. Pilot Russell Mossman of the eastern division of the line took over the plane at Wichita and after two stops for fuel, he landed at Floyd Bennett field at 12:24 p. m. today.

The ship used was a Lockheed Orion monoplane.

MAKES WOMEN LOSE FAT

Miss Rae M. Holmes of Dayton, Ohio, writes: "I weighed 180 so started to take Kruschen. I never was so surprised as when I weighed myself the first week—I lost 7 pounds. I just bought my 3rd jar and am down to 145—am still taking them and never felt better in my life." (June 17, 1932.)

To take off fat—take one-half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water in the morning before breakfast—cut down on pastry and fatty meats—one bottle that lasts 4 weeks costs but a few cents—get it at any drugstore in America. If this first bottle fails to convince you this is the SAFE and harmless way to lose fat—your money gladly refunded.

Don't accept anything but Kruschen because you must reduce safely.

BAR PRIMARY URGES DEFEAT OF SIX JUDGES

Confirms Results of Recent Questionnaire.

Six sitting judges of the Circuit court were refused indorsement for reelection in the primary of the Chicago Bar association on renomination of judges whose terms expire in June. Results of the poll were announced yesterday.

Judges who failed to receive a majority of the votes cast, are George Fred Rush, Michael Feinberg, John R. Caverly, David M. Brothers, Harry M. Fisher and Stanley H. Klarkowski. Judge Francis S. Wilson headed the list of twenty judges.

Ballots were mailed to 4,653 members of the association. Votes were cast by 2,674 lawyers, but 33 ballots were thrown out because they were not accompanied with signature slips. The total of counted ballots was 2,641, one of the largest votes in the history of the association's primaries.

How Lawyers Voted.

Lawyers were asked whether the judges should be renominated. The vote was as follows:

CIRCUIT COURT.

Judge.	Yes.	No.	No. opinion.
Wilson [D.]	2489	64	88
Friend [R.]	2455	108	78

SUPERIOR COURT.

Prystalski [D.]	2136	272	232

[D.]—Democrat; [R.]—Republican.

While the balloting was in progress last week, Judge Thomas Taylor announced he would not be a candidate for reelection but will retire at the expiration of his term. Judge Mary Bartelme was not included in the balloting because she had previously declared her intention to retire.

Vote Upholds Questionnaire.

The vote corresponded almost exactly with a percentage rating of the qualifications of the judges fixed through compilation of replies to a questionnaire recently sent to the association's membership. The rating was sent to the attorneys in a report on the judges to guide members in casting their votes. The six judges who were defeated in the primary also were condemned in the report.

The lawyers also voted support to two proposals designed to raise the standards of the judiciary. By a vote of 2,267 to 296 lawyers expressed themselves as favoring non-partisan judicial elections, and by a vote of 2,231 to 222 they indorsed the proposal to hold all judicial elections on the first Monday in June.

Draft Bills for Legislature.

A committee of the association will draft bills on these proposals for presentation to the legislature. It is expected the bills will be presented within a month.

The ballots were sent to lawyers last Monday. The polls closed at 4 p. m. Saturday. The ballots were canvassed late into Saturday night by a committee headed by Lawrence C. Mills.

Baby Girl Abandoned on Doorstep of Home

The Warren avenue police yesterday sought to identify a baby girl who had been abandoned on the doorstep of a home at 43 North Paulina street Saturday night. Mrs. May Tiedman, who lives there, called the police and the infant was taken to St. Vincent's orphanage. The baby is about two days old and was wrapped in a faded bedspread.

DAUGHTER SEES HER FATHER KILL MOTHER AND SELF

While his 16 year old daughter, Vlasca, looked on, Charles Pechota, 38 years old, yesterday shot and fatally wounded his invalid wife, Carrie, 35 years, old, in their home at 2955 South Union avenue. He then turned his pistol on himself, inflicting wounds which caused his death. His acts were ascribed to mental derangement growing out of financial troubles.

Pechota died in Mercy hospital, some hours after the shooting. His wife, who was released from the hospital Saturday after an operation, was taken back there and died an hour after her husband.

Pechota, police learned, kept a bakery in the shop in front of his living rooms until two weeks ago, when he was forced to close it because of poor business, due to the fact that many of his customers had gone on the emergency relief rolls.

Yesterday Pechota accused his wife of having gone out with another man. As she rose from the couch where she was lying and denied his charge, he drew a pistol and shot her three times. Then he turned the gun on himself.

The daughter, Vlasca, said that her father's charges against her mother were untrue. There are three younger children.

FATALLY STRICKEN AT FURNACE.

Frank Donahue, 66 years old, 5041 Thomas street, a night watchman, died yesterday of heart disease a short time after he had been stricken while stoking the furnace in his home.

AMY JOHNSON TO JOIN MOLLISON IN RACE TO RIO

LONDON, Feb. 12.—(AP)—Amy Johnson, noted British woman flyer, plans to join her husband, Capt. J. A. Mollison, in South America, where he arrived last week after flying from England to West Africa and thence across the South Atlantic. She will make a considerable portion of the trip by air, but not, however, across the Atlantic, following the paths he has blazed.

By fast steamer she will cross to New York and from that point in her own Puss Moth plane, Desert Cloud, will fly 6,000 miles down the coast of the two Americas to Rio de Janeiro.

On the receipt of a cablegram from her husband in Rio today suggesting that she come if she could arrive by Feb. 24, she and her advisers immediately began scanning the possibility of getting to the South American city in the quickest time. The Desert Cloud has a range of only 1,600 miles, hence a trans-Atlantic flight is not feasible.

TOBACCO SHOPS WORRYING OVER 10C CIGARETS

Small Dealers Hit by New Price Cut.

Independent dealers will be forced to stop selling the popular standard brands of cigarets because of the cut to 10 cents a package by chain drug, grocery and tobacco stores, it was declared yesterday by N. J. Nelson, proprietor of the North Park pharmacy, 3300 Foster avenue.

Mr. Nelson said the new wholesale price of $4.85 a thousand, quoted Saturday in New York despatches, applied only to chain organizations which buy them in huge quantities direct from the factories and are allowed the jobber's discount.

Cost $5.01 A Thousand.

"Under the new price these so-called popular brands of cigarets will cost the independent dealer, who must buy them from jobbers, $5.01 a thousand," said Mr. Nelson. "That is 10.02 cents a package. The $4.85 price allows the chain stores a profit margin of only .3 of a cent on a package when they sell them for 10 cents. They can afford to do that, however, to attract customers for their other lines and any loss sustained in the handling of cigarets is charged to advertising.

"The price reduction will force independent dealers to stop handling these popular brands of cigarets, and without them it would hardly pay to take a city license which costs $100 a year.

Not all chain stores in Chicago have met the 10 cent level but all have reduced the price and several of the larger organizations have followed the lead of a nation-wide grocery chain in selling the popular brands at a dime a package.

Two For a Quarter.

When the "big four" tobacco companies reduced the wholesale price for these brands from $6.85 to $6 a thousand on Jan. 3, the retailers began selling them at two packages for a quarter, some going still lower and selling them for 11½ cents a package. The new wholesale price is $5.50 a thousand, which, less the jobber's discount, enables the chains to get them for $4.85 and sell them for a dime a package.

As a result of this, according to Druggist Nelson, smokers will be going to the chain drug and grocery stores instead of the independent corner drug stores or tobacco shops for their cigarets.

It is not probable that the tobacco companies will make any further reductions in the price of cigarets, for the government takes 6 cents as an excise tax on every package, leaving the manufacturer, now, 3.7 cents a package. The price and tax factors are similar to those in the beer business before prohibition. The beer tax was $6 a barrel and the retailer paid $9, leaving the brewer $3.

WOUNDED IN FIGHT, DIES.

Walter Lewkowski, 35 years old, died of a stab wound yesterday in his home at 742 East 105th street. Police are seeking Constante Maiackowski as the slayer. Police said the men fought while intoxicated in a vacant building at 10500 Corliss avenue.

BYZANTINE ART EXHIBITION WILL OPEN HERE TODAY

"Tell us therefore what thinkest thou? Is it lawful to give tribute unto Caesar or not?"

Down the ages comes the faint echo of those biblical days as a tiny coin tinkles onto a showcase in the ultra modern setting of the Jane Addams room at the Chicago Woman's club, 72 East 11th street. The coin, a Roman penny, is the smallest but far from the least interesting article displayed in connection with a two weeks' public exhibition of Byzantine art, opening today at the club.

This ancient coin, together with many of the sacred vessels, vestments, and icons in the exhibit, is the property of Aristotle Theodoracopoulos, merchant and collector of Chicago Heights. It was the same kind of coin as that which the leering Pharisees thrust into the hand of the Nazarene. On one side, still plainly discernible, is the image of Caesar at which Christ gazed when he said:

"Render therefore unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's, and unto God the things that are God's."

Nick John Matsoukas, who supervised the collection, designates as the rarest item it contains, a "mastoforion" of 100 A. D. This is a flat flask made from baked clay and bearing the figure of a martyr on one side, which was hung around the neck of the early Christians as they entered the arena to face death from wild beasts. It contained the sacrament, to be swallowed as they met their fate.

All of the paintings and other pieces are privately owned and are being exhibited in connection with two concerts to be given this week at the club by the Byzantine ensemble.

LORENZEN TO GET U. S. OFFICE, SAY MIAMI VISITORS

Chicagoans returning from Miami brought word yesterday that A. F. Lorenzen, long connected with the Illinois militia as colonel and who lives at the Congress hotel, is slated for the position of chief of the United States bureau of investigations under the Roosevelt administration, a post now held by Edgar J. Hoover. This was said to be on the authority of James A. Farley, campaign manager for Roosevelt and now regarded as chief patronage dispenser.

Friends of Mr. Lorenzen said, however, that the post he is seeking is that of minister to Cuba. He is at present on a visit to Cuba.

Lorenzen and Mrs. Elizabeth Bass, who has first claim to the position of collector of internal revenue, were the leaders of the Roosevelt pre-convention campaign in Chicago and Illinois. Mrs. Bass has been honorary vice chairman of the Democratic national committee since 1920, under a life appointment, and she and Mr. Lorenzen were Roosevelt's advisers in the middle west. Gov. Roosevelt called them to Albany for a conference after his nomination and since the election they have been in constant communication with the President elect. Friends of Mrs. Bass say she may be called to Washington by Roosevelt if she decides not to take the office as collector.

DISCOVER SON OF ATTORNEY QUIRK, WHO KILLED SELF

Arthur Quirk, 17 years old, whom police had been seeking since his father, Attorney Charles B. Quirk, 223 South Grove avenue, Oak Park, committed suicide Dec. 8 by inhaling motor fumes, was found yesterday.

Young Quirk, who has been working under an assumed name in an Oak Park grocery, told police that at the time the search for him was started he was working in a chili parlor half a block from the Chicago avenue police station and frequently delivered chili to the police there.

"I didn't know about my father's death until today," he explained. "I was working fourteen hours a day and didn't have time to read the papers." Young Quirk would not explain why he left home. His mother testified at the inquest into the father's death that Attorney Quirk had been despondent over his son's disappearance.

O'BRIEN ARRIVES FROM PRISON; TO RESUME POLITICS

Lawrence C. O'Brien, former state representative, was welcomed home from prison yesterday by a crowd that greeted him as he stepped off a train at the Dearborn street station. Another reception awaited him at his home, 71 East Cedar street.

The ex-legislator, who served fourteen months in Leavenworth penitentiary for income tax fraud, appeared to be in fine physical condition and told his friends he intended to get right back into politics. He said he would take an active part in the aldermanic campaign in the 42d ward, in which he formerly was one of the Democratic leaders. He declined to say whether he would support Ald. Dorsey R. Crowe, the incumbent, with whom he was associated politically before his prison sentence.

O'Brien said he would open political headquarters at Oak and Wells streets, regardless of the fact he has lost his vote and his citizenship through his conviction.

TEACHER WIVES BOMBARD AUTHOR OF BAN ON THEM

Seeks to Reduce Idleness, Lawmaker Says.

State Representative John O. Hruby's telephone has been incessantly jingling and his mail has increased 100 per cent since he introduced a bill two weeks ago in Springfield to exclude married women from holding state or municipal jobs. Most of the communications have been protests from married teachers, of whom there are 2,913 in the Chicago public school system, according to the latest figures available.

"They think I'm a woman hater or teacher hater," Mr. Hruby asserted yesterday, "but that isn't true. My only consideration was that the bill would relieve idleness. I think places can be found for more than 25,000 persons if the bill is passed."

The measure is pending before the industrial affairs committee of the house. If it passes and becomes law, married women will leave their positions on Aug. 1.

Moot Question Many Years.

The married woman teacher has been a moot figure in education for many years. This was indicated in the Strayer survey on the Chicago public school system, made public last June, which went into the question.

"The median practice in cities of over 100,000 population," the survey report stated, "is not to employ married women as new teachers and not to discharge teachers who marry after employment. On the other hand, almost a third of the large cities do employ married women teachers, and about a third of the same group of cities require all teachers who marry to resign at once. It may be assumed that such confusion in practice reflects the lack of any sound criteria for a definite policy."

The report went on to suggest the possibility "that experience with her own children would add to the teacher's capacity for dealing with the children of others."

Maternity Leave Proposed.

Maternity leave has not been formally established in the Chicago system, although such a provision is included in amendments to rules recommended by Supt. William J. Bogan and pending before the board of education.

Mr. Bogan said that it had been the practice to place on the unassigned list the teachers expecting maternity. These teachers, if they so desire, have been reinstated without difficulty after the youngest child has reached the age of one year.

Because there has been no formal recognition of maternity as a reason for absence, it cannot be ascertained how many leaves have been granted for this cause.

Maternity Expectancy About 100.

By using the prevailing birth rate in Chicago as a measuring rod, a rough estimate of the annual expectancy of maternity among the 2,913 married women teachers may be obtained. About 225 births might be expected annually within this group by this measure.

The Strayer survey reasons that since the members of the superior classes in the population have a birth rate of about half the average, it is possible that the expectation would be nearer 100.

In 1932 there were 1,100 of the 35,000 school teachers in New York City on maternity leave.

DEMAND HIRSCH SCHOOL BE MADE A SENIOR HIGH

A demand for immedia conversion of the Hirsch Junior High school into a senior high school, to meet the pressing need for an institution of that class in the south shore district was made yesterday at a massmeeting in the Shore theater, 75th street and Essex avenue, under auspices of the East 75th Street Business association.

Attending were 500 members of the South Shore Parents' association and representatives of other civic organizations. James Ryan, Democratic ward committeeman, said the proposal would be brought to the attention of the city council and board of education.

Herbert O. Brown, secretary of the business association, said a petition bearing 16,000 signatures would accompany the formal demand for the senior high school. "We realize," he said, "that there are no funds available for building new schools. Conversion of the Hirsch school therefore is the only practical solution."

MEDICAL SCHOOL OF LOUISIANA U. WINS NEW O. K.

Members of the council on education and hospitals of the American Medical association yesterday voted unanimously to approve the rating of the medical school of Louisiana State university at a session in the Palmer house. It had been reported prior to the meeting that the council was considering dropping this school from the approved rating list.

Those who voted on the Louisiana institution were Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, secretary of the interior in the Hoover cabinet; Dr. William D. Cutter, secretary of the council, and Dr. Charles Humiston of Chicago; Dr. Reginald Fitz and Dr. F. A. Washburn of Boston; Dr. M. W. Ireland, former surgeon general of the army, of Washington; Dr. E. P. North of St. Louis, and Dr. J. S. McLester of Alabama.

The council session was in advance of the 29th annual session of the congress on medical education and licensure, which opens today in the hotel. Dr. Wilbur will preside at sessions of the congress, at which reports and discussions on problems of overcrowding in American medical schools and problems connected with the abuse of the term specialist by certain physicians will be held.

County Democratic Leader Found Slain, Gun Nearby

Mt. Sterling, Ill., Feb. 12.—(AP)—The body of J. E. Cronin, 38, chairman of the Brown County Democratic committee, who had been missing since Feb. 3, was found today in a grain elevator here. He had been shot through the head. A .38 caliber pistol was found nearby. Cronin had resigned Feb. 2 as manager of the elevator. W. D. Moberly, secretary of the company which operates the elevator said Cronin was $2,000 short in his accounts.

PACIFIST SECT, WEARY OF CHACO WAR, WOULD MOVE

PUERTO CASADO, Paraguay, Feb. 12.—(AP)—Five thousand Mennonites want to leave the embattled Chaco, where in five years they have brought under cultivation 75,000 acres of wilderness. They are looking for 250,000 acres in Uruguay of southern Brazil, where they can escape the boundary conflict between Paraguay and Bolivia and where the land is better suited for the wheat farming they practised in the United States, Canada, Germany, Russia, and Manchuria.

They want to establish a new federation of communities where they may name their own officials and judges, conduct their own schools and escape the military service which is anathema to every disciple of Menno Simon. Paraguay deplores the prospective departure of the diligent, sturdy farmers and their families. Since the first contingent was welcomed to the Chaco in 1927, thirty towns and mainly productive fields have sprung up in a waste spotted previously only by cattle ranges and thatched military outposts.

The government passed a special law enabling the Mennonites to govern themselves and exempting them from army service. But they are weary of seeing their fattest cattle and their finest crops requisitioned for the troops, tired of having their fields fought over by armies and they are in anguish over bombardments by Bolivian airplanes.

COLLECT TAXES.

Judge Jarecki's announcement that he will at once overrule remaining objections to the collection of the unpaid assessments of 1928, 1929 and 1930 is welcome news. Judge Jarecki and County Treasurer McDonough are now in a position to act with vigor for the collection of taxes and ought to do so for the sake of the community. Legal obstructions have been cleared away and it is of importance that taxing bodies know with as little delay as possible what taxes are collectible and therefore what funds they may actually count upon and what retrenchments they must make. At the present moment every budget maker is up in the air. He knows neither what is behind him nor what is before him. Collectible taxes have not been collected. Teachers and other public servants remain unpaid for lack of funds which can be collected by vigorous enforcement of law, and the public credit has about disappeared. Taxpayers have just complaint against overtaxation, but the tax strikers have no color of right to declare themselves another privileged class at the expense of the citizens who have paid their taxes. Up to the present, taxpayers who have paid their dues are also paying for taxpayers who can but will not pay. The situation is worse than it need be and should be clarified as soon and as fully as possible. This calls first of all for a showdown on available taxes.

BETTER JUDICIAL SELECTION.

A recent questionnaire submitted to the California bar will interest Chicago lawyers who are giving attention to the problem of a better judiciary. Summarizing the results of the questionnaire, the report says:

"The bar, on its vote on the several alternative propositions concerning the methods of selection and tenure, expressed a very decided disapproval of both the present method of selection of judges and the present tenure of office of judges. Moreover, a majority, though not a large one, voted in the aggregate either for judicial tenure for good behavior or for judicial tenure for good behavior after a probationary term. And it appears to be almost certain (from the fact that three-fourths of the vote was divided between appointment of judges and nomination of judges by the bar) that a decided majority would definitely support some method of judicial appointment."

However, only 41.6 per cent of the replies favored selection of judges by appointment by some person or body to be determined upon later. About 25 per cent favored the present method. It is to be expected that the profession would show a larger percentage for appointment than the general body of voters and a larger percentage still, probably, than the political organizations would give. The pressure for reform may not be as strong in California as in Illinois, but we suggest that the results of the questionnaire indicate the expediency of devising some improvement over the present system which will reduce to a minimum the popular objection to appointment and which will respect the popular instinct for retaining some control over the judicial personnel. The solution will have to be a compromise between ideal theory and practical political considerations.

OVERCONFIDENCE.

President Shouse of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment has done well to warn friends of repeal against overconfidence. Enthusiasts in constant association are only too likely to be unduly optimistic and to underestimate the strength of their opponents. The 18th amendment has not started on its way to repeal. Even the Volstead act is as yet untouched. There is controversy over the form of the repealing amendment and the chief proposal includes a provision which if accepted would leave untouched the constitutional defect of the 18th amendment and perpetuate many of the worst effects of federal intervention in state government. Meanwhile modification of the Volstead act has raised strenuous controversy over terms and scope, and all these differences will be taken full advantage of to postpone if not defeat itself. Even in wet Illinois no measures have yet been enacted to rid us of our bigoted dry laws, although such measures are under consideration.

The means of delay are many, and the will to delay, to confuse and defeat, is as strong as ever with the organized zealots and the racketeers who were the backbone of the prohibition régime. The revolt of the public against the evils of that régime has reached the stage when victory is in prospect, but it is not yet achieved. The opponents of prohibition have every reason for encouragement and confidence in eventual success, but overconfidence and the relaxation of effort which overconfidence produces are not justifiable and will bring unnecessary and costly delay. Relief from prohibition is urgently needed and urgently demanded, but the machinery of relief must be actually put in motion. No time should be lost in getting it definite. This requires unabated pressure. On the threshold of success there is no excuse for resting upon our arms.

WISCONSIN RAISES THE PRICE OF MILK.

The Wisconsin department of agriculture in undertaking to fix the price the consumer shall pay and the farmer shall receive for milk is giving the state another long push into communism. This is none the less true because the end they seek is desirable. All agree that it is important and necessary that the producers of milk, like the producers of all life's essentials, should receive a profitable return on their investment, their labor and their time. Not many will agree that the department has arrived at the right way of accomplishing that end.

An order has been issued, based on an opinion of the attorney general that it can be enforced, which fixes a price of eight cents a delivered quart for the ordinary quality of milk and provides regulations to assure that the farmer will not receive less than $1.60 per hundred pounds for fluid milk and $1 per hundred pounds for surplus milk.

The order aims to prevent certain small dealers who have been buying from producers not members of a farm cooperative from underselling the established distributors. The distributors have cut prices to meet them and Milwaukee patrons have been enjoying milk delivered at six cents a quart, a price which does not return a profit, it is said, either to the producers or the distributors.

The small dealers say the department order will put them out of business and is the equivalent of confiscating their properties.

The action of the department of agriculture is broader than a movement to arbitrate a difference in the business of producing and distributing milk. It is based on authority assumed rather than inherent or defined. If the state now can compel the consumer to pay eight cents a quart, a later board may elect to compel him to pay 10 cents or more. An order scarcely less arbitrary might undertake to define how much or how little each family should consume each day.

The idea may be extended to other farm products or to products not of the farm. It has infinite possibilities.

The farm board covers the subject fully with one notable exception. It fails to define how or from whom the city consumer is going to get the eight cents it says he must pay for milk. If the price order results in diminished consumption the producer will find himself in a worse case than at present.

The order likely will be resisted and the probabilities are the courts will not uphold it. The cut price dealer says he will have to resist or abandon his business. Our sympathy is less with him than with the farmer, who has justice in his claim that he does not make a living from his farm and dairy. The cure for his condition lies deeper than an arbitrary state fixed price for his product.

The average city man is taxed out of his capacity to pay a decent price for milk or to enjoy many of the necessities or luxuries of life at a fair price. He pays a tax himself that empties his purse of its savings and he is deprived of work by a tax ridden employer who has so much of his income sucked a ay in government costs that he is unable to build a reserve to sustain his business over a lean year.

It is a bureaucratic practice to cover every encroachment on the citizens' rights with the guise of public good and necessity. If the people of Wisconsin can find no means of assuring a fair deal to the milk farmer except to yield to a political bureau the right to fix the price of the milk they drink or the food they eat, they will settle their milk problem at a distinct loss of their liberty.

The lean and loud voiced marchers under a red flag who harass local officials with their demands give communism no such encouragement as has the order of the department of agriculture and markets.

Editorial of the Day

WASTED TALENT.

[Cedar Rapids Gazette.]

One of the most constructive criticisms directed at the American motion picture industry as conducted by the present Hollywood régime concerns its deplorable waste of artistic talent. Wholly aside from the many able writers, actors, and other artists and technicians who are—or were before the economic bubble burst—maintained on the pay roll without being required to do anything for their money there is wasteful use of the artists and technicians who actually are used.

For example, consider Charles Laughton. Mr. Laughton in England proved himself to be an actor of great ability. Strictly speaking, he is not a stage "type," but a real actor, capable of portraying artistically many dissimilar dramatic types. Unfortunately his first important rôle in Hollywood pictures was that of a mentally unbalanced man. He played the part with consummate artistry—better, perhaps, than a rôle of that type ever has been played on the American screen. The performance attracted immediate attention throughout the country. The result is that, so far as the movie-going public is concerned, Mr. Laughton will be crazy henceforth forever. Already he has appeared in several other "insanity" rôles, all of which he has handled well. Doubtless the producers will continue to cast him as a "nut" until the fans also go insane. The desire of thousands of theatergoers to see him show his artistry in other rôles apparently is doomed to disappointment.

Other able motion picture actors and actresses have suffered similar suppression of their talents. There are, for instance, Charles Ruggles, the perennial tippler; Zasu Pitts, the inevitable think-blank; Wallace Beery, post-graduate prize fighter; George Arliss, the man who makes great men famous. These and other Hollywood artists have talent that certainly could adjust itself to new molds if given the opportunity.

That the opportunity is not given must be blamed, of course, on the "box office" viewpoint. Producers in Hollywood are firm believers in "playing a good thing" to the limit, and, in a way, no one can blame them for raking in their money if and when it's in sight. Nevertheless, it is a lamentable practice from the artistic standpoint and probably is poor business in the long run. It's a great deal like using a thousand dollar bill only as a bookmark because it makes such an excellent bookmark.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

WE DON'T SEND lace covered valentines any more on the 14th of February. They were such lovely things, all dotted around with cupids and hearts and arrows and reeking with such lovely sentiments as "Since My Heart Is Truly Thine, I Pray Thee Be My Valentine," or "I Will Call the Whole World Mine, If Thou Wilt Be My Valentine." The machine age has no use for such sweetly sentimental things. Now they would be classed under the index heading of either "Tripe" or "Baloney." Instead of valentines we send messages, either No. 6, "I think of thee almost every hour. Stop—Collect," or No. 22, "My heart is at your feet stop will you be mine stop collect." Or No. 11, "My first thought is always my dear mother stop am broke stop wire ten stop collect." Romance has certainly got a fat chance these days.

LINCOLN.

In days when souls were tried by fire
God sent a man to earth;
He came by way of muck and mire,
But he had wondrous worth.
Though famed for his humility,
His people said, A king is he,
This man of lowly birth.

The poorest brought to him their woes
And strong men loved his name;
His kindliness dismayed his foes,
And when the crowning came
For this brave knight of tenderness,
The nations wept, but who could guess
The splendor of his fame!

The years are many since he died
Who counseled love for hate;
Alas, how few could stand beside
Our King! The halls of state
Which heard him pleading for the slave
Are empty since the quiet grave
Received him consecrate.

"STAVE OFF 'FLU' with Whisky, Says London Doctor."—Headline. It's all very well for a London doctor to tell the English to ward off flu with whisky when all they've got to do is to reach out and grab a bottle of Scotch or Irish. But what about us over in these United States, with our favorite bootlegger in jail and the other one calling up and saying he's too sick to make deliveries. And he's sick with the flu, too, so maybe it's just as well.

HERR HITLER in an impassioned address said: "We will not lie to nor deceive the people"; "the two fundamentals, our soil and our people"; "the aim is to govern for the people," etc., etc. Hey, Herr Hitler, you left out a couple, "the people must rule" and "I only wish to do one thing, serve the people." Both of those go great over here, Herr Hitler, at every election. And you would do well to pronounce it "pee pul"; all our statesmen do, and the crowds just lap it up like a kitten eating cream.

GIPSY LACK.

I've never met a gipsy lad
Who had the merry knack
Of choosing things I'd like to own
To fill his scarlet pack.

The venders show me painted scarves,
And beads and fans and lace . . .
Not one of them has ever had

They play gay music now and then
That swings to fife and drum . . .
I want to buy the little songs
I used to hear you hum.

And though there are all sorts of charms
Close hidden in each pack,
No peddling lad will guarantee
That they can bring you back!

WINTER ITCH.

MOST itches are worse in winter, both those accompanied by eruptions and those that seem to itch just for the trouble they make. In spite of this tendency, one kind of itch has succeeded in keeping the name, winter itch. This is a disorder which develope in early winter, not long after the heat is turned on, and continues until the spring weather invites us into the out of doors.

There is no itching except that caused by scratching. When careful observers examine closely the itching area small pinhead elevations are noticed. The tops of these are liable to lose their skin coverings early in the course of the scratching. This is interpreted as an eruption, but not rightly so. The small elevations are merely elevations due to skin glands, or are caused by contraction of the small skin muscles that move the hairs. Scratching tears off the top skin because it is so accessible. There is no primary eruption in winter itch.

It is caused by exposure of the skin to air that is too dry and hot. How to prevent it is well known, but the remedy is expensive. If one decides to spend the winter in Florida and starts on the way, the itch will desert about the time the Ohio river is crossed.

A less expensive preventive is to spend the winter in a greenhouse among growing plants. The air conditions necessary there will cure any person of his winter itch. A cheaper method still is to take the laundry cure. The air in a modern laundry is wet enough to cure the disorder. Kitchen air is warmer and dryer than that of the laundry, yet there are people who have received satisfactory results from the kitchen cure. Keeping the temperature of the room low and properly humidifying the air suffice for many cases.

The medicinal cures are legion. Quite one hundred have been sent to me in twenty-two years by advocates whose faith was founded on performance. Each has merit and each has limitations. Most of them are salves. Any grease is soothing and protective and, being such, comforts the itching skin. Most of them contain drugs that soothe. Of the skin sedatives the phenol preparations are the most soothing. The drawback to using them is that they are poisonous and when applied to a well scratched skin may be absorbed in a dose large enough to harm the kidneys.

3. What is it that causes swellings in the eyelids, lips, soles of feet? It lasts a few days.

REPLY.

1. No. To begin with there is no such disease and, if by any chance there were, chronic appendicitis would not cause it.
2. No.
3. Urticaria, commonly called hives.

VARICOSE ULCERS.

Mrs. A. A. writes:

1. Are varicose ulcers curable?
2. What is the cause?
3. Do medicines cure them or is an operation necessary?
4. Is balsam Peru ointment good for it?
5. Where can a person buy it?

REPLY.

1. Yes.
2. Disease of the walls of the veins and consequent very poor circulation in the legs.
3. Medicines locally applied are of some service in treatment. However, the principal reliance must be put on support of the tissues.
4. Yes, about as good as any medicine.
5. Any drug store.

OPERATION NEEDED.

I. L. writes: I have uterine fibroids and I have been advised to have an operation. My husband thinks, however, if I go to Florida and lie in the sun for two hours every day for two or three months that I can be cured. Is this possible?

REPLY.

No.

DEAD TREE.

Chicago, Feb. 7.—[Friend of the People.]—In the spring of 1932 a gas leak under my front yard killed a large shade tree. At that time the gas company laid new pipe. The tree has rotted badly at the base and is likely to be blown over and cause personal injury or property damage. Please advise if I can compel the gas company to remove this tree.

J. K.

We have referred this complaint to the gas company, which will remove and replace the tree if their investigation proves that it has been killed by gas.

STOCKHOLDER'S LIABILITY.

Rock Falls, Ill., Feb. 6.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I had five shares of stock in a national bank valued at $100 per share. This bank was closed. At that time I had $186 on deposit and $100 in savings account. They assessed me $500 on the stock. I have no real estate or money to pay this assessment. Can the receiver hold the money I had on deposit to apply on the assessment?

M. H.

The bank receiver is not under Illinois statute charged with enforcing the stockholders' liability. Hence there is no direct basis for a setoff, but as a practical matter it is the usual practice to take the course described in your letter.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

MAKING A WILL.

Chicago, Feb. 6.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I made a will about a year ago and had it signed and sworn to before a notary public, but had no witnesses sign it. Would this be legal in the event of my death?

J. W.

The answer is no. Under Illinois statute two witnesses are required. We suggest that you secure a printed form from a stationer and follow the steps implied by the attestation clause. This is on the assumption that you are not prepared to employ an attorney, which is ordinarily the advisable step.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

FEBRUARY 13, 1917.

WASHINGTON.—President Wilson rejected Germany's proposal to negotiate an understanding between the two nations concerning the submarine blockade of Great Britain and France. The President replied that he would enter into no discussion with Germany until Berlin calls off ruthless submarine warfare and returns to observance of the pledges given in response to the Sussex ultimatum last May. The German proposal was presented in a memorandum submitted to Secretary of State Lansing by Dr. Ritter, the Swiss minister, now in charge of German affairs in this country. The President's reply was communicated to Dr. Ritter for transmission to Germany in a note by Secretary Lansing.

WASHINGTON.—Formal notification of the retention in Germany of the 72 American sailors brought in as prisoners on the prize ship Yarrowdale was given to the state department by Dr. Paul Ritter, Swiss minister here, acting for the German government, together with an inquiry as to the status of the crews of the German warbound ships in American harbors. Germany, Dr. Ritter said, had decided to hold the Yarrowdale prisoners until it had had definite assurance that German crews in American harbors would not be held or imprisoned. This development, wholly unexpected, was amazing to the American government. Officials here had come to the conclusion that the early reports, which misled the German government as to the treatment of German crews here, had been effectually dispelled by the forwarding of complete details. A query was at once cabled to the governor at Hawaii, the only section where German ships are warbound where all the conditions are not known. Eventual release of the Yarrowdale prisoners is regarded as assured, but an urgent protest against their reimprisonment will be made at once.

STOCKHOLM.—Food conditions in Germany have greatly changed for the worse in the last five months. The correspondent of the Associated Press, who has been away from Germany since the first week in August, has just returned from a stay of three weeks in Berlin. He found that many staples of food had altogether disappeared from the markets, others had grown so dear that they are beyond the reach of any but the well-to-do, the daily allowance of potatoes has been reduced to ten ounces, and that either a shortage of flour or a disordered distribution of it among the bakers had resulted in long queues of buyers standing for hours in front of the bakeries.

WASHINGTON.—Suspicion that German agents are promoting activities in Mexico which might develop into a flank move against the United States if this nation becomes involved in war with Germany was increased today. The Mexican government's representative here delivered to Secretary of State Lansing a memorial to the

DUPLICATION OF SERVICE.

Chicago, Feb. 6.—Here are some train schedules that may be of interest to you:

Lv. Chgo.	Ar. St. L.	Train.	R. R.
11:25 a. m.	5:55 p. m.	La Salle	C. & E. I.
11:45 a. m.	6:15 p. m.	Daylight	I. C.
11:30 a. m.	6:00 p. m.	Alton Ltd.	C. & A.
11:30 a. m.	6:00 p. m.	B. Diner Ltd.	Wabash
11:55 p. m.	7:21 a. m.	Dearborn	C. & E. I.
11:55 p. m.	7:38 a. m.	Diamond	I. C.
11:59 p. m.	7:43 a. m.	Midnight Spl.	C. & A.
11:50 p. m.	7:15 a. m.	No. 17	Wabash

It would seem that "public convenience and necessity," as emphasized by the interstate commerce act, would be better served by separating these trains a bit instead of grouping four trains within twenty minutes of each other at noon and four trains within nine minutes of each other at midnight.

One can always get a seat or a berth on any one of them, and there is no substantial difference in the trains or the scenery en route. Under the policy of grouping earnings by districts, as contemplated by the act, when a passenger buys transportation on one of these trains he is paying for transportation on all four of them.

As a further example, the New York-Florida Ltd. and the Florida Special leave Miami at 9 p. m. and 1 a. m. over the Seaboard Air Line and Atlantic Coast Line, respectively. The Pullmans from both these trains arrive at New York at 9:20 a. m., the trains having been consolidated at Washington.

The Floridan and Dixie Limited leave Chicago at 2:30 p. m., the former on Sundays, Tuesdays, and Thursdays, and the latter on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Saturdays. South and east of Albany, Ga., they form a daily train over the lines of the Central of Georgia. Two organizations must solicit for what is really only one train, with consequent confusion to the public. H. A.

DICKENS' BIRTHDAY.

Chicago, Feb. 9.—In the year 1812 on the seventh day of February there came into the world a personality who was destined to be a dominant influence in the lives of many generations all over the world, many of whose masterpieces were destined to be immortal, as such worldly things go. The writer in question was none other than Charles Dickens, beloved of the poor; and how he would wield his every talent for the forgotten man were he alive today! Yes, his birthday has come and gone and never a salient appreciation of him in our literary columns.

Are we ignoring the gentleman because he happened to be English? Surely literary appreciation transcends such petty prejudices. JOHN J. DUFFY.

THE UNWISDOM OF TELLING THE TRUTH.

Chicago, Feb. 7.—In the article of Jan. 29 by Philip Hampson it is stated that Billings Memorial hospital is one of those granted tax exemption under the state law. On Jan. 25 I applied to the clinic at the Billings hospital for medical aid. After finding that I was without income and unable to pay I was told plainly:

"We do not care to take arthritis patients, even at reduced rates, because there is nothing we can do for them anyway!"

Charity? I wasn't even given encouragement. BROKE.

REFERRED TO DR. EVANS.

Riverside, Ill., Feb. 9.—Help! My ears are cold! Can't the technocrats straighten the earth's axis or bring the sun a little closer? JOHN OWEN THOMAS.

BETTER SELECTION OF JUDGES.

Chicago, Feb. 9.—The Tribune editorial on "Better Selection of Judges" is discerning, conservative, and sane. If people rarely surrenders voluntarily power once obtained. It is highly improbable that popular election of judges in Illinois will ever be done away with, nor should it be otherwise, for a real democracy must ever stand upon its base rather than upon its apex.

Massachusetts, Connecticut, and other eastern states have an appointive judiciary and there this mode has worked well. New York has an elective judiciary and there it has worked fairly well because the judges of the higher courts are elected for a long term [17 years] and do not have to begin scrambling to get back soon after they get in. Illinois has not fared so badly under an elective system. But as in New York City, so in Chicago and in other large cities, popular election of judges is not an unqualified success. It is the big city vote, the large number of judges elected therein, and the political control of judicial nominations that constitute a serious problem in the administration of justice.

Might it not be that some union of the two modes of selecting judges can be adopted with the benefits of each? Why not place in the hands of the governor of the state the power to appoint, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, one-third of the judges of the Superior court of Cook county, the Circuit courts of the state, and the Municipal court of Chicago? This would mean the appointment by the governor, outside of Cook county, of 17 judges, and in Cook county, including the city of Chicago, 29 judges. The appointment of this number of judges by the governor need not fall in a single year of his administration.

In this way it is suggested that many lawyers, eminently fitted for the bench but who do not care to compete for it and to seek the support of political bosses, might be named as judges. And whenever, in such a tidal wave as we had last November, tried and able judges were swept under, such men, irrespective of their party politics, might be restored to the bench. In either of these cases bar associations might be expected to have more influence than they now have.

Dean, the John Marshall Law School.

HOMONYMS.

Berwyn, Ill., Feb. 8.—In The Tribune of Feb. 7 I noticed an article stating that in the future there will be no stenographers because machines will be invented which will transcribe spoken words into printed words.

Science has and will continue to do wonderful things, but when some of these people with story book imaginations begin to predict the impossible it makes my blood boil.

There are countless numbers of words in the English language which are pronounced exactly the same but which can be spelled differently and have different meanings. For example, heir and air, read and red, Hughes and use and youse, etc., etc.

As an electrical and mechanical engineer I know that a machine can be invented which will transcribe spoken letters of the alphabet into printed letters, but no machine has been or ever will be invented which will have human reasoning powers and be able to distinguish between words which are pronounced exactly the same.

BOY AND SISTER KILLED AS AUTO HITS STREET CAR

Four Others Escape as Car Overturns.

Daniel Hammerstone, 17 years old, and his sister, Marie, 16 years old, both of 5019 Irving Park boulevard, were fatally injured last night when the automobile in which they were riding sidewiped a Milwaukee avenue street car at Kilbourne avenue. Both died at the Belmont hospital. Marie was a student at Schurz High school

The automobile was driven by Walter Otto, their brother-in-law, who also lives at the Irving Park boulevard address. Otto and three other passengers in the car escaped serious injury

Crash Overturns Auto.

The others in the car were Mrs. Esther Otto, 22 years old, and George Hammerstone, 12, sister and brother of the two victims, and William Thorgerson, 16. They were on their way to the Northwest tabernacle, 3550 North avenue. The automobile, going south, turned over after striking the northbound street.

Otto told the Albany Park police that the accident occurred when the machine hit a ridge of packed snow as he was driving on Milwaukee avenue, causing it to slide into the side of a north bound street car.

These deaths and one other yesterday followed a period of several days in which there were no automobile fatalities in Cook county. It was estimated, on the basis of an average of two traffic deaths a day at this time of the year, that last Tuesday's blizzard and the subzero weather which followed had resulted in the saving of ten to a dozen lives.

Snow Cuts Down Speed.

The absence of casualty reports was attributed to the fact that a large number of motorists left their cars at home, while others were forced to drive slowly.

The third victim of the day was Peter Nicholas, 74 years old, of 3202 South Ashland avenue, who died in the county hospital of injuries suffered on Friday.

The three deaths increased the Cook county motor toll for 1933 to 99.

300 Taken in Booze Raids to Be Arraigned Tomorrow

Nearly 300 men who were arrested in moonshine dens in the flophouse district on the near west side Saturday will be arraigned tomorrow in the Des Plaines street court. Nine places were raided in the Des Plaines, Maxwell street, and Warren avenue districts on orders of Police Commissioner Allman, and about 30,000 bottles of "derail," a cheap alcoholic concoction, were confiscated.

COUNTY OFFICERS' SUIT TO COLLECT PAY UP THIS WEEK

Waukesha, Wis., Feb. 12.—[Special.]—Circuit Judge Clayton Van Pelt of Fond du Lac will come here this week to preside in the suit brought by Waukesha county elected officers against the county for the recovery of the full amount of their salaries for the present two year term.

At Juneau Saturday Judge Charles M. Davison, who has jurisdiction in this district, refused to hear the case. He said his decision, no matter how fair, would be criticised.

"If I decided in favor of the county the officers would say I was siding against them, and vice versa. It is as much the duty of a judge to maintain confidence in the courts as it is to decide questions of law," he said.

Judge Davison's refusal to sit may result in a compromise agreement between the county and its officers to accept a 10 or 15 per cent cut instead of 35 per cent as ordered by the county board in December. If officers agree to a smaller reduction a special session of the board will quite likely be called.

T. T. Cronin, attorney for the plaintiffs, said he believed they were willing to compromise.

CHILD STRUCK BY AUTO DIES.

Evansville, Ind., Feb. 12.—[Special.]—Alvin Reinhardt, 7, struck by an automobile yesterday while coasting, died today. He suffered a fractured skull and a spinal injury.

THREE CHILDREN BURN TO DEATH; FATHER IN CRITICAL CONDITION

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 12.—(AP)—Three children burned to death and their father was burned critically early today when fire destroyed their home here.

The dead are Norma Jean, 3; Mary Louis, 2, and William Thomas, 1, children of Mr. and Mrs. Lucien Boone. They lived on the second floor of a two story brick building, the lower part of which was occupied by business stores.

The 26 year old father was carried from the burning building by Police Corporal Joseph Walling. The children were dead when firemen reached them. The mother, Mrs. Mary Boone, 24, had been in Chicago since Thursday.

British Plane Works Gets Biggest Order Since War

(Copyright, 1933, By the New York Times.)

LONDON, Feb. 12.—A big mystery aircraft order is keeping Short's Sea plane works at Rochester "busier than at any time since the armistice," Oswald Short, the director, announces. Addressing his employes, he said that as a result of the order the city of Rochester would experience "a miniature trade boom."

CUBAN VETERANS ANGRY; PENSION MONEY UNPAID

HAVANA, Cuba, Feb. 12.—(AP)—A report from Santiago today said veterans of Cuba's war for independence in Oriente province were considering marching on the capital to protest nonpayment of pensions. Maj. Pascual Diaz Lopez, resident of Guantanamo, the report said, heads the movement, which has received the support of veterans in Santiago, Songo Palma Soriano, Victoria De Las Tunas and other cities.

Havana's newspaper reading public today got its first inkling of reports current abroad that a revolution is imminent in Cuba when censors allowed Heraldo De Cuba to publish a statement from Secretary of State Ferrara that all is quiet in the interior of Cuba.

Dispatches from Miami and Mexico City giving accounts of plans allegedly made by Cuban exiles abroad to attempt to overthrow the administration have been banned entirely by the military censors. Confident that the alleged coup by the government's opponents has been postponed because plans have leaked out, authorities continued to view with equanimity reports from the interior that small groups of armed rebels are being formed.

BUYS A NEW BUGGY; VOWS HE WILL RIDE BACK TO PROSPERITY

Mount Sterling, Ill., Feb. 12.—[Special.]—Bill Leeper has a brand new buggy. It is exciting comment throughout Brown county, where the last new vehicle of this sort was seen long before the war. Leeper says he discovered a fellow over in Indiana who believes the auto has seen its best days and the good old hoss and shay are coming into their own again. He made up an extra heavy type, one inch rubber tires, tasseled canopy and all. And the thing that surprised Leeper is that he had to pay just as much for his buggy as if he'd bought it thirty years ago.

"I'm ridin' back to prosperity in this" he tells the folks.

Another sign that the horse is coming back for farm power is the action of a group of business men in Palmyra, Mo. They bought a 4 year old Percheron stallion which they'll let farmers use for sire virtually at cost.

"We didn't get the horse as an investment for ourselve, but more to furnish the farmers of Marion county some good stock at a low price," says one of the group.

An empty deposit box doesn't mean you cannot BORROW

Your usual avenue for borrowing money for personal needs may have been closed to you during the past year or two.

Lines of credit have been withdrawn; stocks, bonds, and other collateral have dropped greatly in value.

Nevertheless, you probably have in your possession security which you might not have realized was good for a loan.

Have you a steady income? Are you married? Are you keeping house? Will a loan of $300 or less help you tide over an emergency or help you get out of debt?

If your answer to these questions is "Yes," then your credit for cash is good at Household, America's foremost family finance organization. You can borrow the money you need for 30, 60 or 90 days, or you may pay it back in small sums monthly over as long a period as 20 months.

Your character and ability to repay are the chief collateral required. Your furniture, which you keep in your possession, is the only other security necessary.

●

There is not the embarrassment of asking an outsider to sign your note; signatures of husband and wife are enough. Your integrity is respected; the only investigations made are the questions asked of you.

You will be charged no more for this retail loan service than you pay other retailers for their time, effort, and overhead expense.

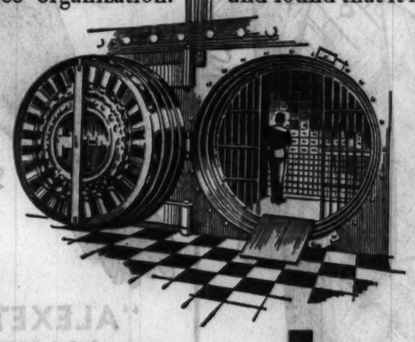
Many thousands who have previously borrowed only from banks have looked into the Household Loan Plan in the past few months and found that it meets their needs.



Your inquiry will be welcomed, and full information freely given at any of the 154 Household offices, the nearest of which is listed below.

Society Takes Up Badminton in Serious Way

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

Society is talking birds and shuttlecocks, rallies and smashing aces. Badminton—the net and racket sport that in general follows the rules of tennis—is the game of the moment and before another month rolls past a round of tournaments is to be played in Winnetka, Geneva, and John Norton's studio.

Revival of the old English game with an oriental and Greek ancestry started three years ago, but it wasn't until this winter that many a tired business man and weary debutante found it the perfect solution for the chronic time shortage which makes it so difficult to fit recreation into the daily scheme of living.

"Leave the office at 5. Badminton until 6:30. Time for a cocktail and dinner at 7. Only I can't beat my wife." This is the way one of the city's champions sums up its advantages.

Chicago badminton is an innovation this year, for never before, according to all reports, has there been a court in town. A couple of months ago John Norton gave part of his studio at 431 North Clark street for the purpose, his friends came in and marked off the court, and now they're spending most of their evenings and Sundays practicing for a tournament to be played next month. Mr. Norton is vacationing meantime in the Barbados. He won't be back until March 7.

To date Talbot Wegg holds the championship honors on this court, though John Root is running a close second. Others who play in town are Mrs. Root, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Maher, David M. Leavitt, John Cromlin, the Neel Flints, the Gilbert Halls, and Miss Catherine Young.

Interesting enough Mr. Norton's studio was the scene of Charles Chaplin's and Gloria Swanson's entry into motion pictures "yars and yars ago."

The second tournament this year will be played the beginning of March between Geneva and Winnetka. Last spring teams from these two blithe little towns met and played the first badminton competition run off in the midwest in many a long day. Winnetka won in Geneva and Geneva in Winnetka, both gracious hosts, indeed!

As the result of these games the north shore players organized the Winnetka Badminton club this year with A. C. Goodrich as the chairman of its directorate. Other pioneer players are on the board, among them Mr. and Mrs. Perry Dunlap Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Harve C. Badgerow, and Mrs. Goodrich.

The courts the "club" use are over at the North Shore Country Day school, where Mr. Smith is the headmaster. Still other north shore followers of the game play on Mrs. William Gold Hibbard's court.

"The best part of badminton is that it's a family affair," explained Mr. Goodrich yesterday. "Take your wife and children and nine times out of ten the youngsters will win. It's a game of skill first of all."

Winnetka's first rival, Geneva, is really the home of badminton, for it was there that interest in the game was revived year before last—just about the time that the New York Badminton club met in the New York armory to celebrate its golden anniversary. For that event four players dressed in choker collars, Prince Albert coats, and top hats played a decorous match against four young competitors in the scant athletic dress of this modern day. Meanwhile on the sidelines there was languid pouring of tea. The club was reliving its past.

The "Holly" Hunters were responsible for the Geneva revival. They learned the game in Canada. Now they are among the champions of the little Fox river town. Others out there noted for their skill in slashing the "bird" (that little cork and feather ball) are the "Mac" Stones, Mr. and Mrs. Nathan D. McClure, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Walker, the "Jack" Shaws, and the Sydney Castles.

A CHICAGO Critic's Opinion

THIS BOOK is having a powerful impact. It is being read in 16 nations by many people, with varied emotions. Who can evaluate completely a book so close to the lives of its readers? Interesting attempts have been made. We bring you one here.

FANNY BUTCHER
"CHICAGO TRIBUNE"

"Many readers may admire the seriousness of ANN VICKERS who deplored the satire and the irony in the earlier books, and may feel that with a definite veering to social indictment dissociated from caricature Mr. Lewis is fulfilling the highest destiny. . . Time is the potter that shapes the clay of reputations and it is possible that time will say that ANN VICKERS is Mr. Lewis' best book, for it is not inconceivable that it might reform the penal system of its day . . ."

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

An excellent light opera company is now in residence at the Grand Opera house, making the nights rich with romance and blithe with song. Last week it was called the "Blossom Time" company; this week it is revealed as "The Student Prince" company; and a fortnight hence I hope that it will bear another name. Its behavior is far superior to that of the typical "musical stock" organization, and I am in favor of its keeping right on with revivals of the popular classics of the lyric stage until the Century of Progress Exposition opens, or later.

This production of the much admired and long lived "Student Prince"—an anthology of song hits by the fecund Sigmund Romberg—surpasses its predecessors in two of the leading rôles and equals the best of them in most of the others. It has Allan Jones, handsome young man with a pretty tenor voice, as its Prince Karl Franz; and it has J. Charles Gilbert, who has been a perfect Schubert in "Blossom Time" for more than 1,000 performances, as its sentimental tutor. They are making new traditions in these slightly venerable characters, singing brilliantly and acting as well as need be. They are new to the piece, but their lack of seasoning would not be guessed from their conduct at last night's première.

Gertrude Lang, who appears as the rathskeller Kathie to whom the princely student [who never cracked a book, apparently, while a Heidelberg collegian] sings "Deep in my heart, dear, there is a dream of you," She is an experienced trouper of the "Student Prince" tours, and is generally regarded as the best of its heroines, for she is a spry and comely Gretchen, with an abundance of that good old Rhenish gemuethlichkeit in her manner and a voice that recalls Trentini's.

This trio of gifted operetta singers is supplemented, on the comedy side, by the impressive and vehement caricaturist named George Hassell, playing the rôle of Lutz, the royal snob of a valet, in a diverting imitation of an effeminate turkey gobbler. He happens to be an "original"—that is to say, a survivor of the first "Student Prince" company to see the lights of Broadway, and so may be accepted as the authentic article. Mr. Hassell is a handy man for any kind of a musical show when laughs are needed, and his method is trade-marked as his own. Perhaps because of the atmosphere of nobility in "The Student Prince," Mr. Hassell refrains from employing his favorite comic device of spraying his utterances into the ear of his opposite. Which makes him, I think, funnier than ever.

John Goldsworthy, as the prime minister; Lorraine Weimar, as an ornate grand duchess, and Manila Powers, as a marriageable princess, add effective characterizations to the performance. Charles Chesney will be recognized as a "Student Prince" specialist with his sprightly treatment of the character of Detlaff, ringleader of the students' corps that "pledges" the heir to the throne of Karlsberg. By the way, the true name of that fraternity, which is not mentioned in the dialogue, is "Saxo-Borussia." I remember it from Richard Mansfield's performances of "Old Heidelberg," upon which this libretto is based.

The performance moves with spirit; the score caresses the ear, and the indispensable male chorus, in full force, waves its steins and trolls out its Teutonic glees in the good old way.

See McCormack a Music Legend in Future Ages

BY EDWARD MOORE.

John McCormack paused on his tour from the Atlantic to the Pacific to give a recital at Orchestra hall yesterday afternoon, saying during the intermission that he would be back at least for the opening of A Century of Progress exposition because he wanted to sing "The Star Spangled Banner" at its inauguration.

This is probably the first definite musical news issued in connection with the exposition. It is also good news.

Some day in the future, when the present century has become a matter of history, John McCormack will without doubt be cited as an Irish legend. I hope that, under the circumstances, this record may also be quoted as one of his claims to legendary prominence for his services in making the English language popular in the art of song. For the leading compliment that can be paid to a singer of English in these days is that his clarity comes somewhere near approaching that of McCormack.

Not that he does not sing other languages as well. His German is a marvel of what German should be in song; his Italian is enough to make the Italians jealous. These he proved yesterday. But his English is beyond all telling a model to all singers of all times. There were ancient songs, Haydn, Handel, such living composers as Sir Edward Elgar on his program, not to speak of his Irish group and his collection of ballads. In them all he told a story. He turned a musical phrase in a way to bring tears to the eyes, he projected his words in a way to awaken the attention and to delight the soul. It was one of the many reasons why John McCormack stands in the front rank of singers.

The Woman's Symphony orchestra appeared again at the Drake hotel late yesterday afternoon before a large audience and to plenty of applause. All of this was well deserved. Working under the handicap of a difficult musical season, these young women have been doing something definite for the cause of music in Chicago, and not only definite but rather fine.

Conductor Ebba Sundstrom put herself well in the background. Having conducted the overture to "Le Roi d'Ys," she took the secondary position of conducting the accompaniment for the solo performance of Alexander Bloch, a brilliant violinist who made a great effect with the Beethoven Concerto. Later Mr. Bloch conducted Wagner's "Siegfried Idyll" and Liszt's "Les Preludes" with musicianship and force, completing the verdict as to the merits of the orchestra.

In commemoration of the 50th anniversary of the death of Richard Wagner, Sigrid Onegin will include his "Traeume" in her recital program at Orchestra hall tonight.

Chicago Girls Enjoy Good Times at Dartmouth Winter Carnival

BY JUDITH CASS.

THERE are few things that a debutante or a subdeb enjoys more than a party in Chicago and they are the winter carnival at Dartmouth, the junior prom at Yale, and house parties at Princeton.

Today 732 weary young women are returning home or to their own classrooms [with hopes of a few hours of sleep] after three days and nights of rollicking good fun at Dartmouth's 23d annual winter carnival at Hanover. And in this number is a good representation from Chicago and the north shore suburbs.

Miss Elizabeth Eckhart, the youngest of the Percy B. Eckharts' three daughters, went up on Thursday from Vassar, and Miss Gwendolyn Juergens, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Paul Juergens, went from Smith. Miss Abbie Jaques, who is studying this year at the Erskine school in Boston, was on the sidelines Saturday when Dartmouth's winter sports team led by Jack Shea, twice an Olympic victor in speed skating events, took the carnival crown for the third successive year, and so was Miss Mary Lou Hays of Wilmette, now a student at Connecticut college. Miss Hays went to the carnival as the guest of handsome young Carl True, son of the Charles P. Trues.

Other Chicago girls who received the very much coveted carnival invitations and spent the week-end dancing, skating, and skiing were Miss Elinor Griffenhagen, a freshman student at Smith; Miss Betty Clark, Miss Dorothy Darby, Miss Eleanor Reid, Miss Betty Walsh, Miss Eleanor Sims, and Miss Ethel Gordon. And among the Chicago beaux, all of whom are now at Dartmouth, were Daniel M. Schuyler, Rolland T. R. Hastings Jr., Arthur J. Bamford, William B. De Reimer, Gustavus Babson Jr., Bayard L. Catron Jr., Hal H. Nixon, Theodore V. Purcell Jr., Charles S. Cotsworth, and Harry G. Clark Jr.

Place Limit On Expenditures.

The week-end was gayer than ever, according to all reports, but the young hosts cut down, nevertheless, on a number of their expenses, limiting the number of corsages a guest received, saving on music, and making the carnival favors simpler but just as much appreciated. A few years back carnival cost a student nothing less than $200.

The same spirit of economy is going to characterize the junior proms scheduled for the end of this month at Yale and Princeton. George A. Ranney Jr., a member of the Yale prom committee, writes home that the party is to be Feb. 24, bigger and better but simpler than ever. Incidentally young Mr. Ranney has just assumed his new position as editor in chief of the Yale News, one of the most important campus positions. He was elected a year ago, but Yale tradition is that the new editor does not assume his duties until the following February.

From Princeton comes the news that there are to be no corsages and favors for prom this year. At Princeton now are Peter Fortune, who played as guard on the basketball team and tackle on the football team, Ralph Poole Jr., Peter Theurer, "Bob" Walker, Uri B. Grannis Jr., Jack Stewart, Paul Fentress, and "Bill" Cremin, among others.

Society to Attend Benefit Operas.

Three of society's hairdressers have clipped together their appointment pages for Feb. 22 and 24 and are announcing to any one who makes inquiry about these days, "We are sorry. Our time is already filled."

A Job a Day

Every little improvement we give our home right now helps us—and the other fellow, too.

Perhaps we are looking around our living room or dining room for space on which we can place a decorative bowl filled with water—to contribute some much needed moisture to our indoor air. Or better still we are looking for a shelf for one of the new vase or urn shaped portable humidifiers electrically run. Have a handy man cut a board to fit the top of the radiator and finish it in the same tone as the radiator or the room trim. This will serve as an extra table and in summer we can use the shelf for books, flowers or plants.

New Lingerie Has Price Tags That Startle

Stylish Finery Is Great Bargain Now.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Even though you are dashing about, shopping for other things, you will be dull indeed, if you do not become excited over all the lingerie with breath taking price tags, that practically every shop in town is featuring. This couldn't happen at a better time, because there is plenty of time to shop as the new spring fashions are still shyly hidden around the corner.

You can find some of the best looking combines . . . the costume slip and matching pantie duet, probably the most interesting and practical get together ever devised for the modern gal who likes frills and vanities but demands these same feminine underlayers, super smooth, flat and skin fitting.

Nearly every piece of 1933 lingerie is cut and fitted with bias seams . . . the silk and satin slips will fit without a wrinkle under your most clinging gown, the panties are brief, and also sewed with bias seams, fastened with the smallest size buttons, and tucked knowingly around the waistline. Look for the clever tailored affairs, with bound edges in contrasting colors . . . the scant silken numbers with scalloped edges and the lavishly laced models combined with flesh colored scraps of lingerie satin.

Fagoting makes a feminine bit of decoration on many pieces of lingerie . . . small bow knots, scrolls, and lacy triangles are made with pale blue silk bands fagoted together in formation with blue thread, against flesh colored silk . . . and if you like a typical French color combination try the pale lavender contrast with flesh tinted silk crêpe.

Lace trimmed combinations are the most luxurious looking bargains . . . you can buy such glories for the smallest sum you ever dreamed you would be asked to spend. There are deep rose color combinations that are especially lovely when contrasted with wide bands of bistre tinted Alencon lace, with soft satin ribbon shoulder straps and narrow hand sewn seams.

All shopping caution will depart suddenly when you discover the glamorous lace trimmed sleeping pajamas or similarly lace dripping nightgowns. New lingerie is decidedly feminine and frilly, and what a difference it does make. A new crinkled silk crêpe is called pompadour crêpe and the expertly fitted nightgowns fashioned of this material are just as sophisticated as the crinkled crêpe evening gowns that are made of the same thickly wrinkled silk.

Hand made French things are lower in price than they have been in years . . . you will be tempted with embroidered lingerie that will take your breath away with its loveliness . . . who, but a Frenchwoman would think of embroidering full blown roses around the neckline of a nightgown, roses with extra petals that are sewed on as tiny pockets to hold a small portion of sachet powder . . . or an almond green satin affair with intricately puffed sleeves that are snowed under drifts of cobwebby lace, or a luscious white shimmering satin trimmed with sun tan lace forming half a yoke and covering one shoulder while the other shoulder is made with a loop and bow of white satin ribbon . . . just a few of the ingenuous ideas imported from Paris.

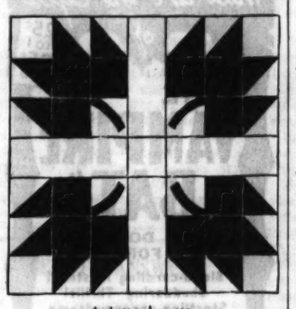
'Autumn Leaves' Design Suitable for Boy's Room



Autumn Leaves

BY NANCY CABOT.

"Autumn Leaves" is quite the prettiest of all the leaf designs for patchwork quilts. And it has grown in popularity solely on its esthetic appeal, since it is noticeably lacking in an impressive historical background. This design is particularly appropriate for a boy's room. It is properly pieced in the typical autumn leaf colors of soft, mellow yellows, oranges, and browns.

For a pattern of the "Autumn Leaves" design, send 5 cents in stamps or coin to Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, printing your name and address clearly. Or call at the Tribune Public Service Office, 1 South Dearborn street.

Good Morning!

A long time ago Martin Brown wrote a play ycleped "The Lady." Norma Talmadge appeared in a silent screen version of the same. "The Secret of Madame Blanche," also based upon the play, has little in common with its movie predecessor as I remember it, save in the facts that a show girl is the heroine, the heroine is the object of fate's cruel buffettings and the man whom she loved well was named Leonard. Leonard St. Aubyns in the first adaptation; Leonard St. John in this.

"'Sinjin' we pronounce it," says the young Englishman. "And we call 'Leicester,' 'Lester.'" He would, he tells the lovely American show girl, like so much to see the skyscrapers of New York, the Rocky mountains and Niagara Falls.

"Niffils," she corrects him demurely, "Niagara Falls, you know."

"The Secret of Madame Blanche," which takes its place in the ranks beside such mother love melodramas as "Madame X," "The Secret of Madelon Claudet," "The Strange Case of Clara Deane," and "Frisco Jenny," is Irene Dunne's first starring picture, and is a vehicle that affords ample play for the versatility that is hers. It takes her from radiant youth to hardened, though not hard boiled, middle age along a road that is rocky with heartaches and vicissitudes, and to each phase of the characterization she brings a nice understanding and a sure, workmanlike touch.

She, her supporting cast and Director Brabin manage admirably to keep alert your interest in a story that is far from new and has few surprises to offer.

See you tomorrow!

FOLLY ISLAND

By Wallace Irwin

SYNOPSIS.

Bart Burgess is marooned in a catboat on Peconic bay, fifty miles from his Long Island home in Wyattville. His companion, Ingalls Frederick Warren, spoiled child of a new-made fortune, known as "Nosey Ing," rows to town and sends Bart help and taxies home. A girl in a canoe invites Bart over to her family's island. Bart learns that she is one of the Bayleys, who have lived in seclusion on the island fifteen years. The father travels. He invites the girl, Alice, to visit him in Wyattville. Less than a week later Trevor Burgess, Bart's father, dies suddenly from a heart attack. He confesses in a letter left for Bart to being a bigamist. The Bayleys of Folly Island are his second family. They know him as Matthew Bayley. He asks Bart, for his invalid mother's sake, to guard the secret and leaves a fortune to provide for the Bayleys. Bart calls on Mrs. Bayley, posing as a lawyer, and finds her a lovely woman, not the harridan he expected. Bart is happy to learn from her mother that Alice isn't Matthew Bayley's daughter. But to keep her from visiting his home and seeing his father's pictures is now a problem. When Bart realizes he loves Alice, he resolves to stay away from Folly Island. He sees a lot of Lora Sackett, a distant relative and recent divorcee, and soon finds himself unexpectedly engaged.

INSTALLMENT XXV.

STRANGE COMEDY.

Bart saw Lora dutifully, three times a week, and was surprised at the pleasure he felt in her kisses, usually snatched in a hurry; for they were forever going somewhere, or coming back, or being interrupted by inconsidered trifles like Ingy Warren. Mrs. Burgess hadn't wanted them to announce their engagement yet, and her wish was being respected, in spite of Mrs. Lind's all too obvious desire to have it publish d in the papers and blazoned forth in a betrothal party that would make the engagement official for all Wyattville to know.

From the house to the office, from the office to Lora, from Lora home.

There was another item now in Bart's routine. Everything as it should be neatly placed. The decorum of it steadied him, but he wasn't quite satisfied when he saw that it was steadying Lora, too, at least for short spells. Then she would break out again in her slangy flights of fancy. "I'll go nerts," she'd cry, "if I can't find a dance somewhere." Since Bart wasn't dancing that year, this was where Ingy Warren came in handy for once in his life.

One morning, after a spell of this, Bart was plodding away in the New York office, attempting to master another dull formula in his business. His hour of dictation was interrupted by an office boy. He la' down one of "My own father died not so long ago and mother isn't seeing anybody."

"O!" the widow's gentle eyes all sympathy, "I didn't know that or I shouldn't——"

the Lanchester Life's business cards, made out in a smart, distinguished hand. "Mrs. Matthew Bayley."

Quietly he turned the card over in his hand, quietly he commanded. "Show her in." Then, disturbed by an afterthought, "I'll see her in the ladies' reception room." For over his desk hung another portrait of his much-photographed father.

Mrs. Bayley in New York! He strode down the corridor, outwardly the cool man of business, inwardly alarmed. Mrs. Bayley, who never came to New York, was calling on him in the Lanchester Life building. It was natural enough for her to know his office, since he had sent Alice's quarterly allowance from here. Yes, and there had been no reply, although he had tried to make his letter a little intimate.

On a deep sofa, centering the handsome Tudor room, he saw Mrs. Bayley, very trig and modish in dark summer silks. That smartly cut costume seemed to have taken years from her age. She looked like a youngish matron, just in from Southampton.

In spite of his qualms he was glad to see her again. Her gloved hand was in his, and he thought he saw a friendly rebuke in her glance.

"You wouldn't come to us, so I've come to you, you see," she said, with her delightful trace of a rolling accent.

"Well, it's certainly good to see you."

He sat down beside her. Perhaps there was a little too much of the office in his cordiality. Answering his mute question, she said, "We came in Monday. This is a dreadful spree for Alice, but the country barber has been trimming her hair so scandalously." With a bright laugh, hard to understand, "She's never had a chance to shop before, and I'm afraid it's going to her head."

Alice's hair . . . going to her head. So the prisoner was free, and Mrs. Bayley, no longer a turnkey, was rejoicing in the world she had always denied her daughter.

"Bring the boys in with you?" Carelessly.

"Yes, I'm looking over schools for them and sending them to the talkies. We're all busy as bird dogs. If Alice had her way I don't suppose we'd go back at all. Am I interrupting your work dreadfully?"

"O, I wasn't doing a thing. Just wasting time."

"It was about Alice I wanted to talk to you." One swift, anxious glance. "Bart, you were so kind once as to say you thought she'd get along well in Wyattville. She hasn't forgotten that. You've been so patient with us in everything. And I was wondering——" a pause— "if you'd like to ask her again——"

"To come to Wyattville?" Incredulously. "Mrs. Bayley, I hope you won't think I'm impertinent. But I wonder why you've changed your mind?"

Quite unruffled she replied, "Perhaps you've thought that I've been keeping her in too close confinement. But I explained to you, didn't I, that she was growing more mature? I have always planned to give her the society of young people—when I felt she was ready for it."

"And she's ready now?" Curious, Mrs. Bayley hadn't thought her ready a few weeks ago.

"O, yes. And I think Wyattville would be good for her, since her heart is so set on it."

She didn't say so, but it was plain enough that this strange woman was again proposing that her daughter visit Mrs. Burgess. As tactfully as he could Bart began fencing with Mrs. Bayley.

"Maybe I was a little thoughtless when I spoke about Wyattville to Alice. She's so—so lovely—and I know that my mother would adore her. But I'm afraid our house wouldn't be very amusing just now. My own father died not so long ago and mother isn't seeing anybody."

"O!" the widow's gentle eyes all sympathy, "I didn't know that or I shouldn't——"

"It was my fault, not telling you. Couldn't we fix it so that she could come to us next year?"

Next year! When Bart and Lora would be married and living, perhaps in a house of their own. Strange world, strange comedy.

"It's so nice of you to think of that, Bart. But I really feel that I must be getting on with Alice's social education. She's growing up so fast, she's been alone so much—with her temperament, she might do something wild. There are so many queer men around Port England—there's always danger of some messy sort of marriage, you know——"

Then gently, but with shocking suddenness, she asked, "Do you happen to know a Mr. Warren—Mr. Ingalis Warren?"

Bart smiled falsely, trying to collect his wits. Then he said:

"Yes. The Warrens are neighbors of ours."

"He said you were friends. He had such a lot of nice things to say about you."

"But where did you run into Ingy Warren?"

Girl Wonders if 'Tis Wise Always to Be Available

BY DORIS BLAKE.

The question of whether it is advisable not to be "free" for every suggested date concerns some of our young women.

They meet a boy. He invites them out. The girl becomes quite enamored. The boy doesn't declare himself in terms of love or marriage. The girl, however, is willing to sacrifice every other invitation because this one boy is her favorite. Now comes the question of whether it wouldn't be wise, once in a while, not to be free for the preferred boy's proffered date.

"Arelene's" is a case in hand. She's been seeing the boy a couple of times a month on invitations from him. He doesn't express himself one way or the other.

"Arelene" asks: "Do you think it wise to accept every date the boy offers, or shall I have him believe I go out with others?"

It would depend on whether the boy was taking other girls out: whether he was in a position to talk seriously or not—and on the type of boy. If he were a popular man himself, or if he were pretty sure of himself with the girls it would be better not to be always available for his invitations, perhaps.

In fact, with a good many young men a girl's desirability to him is gauged by her desirability in other men's eyes. The same trait, in fact, that persuades girls into liking certain boys [because other girls find them charming]. However, you can overplay this act. But we don't think it wise to eliminate all other prospects from the scene entirely until one has reason to believe that her future is secure in the steady escort.

Childhood Is Best Time to Learn Neatness

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

To some people orderliness is very necessary. One such mother, who is not naturally orderly, expressed herself this way the other day:

"You can teach your small John and Jane to be orderly quite easily when they are tiny. Orderliness is a hard habit to acquire after one has grown up, and it is such a relief to the nervous system. Many people through their entire lives frazzle their own nerves and the nerves of their associates through never knowing where things are.

"One mother at a study group told how she had trained her little girl to—

"Many children have the habit of asking their mothers, 'Where is my this and where is my that?' be orderly. 'From the time Sally was 5 years old,' she said, 'I determined that she should be orderly. I had a box in her room where she kept her toys, and when she finished playing with them we always put them all back. After a while Sally put them all back by herself. For her clothes I had low drawers and hooks and taught her to keep things where they belonged. She enjoyed her own room, which I tried to make as bright and attractive as possible, and when she was 7 Sally kept it in order all by herself, except for real cleaning. Really, it has been so easy to teach her to be orderly that I can't see why every child shouldn't be so.

"Of course, any one could tell that this mother was a naturally orderly person, who was a constant example to her child and to whom order was second nature. But I know another mother who was not orderly herself and she decided that her little girl wasn't going to be so handicapped. She used the same idea—having places for the little girl's things which she could reach easily, and helping her less and less, so that by the time she was ready to go to kindergarten she was really an independent, orderly little person."

opera to the old Auditorium with all of the glamour and interest of days gone by, Chicago's patrons of music are preparing early to hear Mme. Jeritza in the title rôle of "Tosca." The woman's board of the Presbyterian hospital is sponsoring the two performances on the 22d and 24th as its first public benefit in a quarter of a century.

Mrs. C. Frederic Childs, president of this board, is to occupy the center box in the lower tier on both evenings. To her right on the night of Feb. 22 will be Mrs. Frederick T. Haskell in the box that she occupied for so many of her brilliant triumphs of former days, and to her left will be Mrs. James Simpson with a party of friends. Mrs. George R. Nichols, who has taken another box nearby, plans to entertain several of the past presidents of the hospital board at the first performance.

Several members of society interested particularly in the arts and crafts are assisting the American Union of Decorative Artists and Craftsmen in their plans for the Audac building at A Century of Progress. This building, according to Mrs. Helen Jenkins Masters who is one of the active committee members, is to be located near 30th street on the lake and will be devoted entirely to artistic exhibits, many of them perhaps by groups such as the Antiquarians or the Needlework guild.

Last of Benefits for Girl Scouts.

Chicago's Girl Scouts, in their green uniforms, will usher this evening when the last of the series of concerts presented for their benefit is given by Sigrid Onegin at Orchestra hall.

This afternoon a marriage of interest to many Chicagoans will be solemnized in Morristown, N. J., when Miss Aline Wise Macy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Josiah Macy of Morristown, weds Hovey C. Clark, son of the late Judge and Mrs. Thomas C. Clark of Evanston. The ceremony will be read by Dr. Donald Brookman in St. Peter's church, Morristown. It will be followed by a reception at the Whippany River club.

Miss Macy, a descendant of Thomas Macy, one of the first white settlers on the Island of Nantucket, is to have her sister, Miss Elizabeth W. Macy, for her maid of honor, and Mr. Clark's sister, Mrs. Geoffrey R. Bennett, for matron of honor. Thomas C. Clark of Winnetka will serve his brother as best man.

The bridegroom's father was for years the presiding justice of the Appellate branch of the Superior court here. His paternal grandfather was Hobart Clark, the first president of the Boston and Maine railroad. On the maternal side his grandfather was Gen. Charles E. Smith, who commanded the 11th Michigan cavalry during the civil war, retiring as brigadier general.

Viscontis Will Sail Saturday.

Society will bid Count and Countess Visconti di Madrone a reluctant farewell the middle of this week, for they are sailing next Saturday on the Conte di Savoia for their home near Milan. They have been in Chicago since the Christmas holidays visiting the parents of Countess Visconti, the Warren Fairbanks of 1500 Lake Shore drive.

Young Count Borromeo, who made the trip across with them and is now in California, will not accompany them on their return voyage. He plans to be in Chicago, however, Wednesday or Thursday of this week.

Now that Miss Florence Dibell Bartlett has told the members of the Chicago College club all about "Enchanting Mallorca" [this was Saturday evening], she is ready to leave for a three months' vacation on her New Mexico ranch.

Mr. and Mrs. Vail R. Bucklin are leaving for California tonight to spend six weeks on their Glendora ranch. Miss Gene Bucklin, their daughter, will practice housekeeping during their absence and look after her young brother, Rhodes.

Mr. and Mrs. Niblack Thorne will leave Wednesday for Des Moines, where they will make their home until next fall when they will return to Chicago.

Holds Tea for Friends of Music.

Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, who returned Saturday from an eastern holiday, resumed her work for the Friends of Music yesterday at the tea Mrs. Frederic W. Upham gave at her home at 1260 Astor street. Mrs. Upham explained that she chose Sunday for the tea, which turned out to be more of a business meeting than a social occasion, so that Russell Tyson and George Lytton wouldn't have to sit on the edges of their chairs and worry about getting back to their offices.

Others at yesterday's meeting were Mrs. Arthur Meeker, Mrs. Francis J. Johnson, Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, and Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy.

Today Mrs. Orville J. Taylor is having the Italian workers for Chicago's Temple of Music to tea at her apartment at 219 Lake Shore drive. Dr. Giuseppe Castruccio, the Italian consul, will be there, and so will Mrs. Joseph Foravia, president of the Italian Woman's club, and Miss Rose Marie Casella, president of the Junior Italian Woman's club.

Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank will speak at this gathering and then hurry over to speak again at the tea Mrs. Catharine Bartholomay Osborne is giving for the Hungarian group of the Friends of Music at her home in State parkway. Judge and Mrs. Theodore Brentano will be among the guests.

Miss Lucy Martin is giving a luncheon today for Count Serge de Fleury at the Arts club. Herman Gade, who is in Chicago with the Charles Garfield Kings, will be among the guests.

Plan Surprises at Army Benefit.

As Washington's birthday draws nearer plans for the dance and card party to be given by Gen. and Mrs. Frank Parker and the other officers of the regular army with their ladies in the rooms at the Army and Navy club at the Lake Shore Athletic club are nearing competion.

In addition to dancing and bridge, Mrs. Harry D. Mitchell announced yesterday that there will be interesting surprises throughout the evening.

Mrs. William H. Hubbard of Lake Forest, president of Chicago branch, No. 16 of the Army Relief society which is to benefit by the proceeds, is one of Mrs. Mitchell's hard working assistants.

Numerous dinner parties are being planned to precede the radio ball to be given by the Women's Guild and Auxiliary of Christ church in Winnetka at the parish house tomorrow night. Hill Blackett is in charge of arranging the entertainment and he has promised a galaxy of radio stars. Mrs. Ralph Sargent is chairman of the committee on arrangements.

Vassar alumnæ are to meet at 12:30 o'clock today at the Vassar house restaurant, 540 North Michigan avenue, to deside what contribution they will make to A Century of Progress.

Tea to Follow Dutch Program.

Mrs. Americus F. Callahan, Mrs. Thatcher Hoyt, and Mrs. W. A. Wieboldt will be hostesses this afternoon at the tea which will follow the Dutch music program to be presented by the active members of the Lakeview Musical society.

There's to be a real live goose in the window of the Kenwood Social Service club thrift shop at 1461 East 55th street today in announcement of the golden goose tea from 4 to 6 this afternoon. But the members haven't promised that the goose will lay a golden egg.

Mrs. Edward T. Jeffery of 1344 Astor street will have another "at home" at 10:45 o'clock this morning. Miss Julie R. Adams is to talk on the interesting topic, "India Again."

Mr. and Mrs. Harold E. Newman of Oak Park gave a surprise party last night for Mr. Newman's parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. N. Newman, who were celebrating their golden wedding anniversary. Mrs. E. T. Peterson, a daughter, and her husband were there, and also another daughter, Miss Gertrude Newman.

Engaged

Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Enchelmayer of Glencoe announce the engagement of their daughter, Dorothy, to John F. Rower, son of Mrs. B. Rower, also of Glencoe.

BY MARY MEADE.

Not all the royal favorites in the courts of brave kings and fair queens of old were clothed in silks and sables. There were those—and many of them—who wore feathers and greeted the dawn and cheered their royal patron's hearts with clucks and chanticleer crowings.

King Henry the Fourth, for instance, so loved his chicken dinners that he proclaimed his own pet recipe for stewed chicken along with the wish that "every peasant might have a chicken in his pot on Sunday." He even described his favorite in an amazingly modern manner as "a succulent dish too much neglected in these days when dainty living is tending to replace the rustic cookery of the good old days" [Italics ours].

His majesty's original recipe called for much complication of ham, sweet herbs, garlic, chestnuts, and truffles. But a modern interpretation is to our tastes quite as delectable and boasts the asset of practicality. Here is Henry's chicken, modern style.

KING HENRY'S STEWED CHICKEN A LA MODERNE.

5 cups toasted, crumbled, whole wheat bread
2½ tablespoons butter
1 cup diced celery
½ teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper
3 tablespoons minced parsley
½ cup milk
Chicken giblets
1 egg, well beaten

Wash the chicken, removing any pin feathers. Brown the celery in the butter and combine with the giblets which have been put through a food chopper. Add the rest of the ingredients and use to stuff the chicken. Sew up firmly and tie the wings close to the body. Place the bird in a pot and cover it with hot water. Cook slowly over a low heat until tender. When done, lift out and serve on a hot platter with an accompaniment of Duchess potatoes, buttered carrots, and your choice of relishes and crisp salad. Make a gravy by mixing flour paste with the bouillon in which the bird was cooked.

Another ruler who liked his chicken was the little Corsican. Perhaps his victory at the battle of Marengo had other helping causes, but it is pleasant to conjecture that the day's fortunes were speeded by the succulent fried chicken Napoleon served his friends the night before the famous battle. Here is the way history reports that it was done:

CHICKEN A LA MARENGO.

1 stewing chicken
¼ cup olive oil
2 cups stock from stewed chicken
4 tablespoons flour
1 egg yolk, beaten
1 bay leaf
1 tablespoon minced parsley
Salt to taste
Dash of pepper

Cut up the chicken for stewing, cover with water, and simmer until tender. Drain from the broth, let dry a minute and then fry till golden brown in the olive oil, together with the parsley, bay leaf, and thyme. Remove when brown on both sides. Sift the flour into the pan drippings and blend till smooth, then add the chicken stock, seasoning, and the beaten egg yolk. Cook slowly until thickened, stirring constantly. Strain, if desired, and pour the gravy over the chicken on a hot serving platter.

Finally, if you would serve up your chicken in the true Napoleon style, surround it on the platter with a border of poached eggs on toast strips.

New Coiffures GoBacktoAlice in Wonderland

An illustrated booklet of Miss Donnelly's stretching exercises may be obtained by sending a stamped, self addressed envelope. Address Antoinette Donnelly, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Are we in for a spell of "binding the hair" with comb or ribbon? Rumors from the birthplace of chic tricks indicate that there'll be a race for tortoise shell combs and banding materials. The girls have been re-reading their "Alice in Wonderland" and getting "coiff" ideas from the little girl.

One internationally famed lady, it is reported, wears her hair brushed straight back off her brow, using a golden bandeau to hold it in place. This for evening wear, of course. You might rummage around in heirloom trunks and see if there might not be one of those "circular combs," as they used to call them. Brush your hair back straight and hold it there with one of these "little girl combs of long ago." If your particular brow could stand a bang, all right with this. In fact, quite charming. But you'll need a little hair on the nape of the neck to get away with this chic quaintness.

For several years we've been hearing about these accessories to the coiffure—but this time, it begins to look as if they were going to catch on. Lilyan Tashman is pinning her evening locks down at the corner of her forehead with diamond and emerald clips.

And we hear reports of the return of the very practical (though not a bit practical looking) evening cap to keep the hair in place as well as to satisfy a longing to do something that will further dress up the head.

The coiffure itself has been showing recent indications of a dressiness not known a couple of seasons back. You don't hear so much about the sleek head, any more. In fact, it is a rare head seen in a smart rendezvous these days that is not trimmed with curls or tendrils of one design or another.

At a recent hairdress showing in which a number of New York's best hairdressers exhibited, extreme simplicity was conspicuous by its absence. Curls and waves have reached a rather startling cultivation, in fact, breaking forth on the head in the most unexpected spots. So, it would seem, we're in on a new coiffure era, all right.

Sir Oliver Lodge Is Being Sought for Spirit Film

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 12.—The Paramount studio is negotiating with Sir Oliver Lodge in an attempt to bring him here for the filming of a movie, "Supernatural," which takes spiritualism for its theme. Victor and Edward Halperin, brothers, will be the producers, and they said today that the film would approach spiritualism "sympathetically."

Merian Cooper, the gentleman responsible for a long series of hair raising adventure films, beginning with "Grass," made independently; "Chang," released by Paramount, and more recently "The Dangerous Game" and "King Kong," at Radio, has been promoted to the post recently vacated by David Selznick.

Cooper becomes officially executive vice president of the Radio-RKO corporation, in charge of production. He immediately named Pandro Berman, 27, former film cutter from De Witt Clinton High school in New York, as his assistant producer, and gave Berman this sendoff: "I consider him the ablest of all Hollywood producers, regardless of age."

Lilian Harvey practices tight rope walking several days a week. Says it keeps her posture and suppleness 100 per cent. She doesn't claim to be a good tight rope walker; just learned the knack well enough, originally, to get by with tight rope scenes in a German film she was starring in.

Paris Sponsors New Three Piece Traveling Outfit

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Blues are universal this spring. They go so well with the mood of the world that fashion puts them at the top of the list of smart colors. The French blues, however, are not doleful at all. They lean toward the gay side. Even the navy blue that is shown by all the dressmakers is bright, and it is this blue that is the big blue for practical clothes.

If you are going to take a trip somewhere this spring, bright navy blue is the Paris choice for your traveling outfit. And the smartest traveling outfit is one which has a long coat, a skirt, and a troup of blouses and sweaters.

The Goupy ensemble, shown today, is one of these new three piece traveling outfits. The long coat of this model is made of bright navy blue crinkled woolen. It is a straight coat with a bolero jacket effect at the sides and back. The coat is lined with light gray caracul and has a tailored collar and revers of this fur. The collar extends just to the bottom of the bolero, and the revers are placed inside the collar.

A straight skirt of the crinkly woolen has a bias band stitched over the center front seam. The tailored blouse is made of gray satin, with a satin tie and a stitched satin belt.

MINUTE MYSTERY CAN YOU SOLVE IT?

BY H. A. RIDLEY

(Copyright: 1933: By The Chicago Tribune.)

Dr. Fordney is professor of criminology at a famous university. His advice is often sought by the police of many cities when confronted with particularly baffling cases. This problem has been taken from his case book covering hundreds of criminal investigations.

Try your wits on it! It takes but ONE MINUTE to read! Every fact and every clew necessary to its solution are in the story itself—and there is only one answer. How good a detective are you?

DEAD MAN'S BATH.

Prof. Fordney completed his examination of Merton Willard's body in the bathtub, then stepped into the bedroom. He looked around at the room's disorder. Willard's clothes lay in a heap by the bedside; socks with garters still attached were flung carelessly about, one shoe was on the floor near a whisky glass, the other on the night tables.

"Must have been VERY drunk," he soliloquized, lifting the dinner suit from the top of the pile and placing the contents of its pockets on the dresser. Picking up the dress shirt he then removed a white tie which was lying on a silk undershirt. It bore a dark stain!

"I'll take your statement now," he said to the young man who entered.

"Merton and I attended a party at the Park Plaza," Becker began. "He became very drunk and belligerent, so I induced him to come home . . . we live here together. While he sat on the bed undressing and drunkenly throwing his clothes on the floor I fixed him a drink at his insistence. He was difficult to handle, so I thought it best to humor him.

"Suddenly he decided to take a bath. I went in with him, saw him safely in the tub, then retired to my own room—disgusted. I dozed off while reading and, seeing the lights on when I awoke, investigated and found him in the tub, drowned. I——"

"Is that so? Well, I'm arresting you on suspicion," quietly stated the professor.

WHY?

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The Blackhawks defeated the Canadiens of Montreal, 2 to 0, at the Stadium before 7,700 last night in a hockey game which demonstrated why the Flying Frenchmen, once the greatest team in hockey, are now the sole tenants of the league cellar.

JOHNNY GOTTSELIG

The Canadiens, although they displayed considerable earnestness, occasioned, no doubt, by the recent bawling out their employers gave them, played more like an amateur team than the sextet which has won the Stanley cup four times. Their passing was so inept that it caused the contest to become loose and disorganized.

After the game the Canadiens' dressing room was the scene of bitter argument during which Leo Dandurand, owner of the club, fined Johnny Gagnon, a member of the famous Joliet-Morenz-Gagnon line, $200 for indifferent play.

A Good Brawl Develops.

Aside from the Hawks' two goals, the feature of the evening was a rousing struggle between Paul Thompson of the Hawks and Aurel Joliat of the Canadiens in the last minute of the game. This difference had been brewing since the second period, when the boys made motions at each other, only to be restrained by Referee Goodman.

Then with the final siren only seconds away, they became entangled near the boards and fell to the ice, with the more sizable Thompson on top. They came up swinging, and it required the combined efforts of both teams and officials to separate them. They were chaperoned to the penalty box and assessed major penalties.

The victory placed the Hawks five points behind the Boston Bruins, who will invade the Stadium Thursday night.

Hawks Finally Click.

The Canadiens took the offensive at the outset, with Morenz contributing a solo dash. How Gardiner stopped his shot was a mystery, but he did. Morenz drew the first penalty of the game after dropping his stick and attempting to boot the puck around with his skates.

Just when it appeared the first period would end in a scoreless tie the Hawks scored a goal which caused the Canadiens to set up a howl. Tommy Cook took the puck down, passed to Thompson. The latter batted down the rebound on Hainsworth's stop with his glove and then lined it home. The goal was scored in 19:50.

Customers Are Unruly.

The second period wasn't five minutes old before two promising personal arguments developed. Both were stopped before any damage resulted and the four principals were sent to the jail house. Thompson, attempting to help Gardiner near the Blackhawks' goal, began to pick on Joliat, but the smaller Aurel wouldn't stand for it and they were on the verge of swinging when Referee Goodman sentenced both. A few minutes later Morenz and Romnes were caught making faces and were ruled off. It was Romnes' first penalty of the season.

While Romnes and Morenz were doing time the Hawks collected a second goal. March and Gottselig dashed down the ice and Johnny took Mush's pass near the goal, deceived Hainsworth, then scored in 6:45.

The proceedings became especially rough at the outset of the third period. Whatever passing attack the Canadiens might have had at the start of the game appeared to be completely disorganized in this period.

Americans Tie Detroit, 2 to 2, on Fluke Goal

New York, Feb. 12.—(AP)—A last minute goal which brought the most heated and prolonged protest seen here this season gave the New York Americans a 2 to 2 with the Detroit Red Wings in a bruising National Hockey league game tonight.

Trailing 2 to 1 as the result of two smart plays engineered by Carl Voss in the first period, the Americans jammed in their doubtful goal with only 16 seconds to go. Duke Dutkowski shot a high one from the blue line.

Goalie John Roach gathered in the puck and apparently was jammed into the cage in the pile-up that followed. Goal Umpire Harry Acker flashed the red light and refused to be shaken from his decision in 15 minutes of arguing. Referee Eusebe Diagneault allowed the goal. Acker, however, was removed from his post.

SPORTS LEAGUE DROPS MORTON; BLAME "CHAOS"

The Chicago Suburban league, which controls athletics in suburban schools, has dropped J. Sterling Morton High school in Cicero, from athletic competition, it was announced yesterday. The ban will become effective at the end of Morton's basketball season the first week in March. The action was taken at a meeting last Thursday.

"Chaotic conditions" are given as the reason for dropping the school from suburban league athletic competition.

Although no detailed statement was given explaining those reasons, it was believed that the recent airing of troubles at the school, in which political mismanagement by the Morton school board was charged, provided the basis for the action. Charges and counter charges have been made by the board and others, and Harry V. Church, superintendent of the school, was discharged by the board. Conditions there prompted the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary schools to warn that Morton might be taken off the accredited high school list.

Big Ten Title Race Reaches Peak This Week; 10 Games

The most important week of competition for the Western conference basketball teams begins tonight with a complete schedule of five games which will be duplicated again on Saturday night. Michigan and Northwestern, who trail the undefeated Ohio State quintet by one game, are expected to come through tonight's games successfully. At the same time, these teams, which do not play Ohio this year by virtue of the rotating schedule, are hoping the Illini whip the Buckeyes to create a triple tie.

Interest naturally centers on the Ohio State-Illinois game at Champaign. At Columbus a month ago Ohio defeated Illinois, 33 to 22. At first glance this 11 point margin would seem to indicate Ohio supremacy. However, there is likelihood that Illinois will equalize the series. Ohio State played its first three games on its home court. Although still undefeated, it has not shown to advantage on foreign courts. At Minnesota, Ohio won, 24 to 23, although the Gophers still share last place.

Indiana Plays Michigan.

Last Monday at Madison, Ohio State again triumphed by one point, 31 to 30. Illinois is particularly dangerous when playing before its own fans. That Northwestern and Michigan are not undefeated and tied with Ohio is due to Illinois. The Illini whipped Northwestern in the opening game, 27 to 25, and two nights later subdued the Wolverines, 22 to 17.

Michigan tonight plays Indiana at Bloomington in the first of a two game series. Saturday night the Hoosiers handed Minnesota its sixth Big Ten trimming, 31 to 22, and there is more than a possibility that Michigan will not win tonight.

While these teams are busy, Northwestern, which rested over the week-end, will face Minnesota at Patten gymnasium. There's no reason to believe that the Wildcats will not win, but Brad Robinson, Minnesota's leading scorer, is a menace. There's still the suspicion that Minnesota isn't as bad as its record.

Johnson Deserves Assist.

Northwestern's well balanced offensive team, which excels in free throwing and makes a minimum of fouls, has played steadily all year. Joe Reiff, who tops the conference individual scoring race with 75 points, didn't get his usual quota of points Monday night at Indiana. He was held to one field goal and two free throws, but Elmer Johnson is almost as effective. Johnson probably is underrated. Certainly he's as valuable under the backboard as Reiff and his presence divides the attention of opposing guards. If Reiff wins the scoring title he should give Johnson an assist.

Purdue should win easily from Chicago tonight at the Midway. The Maroons lost to Marquette, 44 to 16, Saturday night, continuing their unbroken succession of defeats. Wisconsin, victor over Iowa at Madison, 21 to 19, plays at Iowa City in the other Big Ten game. Iowa is the favorite.

Schaaf Still in a Daze, but Sees Visitors

Suffering from what has been diagnosed as an intracranial hemorrhage, Schaaf has been in a semi-conscious condition ever since Carnera floored him with a light left in the 13th round of their bout Friday night. His left side, doctors said, has been party paralyzed as a result of blood clots pressing against the motor nerves of the brain.

Two bulletins on Schaaf's condition were issued during the day. The first, signed by Dr. William V. Healy, brain specialist, and Dr. S. Philip Goodhart, neurologist, said:

"Mr. Schaaf's condition remains unchanged. Pulse, 70; temperature, 100; respiration, 20."

"There has been no essential change in Mr. Schaaf's condition since the report this morning. It is still too early to make any definite decision."

Schaaf's mother and sister and his manager, Johnny Buckley, visited the patient today. Buckley said Schaaf apparently recognized their voices, but "stared blankly" at their faces, unable to speak.

Answering implications that the fighter was shamming in an effort to cover up what looked like a suspicious ending to the bout, Dr. Goodhart said Schaaf exhibited "definite and unmistakable signs of organic injury." He added that the source of the injury was speculative, but "in all probability was associated with a series of blows."

Shute Ties with Macfarlane, Then Takes Playoff

Tampa, Fla., Feb. 12.—(AP)—Denny Shute of Cleveland, O., shooting a phenomenal 32—30—62 on the last round, won the annual Gasparilla open golf tournament here today by defeating Willie Macfarlane of Tuckahoe, N. Y., in a one hole playoff of their tie at 72 holes.

Shute and Macfarlane had totals of 272 strokes for the regulation distance, eight strokes under par. The Cleveland pro then registered a par on the extra hole to win as Macfarlane required five after trapping his second shot short of the green.

The 62 by Shute in the afternoon round set a record for the course. He missed a 62 by a fraction of an inch as his putt on the 18th green for an eagle three rimmed the cup and stayed out. He added this to a 32—35—67 in the morning round, and two previous rounds of 71—71—142.

Macfarlane showed three sub-par rounds, and another of regulation figures. They were 66—70—69—67. Twice he toured the first nine in 31 strokes, but required higher figures coming in.

Horton Smith of Oak Park, Ill., was fourth with 140—67—72—279 and Craig Wood of Deal, N. J., leading money winner of the winter tour, was fifth with 144—70—66—280.

FOOTBALL RULES MEETING ENDS WITH 2 CHANGES

Zone Sidelines, Move to Enforce Clipping Ban.

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 12.—(AP)—The national football rules committee, closing its annual sessions today made only two changes in the playing code for 1933. One eliminated the side line play while the other established a new definition of clipping with the idea of legislating that practice out of the game.

WALTER OKESON.

In order to eliminate the side line play, the committee decided to establish side zones, ten yards in width on either side of the field. When the ball becomes dead within these zones it will be moved immediately to a point ten yards in from the side line without time being taken. If the ball goes out of bounds, it will be brought in ten yards from the side line instead of 15 yards as heretofore.

The committee declared this change would eliminate futile side line plays which in the past have cost offensive teams valuable downs and also would lessen tackling out of bounds.

Change Clipping Penalty.

In an effort to frame the rule against clipping so that clipping could virtually be eliminated from the game, the rulemakers set up a new definition which will make it illegal for a player to run into the back of an opponent not carrying the ball. This amplifies the previous rule against throwing or dropping the body across the back of the legs of the opponent below the knees. In the interests of stricter enforcement of the rule against clipping, the penalty was reduced from 25 yards to 15.

Many other suggestions made by coaches, officials and others interested in the game were studied by the committee, but definite action was not taken on any of them. In some cases, however, they were referred for further consideration to a new standing committee on football rules changes.

Makeup of Subcommittee.

Serving on the subcommittee will be Chairman Walter R. Okeson of Bethlehem, Pa.; Secretary William S. Langford of New York; H. J. Stegeman of Georgia; Dana X. Bible of Nebraska; Lou Little of Columbia, and F. A. Lambert of Ohio State.

The rule makers listened to a preliminary report on last season's injuries which showed a "marked decrease" from the preceding year when some 50 fatal accidents were reported. The report showed a tremendous reduction in injuries attributed to blocking and tackling as well as on kickoffs. Drastic changes in the rules last year were directed against the flying block and flying tackle as well as against the wedge on kickoffs.

The report revealed a decrease of 97 per cent in injuries from flying tackles, indicating this practice had virtually disappeared from the game.

CORBETT RESTS WELL; ABSOLUTE QUIET ORDERED

New York, Feb. 12.—[Special.]—The condition of James J. Corbett, former heavyweight boxing champion, who is seriously ill of heart disease, was reported unchanged tonight.

It was said at his suburban home that he had a fairly good day and is getting as much rest as possible. Absolute quiet has been ordered by his physician if he is to win out in his fight for life. A sudden relapse late last week caused visitors to be barred from the sick room and this ban on well wishers, it was said, is still on.

TALKING IT OVER.

BY ARCH WARD.

ANOTHER Golden Gloves tournament opens tonight. I have written that line before, but somehow it never grows old. To me it is the most fascinating event in sport. Thousands of young men battling in seven or eight states for a place on the Chicago team. Then the bouts with New York. Later a fight with the bravest from a foreign country. All for fun. This is amateur sport in its element.

The west side trials, which start at Guyon's ballroom this evening, have attracted an entry of 618, more than twice as many as took part in the same section a year ago. Two things account for this remarkable growth. One is the natural increase that invariably attends wholesome sport. The other is the introduction of the novice division. This class is restricted to boys who have won not more than one bout in previous Golden Gloves, Central A. A. U. or Catholic Youth tournaments.

Up to this time there has been no distinction in Golden Gloves. A boy entering his first tournament match might draw a veteran of 50 bouts as his opponent. The result was almost inevitable. A quick knockout was no happy introduction to amateur boxing. It was swell for the old timer who could throw out his chest and add another victim to his list, but tough on the neophyte who naturally came away with an inferiority complex.

The young man getting his baptism in hand to hand conflict tonight will know that the quaking youth in the opposite corner has nothing on him. He is another such as he—a newcomer in the biggest meet boxing has known. They will both start from scratch. Ring that bell. Watch me wind up my right. I'm as good as you are, buddy. Bang.

Here the young fellow will first discover the handicap of long hair. Locks that will not stay out of the eyes. A pause to brush them aside. Biff. Right on the chin.

Here the knight errant will first learn of the dynamite hidden in his right fist. He strikes and there goes his opponent to the floor. He had done this. Why he must be a Dempsey. Boy, what a sensation. Of course, in his next bout he may forget to duck or to step inside his foe's vicious swing, but it doesn't matter. He has had his moment.

Introduction of the novice division will add class to the open section. The boy who gets through the sectional trials will know that he has whipped our or five good scrappers. Heretofore the luck of the draw sometimes helped a fellow to get fairly well along before he ran up against an opponent of his own experience.

The west side meet will be followed in order by the far south, north, and south sections. Out of this competition will come 64 Chicagoans—eight in each division—who will attempt to bang their country cousins on the chin in the Tournament of Champions at Chicago Stadium, Feb. 27, 28 and March 1.

Lest you forget, let me inform you that these country cousins are becoming increasingly hard to handle. They have more numerical strength. At least 2,500 from Green Bay to Nashville and from Ohio to the Mississippi will have had their chance to win their Golden Glove in meets outside Chicago. That is nearly a thousand more than will take part in the four Chicago qualifying meets.

Once the Tournament of Champions is over the winners are all Chicagoans. They are united in common cause to whip New York. The series is now tied at two victories apiece. The first meet was a tie. If you think there isn't real rivalry between Chicago and New York amateur boxers, you never have seen one of the shows. Scouts from New York study the maneuvers of the Chicago boys through the Tournament of Champions and the finals. Officials of the Chicago squad watch the New York finals. The personnel of the teams is determined frequently by these observations.

As far as preparations are concerned, it is Notre Dame versus Southern California.

Last year we almost had a side attraction at Madison Square Garden. When Wilfrid Smith of our team discovered iron bolts and chunks of cement in the gloves of some of the New York gladiators he was all for cleaning up the New York squad single handed. It might have been a good idea, at that, in light of later developments. New York, you remember, won the match, 12 bouts to 4.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Chicago's sixth annual Golden Gloves tournament opens tonight at Guyon's Paradise, Crawford and West End avenues. Six hundred and eighteen boys, a record field, which is more than twice as large as last year's list of west side boxers, are scheduled for action, starting at 7 o'clock.

Before that hour all of the candidates for Golden Gloves prizes must report at Guyon's for physical examinations and to be weighed. Examinations will start at 4 o'clock. None will be accepted for the tournament after 6 p. m.

The west side trials tonight offer Chicago's greatest boxing bargain. For 60 cents, including federal tax, one may see continuous action in two rings. At least 75 bouts, perhaps more, will be staged in a program which will not be concluded until after 11 o'clock. Thus each bout of three rounds will cost less than 1 cent.

First Come, First Served.

Ticket offices at Guyon's will open at 6 o'clock. Those first in line will sit in the front rows. No seats will be reserved.

No boxing show ever has approached the one tonight. In number of contestants, it outranks all preceding tournaments since Golden Gloves was created in 1928. For the first time the competition is divided into Novice and Open classes. Two boxers in each of the eight weights in both of these divisions will qualify at the end of the fighting tomorrow night for the Tournament of Champions which opens Feb. 27 at the Stadium.

Each of the qualifiers in the Open division will receive gold medals tomorrow night. The Novices, who do not fight against the 22 out of town teams now being chosen throughout the central states, will complete their tournament at the Stadium. Gold and silver prizes are their awards.

Souvenir for Each Boy.

Tonight's tournament also marks the first time for two rings in sectional competition. This insures continuous action from 7 o'clock, when the first four boys climb through the ropes, until the final matches. There'll be knockouts. And there'll be close fights, decided perhaps, by the margin of one well placed blow. Only 32 can survive the progessive elimination. But, win or lose, these amateurs will convince you that youth and courage are invaluable possessions.

The term novice may be a misnomer. Certainly, some of these youngsters are inexperienced. Many, however, by the rule which was adopted for classification, have had a year or more of competition. Those in the Novice division have not won more than one fight in any other Golden Gloves tournament, any Catholic Youth tournament, or any Central A. A. U. tournament.

On to Tournament of Champions.

The goal of these west side boys is first to reach the Tournament of Champions. There they will be joined

JUGO-SLAVS ARE BEATEN, 10 TO 1, IN CUP MATCH

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 12.—(AP)—The St. Louis Stix team defeated the Jugo-Slavs of Chicago, 10 to 1, today and advanced into the semifinal round of the national challenge cup soccer competition.

Chicago's lone goal was made 25 minutes after opening of the second period, when Barich, playing outside right, made a cross kick to Purden near the Stix goal, and the latter drove a hard shot from close in that slipped through the hands of Lebarge, Stix guard.

CHIEF OF BRITISH STAFF IN WORLD WAR DIES AT 72

Gen. Sir William Robertson Rose from Ranks.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 12.—Field Marshal Sir William Robertson, the only man who ever rose from the ranks in the British army to receive the field marshal's baton, died suddenly today at his London residence. He was 72 years old.

His unparalleled military career was climaxed during the world war when he became chief of the imperial general staff and was called the "brains behind the war office." He was created a baronet in 1919, thanked by parliament for his war services, and received a grant of $50,000. He was made a field marshal in 1920.

Military experts agreed he was the greatest scientific soldier this country has ever had and the most efficient organizer the army had ever known with the possible exception of Lord Kitchener.

ROSE FROM RANKS.

Sir William Robertson was born the son of a farm laborer in Lincolnshire in 1860. His preliminary education was received at a village school, after which he worked in the fields for a time and then took employment as a servant at one of the great houses in the neighborhood.

It was from this environment that he rose through the ranks to become the chief of the British imperial staff during three years of the world war.

He enlisted at 18 in a cavalry regiment and served in the ranks for ten years. Finding no one with a "pull" to help him along, he fell back upon his own resources. He studied languages and military history and became an expert linguist.

Becomes Lieutenant.

After his ten years in the Sixteenth Lancers, Robertson received his first commission as second lieutenant in the Third Dragon guards and was sent to India. When the South African war started he was a captain, but his ability as a linguist and strategist was recognized and he became an intelligence officer at headquarters. He came out of that war a colonel.

During the earlier part of the war Roberston was chief of staff to Sir John French in France. By this time he was a lieutenant general. He became a full general in 1915 and served as chief of the imperial general staff, one of the most powerful and influential men in the empire, until 1918.

He resigned from that position in February after a dispute with members of the cabinet over technical matters. Soon afterward he was named commander-in-chief of the eastern command.

Sir William was married in 1894 to Mildred Adelaide Palin, daughter of Lieut. Gen. T. C. Palin. One son and two daughters were born to them.

DRIVES AUTOMOBILE IN BOSTON SUBWAY; DRUNK, POLICE SAY

Boston, Mass., Feb. 12.—[Special.]—Men and women waiting for a trolley in the Haymarket subway station today rubbed their eyes to make certain they were not dreaming when instead of the expected street car an automobile sedan rolled in on the tracks.

"Damned if I know," was the answer.

Police were called. The drvier was John S. Delaney, 58, Cliftondale. He was arrested on a charge of driving under the influence of liquor.

Delaney drove into the subway at Haverhill street and traveled about 800 feet along the underground tracks without mishap.

Service was delayed only ten minutes. A street car was backed into the station and the sedan tied to it and towed out and is in the hands of the police.

GAIN IN SUGAR FEATURES TRADE IN COMMODITIES

Cocoa and Silk Markets Also Advance.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 12.—Although the rise in prices for sugar futures was the feature of last week's trading on local commodity exchanges, there were gains also in cocoa and silk. Other staples moved irregularly in a narrow range, with activity still substantially below normal. Cash prices, as a rule, were higher.

Saturday's spirited trading in sugar was the culmination of a rally that began early in the week and resulted in a net gain of about 15 cents in prices. Contracts closed from 12 to 13 points higher on the week. The rally began in the London market and continued despite bearish crop news from British India because of the good statistical condition of the commodity here and because of rumors of impending civil disorders in Cuba.

Coffee Futures Decline.

Coffee futures sold off because of an unfavorable statistical position. The amount of free coffee in this country increased; shipments from Brazil increased and the Grain Stabilization corporation still has 41,750 bags of its February quota to sell. Rios closed 7 to 27 points lower and Santos futures were down 5 to 15 points.

A decline of more than 22,000 bags in local warehouse stocks was favorably received in the cocoa trade and futures closed with gains of from 2 to 5 points, largely made early in the week. Silk futures were steady in quiet trading and closed 2 to 3 points higher for the period.

Price trends in crude rubber were steady last week; selling and forward switching of the March delivery were compensated for by purchase of more distant months and by ready absorption of offerings. At the close futures on the rubber exchange of New York were 4 points higher on February and 1 point higher to 1 point lower on months beyond.

Hide Futures Firmer.

The downward trend in hide futures values that began several weeks ago was checked last week and for the period ended Feb. 11 the active positions reflected net gains ranging from 5 to 25 points.

Trading in silver futures on the National Metal exchange for the week amounted to 2,650,000 ounces, against 4,825,000 ounces for the six days ending Feb. 4. The market was steady and closed at about 45 to 55 points below Saturday's close.

There was a decidedly forward movement in prices in the majority of cash staples last week. Supplementing the advance in contract positions, all of the grains moved higher. Raw sugar, butter, eggs, lard, cotton, print cloths, silk, and tin all picked up sharply. Small losses were recorded in zinc and rubber.

CROP SCARES FAIL TO BOOST WHEAT PRICES

Effect of Cold Wave Proves Slight.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

A February crop scare in the winter wheat country, unless backed by other conditions, is insufficient for a good broad advance in wheat prices. This was demonstrated last week, when temperatures of 10 to 17 degrees below zero over a large part of the southwestern wheat fields failed to do more than scare timid shorts and bring a little new buying which failed to carry the price up more than 2 cents, a part of which advance was lost after shorts had covered and early buyers had taken profits. The finish of the week proved a big disappointment to all classes of traders here and in other grain markets. Grain futures in Chicago recorded net gains as follows: Wheat, 1½ to 1¾ cents; corn, ½ cent; oats, ⅝ to ⅞ cent; rye, ¾ to 1⅝ cents.

Winnipeg wheat futures were erratic and closed 1¾ to 1⅞ cents higher for the week, there being an active export demand, especially from Vancouver to the orient. The orient in addition bought seven cargoes of Argentine wheat at the close, it being the first time the trade had any intimation of buying in Argentina. The close on Winnipeg May wheat was 48¾ to 48¼ cents, with July at 49 to 49⅛ cents and October at 50¼ cents. Strength at Winnipeg at times had a good influence on Chicago, as well as on markets in other countries. The Liverpool market closed ⅛ to ⅝ cent net higher, the latter on July wheat.

Prefer Buying Side.

More pronounced strength is apparent in all wheat markets, and traders as a whole prefer the buying side, particularly on breaks. One feature, however, is the absence of follow-up buying orders on all good bulges from the outside, which makes the market susceptible to sharp recessions in prices when local traders try to take profits.

All the surroundings are working more in favor of farmers and wheat holders. It is said the selling that has been credited to farm board interests, including the Red Cross, which has been a disturbing factor and has checked numerous budges, is nearing its end and traders look for better markets when it is out of the way. The market runs into support on all weak spots and has the faculty of recovering from declines in a more rapid way than previously.

With Winnipeg doing the big export business, Chicago traders are influenced more or less by the action of that market. And with the present crop uncertainty and the extremely low price, the disposition is to take a more constructive view of the situation, both present and prospective, as bullish crop news is regarded as likely to become the leading influence in the near future.

World Wheat Position.

Domestic and foreign statistics are becoming more bullish. The visible supply is being steadily decreased and the movement from the country is the smallest known. Chicago received only 21,000 bu of wheat last week, which is a low record. There were 661,000 bu of wheat dropped out of the local stock on account of the St. Paul A and B elevator fire here on Thursday. At the same time there will also be a reduction of 947,000 bu of corn. This corn, while not merchantable, may possibly be used in the manufacture of alcohol.

An attractive array of the world's wheat situation is presented by Broomhall, who gives world's import requirements for the 1932-'33 season as 706,000,000 bu compared with 776,000,000 bu in the previous season.

Whether the larger oriental demand than has been expected will offset reduced takings by Europe remains to be determined.

Remove Corn Hedges.

A feature in corn that attracted special attention late in the week was the removal of hedges on nearly 1,000,000 bushels of May corn that was destroyed in the fire on Thursday night. The corn was all bought practically at 25⅞ and 26 cents without any flurry, suggesting to the trade that there was a considerable long interest willing to unload. This corn will be taken out of the local stocks and the visible supply in today's report on Chicago stocks. Country holders sold corn in a moderate way on every sharp upturn in price. Cash sales, especially in the way of export business, were unimportant, leaving Argentina to supply the European trade. At the close May corn was 26c to 25⅞ cents, July 27⅝ cents, September 29 cents, showing net gains for the week of ½ cent. Prices for the week follow:

Change Oat Hedges.

Leading cash interests here and in the northwest were good buyers of cash oats and sellers of July, while others bought July and sold September, all in the way of changing hedges. Otherwise there was little interest in the market. May corn closed at 17⅛c, July at 17¼c, and September at 18c, gaining ⅝@¾c for the week.

Rye finished the week ⅝@1⅝c higher, July and September being 54¼c.

Taxpayers in Nebraska Cut County Costs

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

How taxpayers through the conversion of vociferous complaints into planned action can reduce the cost of government is demonstrated in Nebraska. In that farming state the Nebraska Federation of County Taxpayers' Leagues has done a noteworthy job in pointing the way to economy in county governments.

Functioning somewhat along the lines of the citizens' committee in Chicago, the organization developed what it calls a "tax reduction and a tax control program." At the same time it is endeavoring to establish for the guidance of county officials "a standard of price and a standard of service."

The idea is to place before officials surveys showing exactly what income they have and how much they are spending. These surveys give tax spending bodies and the taxpayers in clear fashion the financial position of the local governments. It enables the taxpayer to keep a close watch on his public servants and it puts before the tax spending groups the goals they must attain to maintain or secure solvency and to cut the cost of government.

Operates in 9 Counties.

The Nebraska Taxpayers' league, which is headed by Frank G. Arnold of Fullerton, began its work in Nance county, where the first survey was completed. It is now functioning in nine of the most populous counties of the state, in some of which it has already completed surveys.

Mr. Arnold states that the agricultural income in Nebraska is about 50 per cent of the income of the five year pre-war average. For this reason the taxpayers' organization takes 1911 or 1912 as years representative of the five year average in making comparisons in the surveys of financial conditions.

In Nance county 1911 was taken as a basis of comparison. The league then proceeded to analyze every receipt and every expenditure for the years contained in the survey.

The survey disclosed that total receipts for all county funds were $47,134, against expenditures of $30,907, in 1911; $109,104, against $126,607, in 1931, and $106,949, against $97,125, in 1932. Thus, in 1931 the county spent $17,503 more than it took in, while in 1932 it took in $9,824 more than it spent.

Guiding Public Officials.

"To show how splendidly our system works," Mr. Arnold says, "in making the 1932 survey of Nance county expenditures, the first survey was made about Aug. 1, 1932, for 1931. The information furnished our country board enabled the members to cut their expenses for 1932 almost $30,000, practically all which was taken off in the last five months of 1932."

The taxpayer league expects the county will make a saving of from $35,000 to $50,000 for 1933.

In complimenting the members of the county board on their efforts for economy, the league says it has been demonstrated that the best plan in a tax reduction program is to furnish public officials with facts to guide them, leaving criticism to such time as the taxpayers feel no other course is open.

Mr. Arnold cites an instance showing how comparing the records of all county boards may serve to the advantage of the individual board.

"We found one county that purchased its ballots for last spring's primary election at $4.50 per thousand," he says. "We found that another county paid $70 per thousand for almost exactly the same ballot. The amounts paid by other counties ranged between the bottom price of $4.50 and the top price of $70."

The league states that in bringing about economies in the county governments, so far as can be learned, no phase of governmental or school activity has been neglected, or any standard lowered; in fact, it says the standard of efficiency has been greatly increased.

Chile Imports Five Autos in 1932, Only 1 from U. S.

SANTIAGO, Chile, Feb. 12.—(AP)—Customs statistics disclose that only five automobiles were imported during 1932. Four of them came from Germany and one from the United States. Previously the imports of automobiles have ranged from 3,000 upward annually. A glutted market and the depression have been blamed for a virtually complete stoppage of imports.

FRANCE'S 1750 FARM CONTROL ENDS IN REVOLT

Jobholders Refuse to Quit Sinecures.

BY ALEX SMALL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Feb. 12.—The history of the French monarchy before the revolution of 1789 affords a good instance of the muddle into which the agriculture of a nation can be brought by too much paternalism and by experiments in state socialism.

The paternalism was in one way necessary and even had a good side to it. Agriculture had for so long been treated as the stepchild in national economy, worthy only of the attention of brutish minds, and farmers had become so sunk in ancient routine that only impulsion from above would effect a change.

The change may be dated roughly from about 1750, when, under the influence of Rousseau and the "return-to-nature" cult, farming or an interest in it became a fashionable fad. Much of that interest was, of course, purely literary and frivolous, the sort of thing which was to result in Queen Marie Antoinette's model dairy at Versailles.

The Government Enters.

Serious work also was done. The national pride of public spirited "philosophers," of which the time was full, had been stung by a comparison with farming in England. Land there yielded crops two-fifths as great as in France on the average, according to the estimate of Lavoisier, the eminent chemist, who later was to be guillotined in the revolution by a republic which said it "had no need of savants."

The royal government then in successive steps went as far as any farm board had ever done since. The intendants [provincial governors], who ruled almost like petty monarchs in their own domains, spent huge sums of public money on reclaiming marshes and waste land, particularly in western France. Primarily to enable the peasants to come to market, the road system was vastly improved to the point where in 1787 it won the admiration of that crusty old English squire Arthur Young, who was traveling in France to study farming methods.

Then, when it was discovered that too much reclaiming had been done and that the deforestation of hills was having serious effects on rainfall, the government undertook reforestation. It gave aways seeds and saplings and encouraged the planting of them by special favors like tax exemption.

Parisians Shy from Potatoes.

New cultures were introduced by the government, with varying degrees of success. The peasants of Auvergne took enthusiastically to the Swedish turnip, previously unknown in France, but at a later date those of the Parisian region refused for the greater part to let themselves be "encouraged" into planting potatoes, in spite of the propaganda for this new culture spread abroad by Parmentier, the savant with whose name potatoes are to this day associated in France.

In 1760 was established the royal veterinarians' school, best of its kind in Europe, and its trained men were sent all over the country trying to break peasants of old practices of curing sick cattle by charms. Orders of 1774 and 1775 made the visit of government veterinarians to stricken villages and farms obligatory, where, despite opposition, they slaughtered all sick beasts and burned all straw, bedding, and manure.

The peasant also had government pamphlets showered on him, most famous of which was one entitled "Instructions on Means for Avoiding a Scarcity of Cattle Feed," issued in 1785, after a prolonged drought which had cut down the supply of forage. Regular bulletins were issued by a committee on agricultural administration acting under the bureau of agriculture. The same committee gave away seeds, introduced new cultures, and improved the breed of stock. At the same time were organized those annual regional exhibitions which, to this day, where medals were awarded the most progressive farmers.

Production Lags.

For all this activity, Lavoisier estimated in 1787 that land in France was yielding only about half of what it should. The blame can be put to various causes. Intensifying culture was still little understood. Too many peasants remained obdurate and would not give up their system of leaving fields fallow one or two years out of three, instead of rotating crops; in fact, that practice had not been entirely given up by 1914.

There was also too much fad and theory about the stimulation of agriculture, too many pamphlets written by book farmers. But the primary cause of French agricultural backwardness, Lavoisier pointed out, were the fetters of government regulation. All the enlightenment and encouragement in the world were simply so much treatment of symptoms, whilst the fundamental vices of tampering with free trade, with the price system, and with marketing, by farm board measures made the disease incurable.

From 1750 on a determined effort was made to get away from the old errors of forbidding imports and exports and preventing farm produce from circulating freely from province to province. But in 1770, fearing popular discontent, Controller General Terray revived ancient practices.

Tampers with Wheat.

He not only forbade the exportation of wheat, except by special license and at intervals which he would fix, but he tried to bring down prices by stocking government granaries. The attempt was a sincere one to defeat profiteering, but resulted in a reaction entirely different from what Terray expected. The people growled and

KROGER GROCERY NET FOR 1932 SLIGHTLY HIGHER THAN IN 1931

In his annual report to stockholders on 1932 operations, President Albert H. Morrill of the Kroger Grocery and Baking company reported that the big grocery chain was able to show a slight increase in net profit over 1931. Mr. Morrill also called attention to the high cost of government, with resulting high taxes. He stressed the tendency to levy extra taxes on chains and on motor trucks.

Kroger Grocery's net profit for 1932 was $2,740,867, or $1.47 on 1,811,091 shares outstanding. This compared with $2,781,128, or $1.46 per share on 1,813,128 shares outstanding. Net sales for 1932 totaled $213,159,742, compared with $244,371,147 in 1931. Operating expenses were cut from $51,801,320 in 1931 to $45,968,396 in 1932.

Current assets as of Dec. 31, 1932, were $28,941,992, compared with $26,474,277 as of Jan. 2, 1932, the end of the 1931 fiscal year period. Total assets were $53,002,111 as of Dec. 31, 1932, compared with $53,260,143 on Jan. 2, 1932. Current liabilities as of Dec. 31, 1932, were $6,021,025, compared with $6,195,970 on Jan. 2, 1932.

Kroger Grocery followed the practice of other large corporations in writing down items in fixed assets, such as land and buildings, to meet present day values. The company charged off $5,304,436 in this way in its earned surplus account.

PALMER QUERIES LIFE COMPANIES ON ACTIVITIES

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 12.—(AP)—Ernest Palmer, state superintendent of insurance, today called on all Illinois life insurance companies to give him a detailed statement of their business activities during the last two months.

Palmer's action was approved by Gov. Horner.

"It is quite possible," Palmer said, "that the information will be used as a basis for a legislative program to strengthen the Illinois insurance laws, if, after a study of the reports, it is deemed that legislation is advisable."

Included in information, requested to be available not later than March 15, Palmer wishes to know whether directors or officers of any companies were financially interested at the time in any property bought or sold by their companies.

Palmer also asked, among other things, for information on the amount of funds deposited in any bank of which any of the company's officers or directors are officers or directors, and whether insurance officials were related to persons with whom they transacted business. Similar statements must be filed monthly by each insurance company.

BERLIN, Feb. 12.—The Berlin Tageblatt expresses the view that participation of the British chartered company in the German Hirsch Copper concern, with which the Belgian Haut Katannes is already identified, will make Germany entirely independent of American copper. In 1932 the German import of copper was 175,100 tons, as against the high level of 307,700 in 1927.

Directors of the Chicago District Generating company have voted a dividend of $4.50 on the $6 cumulative preferred stock, according to an announcement made last night. The action clears up the back dividends on the stock which have been accumulating since last June, when the board passed the usual quarterly dividend of $1.50 a share for the first time.

The disbursement authorized also includes the regular quarterly payment for the three months ended March 30. The dividend is payable March 1 to stockholders of record Feb. 15.

Company Jointly Controlled.

The company is jointly controlled by the Commonwealth Edison company, the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois and the Northern Indiana Public Service company. Edison holds 40 per cent of the capital stock and the balance is evenly divided between the other two companies.

The company generates and furnishes electricity to the three companies at wholesale prices. It was organized in 1926 as the State Line Generating company and is an integral part of the metropolitan district utility system built up by Samuel Insull.

The dividend was passed last year shortly after the Insull management relinquished control.

Financial Condition Cited.

"It is considered," the company's statement said, "that the financial condition of the company is now such as to warrant the payment of all unpaid accrued dividends on the $6 cumulative preferred stock, also the quarterly dividend payable March 31.

"Accordingly at a meeting of the board held Feb. 10 a dividend of $4.50 was declared upon each outstanding share of such stock of the company. Such dividend represents the unpaid accrued quarterly dividends payable Sept. 1, 1932, and Dec. 1, 1932, aggregating $3, and the quarterly dividend of $1.50 a share payable March 1, 1933."

N. Y. BOND MART PICKS UP SPEED; PRICES ADVANCE

New York, Feb. 12.—(AP)—Overcoming the lethargy and heaviness marking its behavior earlier in the month, the bond market enjoyed a considerable rise last week on an ascending scale of business.

An active revival of interest in rail loans, chiefly the second grade issues, furnished momentum for the upward movement which embraced nearly all categories.

United States governments were an exception, showing periodic heaviness, which was associated with uncertainties surrounding the treasury's immediate financing plans.

U. S. Producers of Sugar in Cuba to Ask Tariff Cut

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 12.—Demands for a "material" reduction in the sugar tariff will be made in behalf of American producers of sugar in Cuba at the public hearings on the question before the United States tariff commission, which will begin in Washington on Tuesday, according to H. H. Pike Jr., 1932 president of the New York Coffee and Sugar exchange.

OUTLOOK FOR STEEL OVER LONG PULL HELD TO BE ENCOURAGING

Cleveland, O., Feb. 12.—(AP)—While iron and steel activity "hangs in the balance," developments over the week-end were "encouraging for the long pull," the magazine Steel said today.

Steel making operations barely held at 19 per cent in the week ended yesterday, and the decline of 3.5 per cent in unfilled orders of United States Steel on Jan. 31 suggests that "improvement in production in January may have overrun new business."

As an offset, the magazine said in its weekly review, such major districts as Pittsburgh and Youngstown have brought in more capacity, neutralizing curtailment at Cleveland, Buffalo, and Birmingham; Ford has resumed and is expected to release substantial requirements this week; an important rail inquiry is being formulated, and a number of large structural projects are a step nearer maturity.

The January showing in steel production, when the daily rate was increased to 38,704 tons from 32,485 in December, was made almost entirely without the assistance of such heavy consuming industries as railroads, farm implements and structural steel.

More and More Gold Tied Up by Reserve

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 12.—Federal reserve banks are tying up more and more of the country's gold as collateral for federal reserve notes, the principal unit in the monetary system, despite the continuance of the emergency Glass-Steagall act allowing them to free gold.

By permitting the reserve banks to substitute government securities for gold as collateral for reserve notes, the Glass-Steagall act, which was passed a year ago and recently extended, was to free gold which otherwise would have to be held as note collateral.

Using More Gold.

Federal reserve reports made public today, however, reveal that the reserve banks in meeting new demands for money have been using more and more gold as collateral and actually reducing the amount of governments behind their notes. Gold stocks have been made to bear the brunt of the recent increase in circulation.

Since Jan. 4 total collateral which the reserve banks have up to support note circulation has increased $59,000,000. During this same period the amount of governments used as collateral has decreased by $68,000,000. During part of this period there was uncertainty about the continuance of the Glass-Steagall act, but even after congress had continued it the reserve banks have continued to cut down the governments held as collateral.

Does Just the Opposite.

Gold, therefore, has been used to make up the additional collateral and actually to replace $68,000,000 worth of governments, although the intention of the act was just the opposite. An additional $124,000,000 of the country's gold has been tied up behind the notes since Jan. 4, although during the last three weeks the country's gold stocks have been subjected to other drains also.

Should American losses of gold which have been going on for the last three weeks continue, the reserve banks will be forced by them to reverse the collateral policy they apparently are following. Gold now used as note collateral will have to be diverted to the free gold fund and governments used to replace it in the collateral fund.

BRITISH FOREIGN TRADE DECLINES DURING JANUARY

LONDON, Feb. 12.—A halt in the improvement recorded during the concluding months of 1932 in Great Britain's overseas trade is shown by board of trade returns for January, both imports and exports being down substantially.

January imports were £54,123,867, a reduction of £6,509,683 from December and £8,025,532 from the previous January.

January exports were £29,205,422, representing a decline of £3,239,925 from December and £1,917,649 from the previous January.

WALL ST. SCANS CAPITAL SKIES FOR PORTENTS

Roosevelt Program Is Awaited.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 12.—With the more important dividend meetings of the season out of the way, the Wall street community is once more scanning the political skies toward Washington for signs of its future stock market weather.

The chief concern at the moment is over the makeup of the Roosevelt cabinet and the new administration's plans for dealing with some of the major problems awaiting it; foreign debts, for example, or governmental expenditures, or tariffs, or farm relief, and the like. So far, the President elect has divulged next to nothing regarding his ideas on any of these matters.

That an extra session of congress will be called, either for March or April, and that beer legislation and monetary inflation will be among the items to claim attention in its early stages, is taken for granted. The street believes that the passage of a beer bill can be counted on and that the effect will be constructive from the viewpoint of business. Beyond this, all is uncertainty.

Economy Plans in Doubt.

It is accepted that some of the new legislators will make their debut talking loudly of governmental economy, but just how much of this "campaign chatter" will find its way to the statute books remains to be seen. The agitation for cheap money and the fantastic schemes proposed to bring it about are matters of genuine worry to the speculative element.

There are those who blame the uncertainties on these scores for the backwardness of the market in starting its long looked for "spring rise," which continues to linger stubbornly around the corner. Indeed, the prevailing good sentiment which is keeping the market on an even keel during its period of "watchful waiting" is based very largely on the belief that business enterprise, not only in this country but abroad, is being held up in some measure by the impending change in administrations at Washington.

Once a new President has assumed the reigns those entertaining this view believe the tension will be relieved and industry will move ahead in accordance with its traditional spring custom—a custom which it has succeeded in adhering to even during the major accused Terray of establishing a monopoly for the exclusive profit of the king. In alarm he issued a circular to the intendants instructing them to explain the measure to the population.

"I want to warn you," he wrote, "that the common people, merchants of the towns, and even some of high birth are imbued with the false idea that there exists a company charged exclusively with handling grain in this country. This alleged company is accused of being the cause, by its monopoly, of high prices. Such notions, if they take root, will render the government odious. You know that if the government has allowed the passage of grain into different provinces, it was to sell at a loss and for the relief of the common people. It is your duty to enlighten those in error."

That was just it—the government was in the grain business, and as a continuous institution. It kept a special eye on Paris, of course, where the city mob was most feared, but it also maintained huge storehouses for grain in big provincial cities—at Lyons, Bordeaux, Lille, Nancy and Rennes. At Marseilles was its biggest depot, the one where it bought grain from Italy.

Speculator the Villain.

Though enlightened men considered the policy erroneous, even ruinous the government could do nothing against the popular conviction that the villain of the piece was the speculator. Never were scarcity or high prices attributed to natural causes. And, each time there was a scare and people howled for the government to "do something," it complied.

This was the general situation when Turgot, most enlightened, if not the ablest, administrator of the dying monarchy, became controller general of finances in 1774. He had already denounced "the falseness of a system which makes the state a regulator of commerce which cannot be regulated, the supplier of food to a nation which it is not sure of being able to feed." On installation he immediately undertook to reform the whole business. "It is only by the freest competition," he said, "that we can hope to bring down prices."

He suppressed oppressive taxes on farm products at the entrance to cities [octroi], as well as turnpike and market duties. The municipal grain markets at Lyons and Marseilles were closed completely, but at Paris, in deference to popular prejudice, a transitional system was devised.

Free Trade Restored.

By an additional decree of Sept. 13, 1774, all ancient restrictions on the movements of farm produce within France were abolished and complete freedom both of exportation and of importation allowed.

At once these liberal measures provoked a wild howl of protest. Loudest were the members of the parliament of Paris, the law corporation with semi-legislative powers. Many of them had been getting fat commissions from swinging government contracts and rigging prices. Others who had been plundering the treasury in the grain business joined the cry. Together they roused the populace, preying on its eternal fear of scarcity, fanned by the Duke of Orleans' and his associates' hatred of Louis XVI. Also maintained huge storehouses for grain in big provincial cities—at Lyons, Bordeaux, Lille, Nancy and Rennes. At Marseilles was its biggest depot, the one where it bought grain from Italy.

I CAN PLACE
AT ONCE!

My name is Wm. Wilson. I am in charge of this territory for a very large, sound and dependable company. My work was accounting, and when I got out of that I went into this entirely new line and made good at it. Now I can give positions to three good men with cars, of good character able to furnish three good references, with family obligations, between 28 and 35 years of age, and in good health.

Past experience means nothing. There is no other business just like this, but you can learn it. Of course, as time passes you will become more familiar with it. You must be satisfied for a few weeks on $30 or so a week, and gradually merit increases. Inside 6 months you ought to be worth $55 to $72.50 a week to us, in a year considerably more.

I am out calling on my customers and can't see you at any time of day, but must see you at 1 p. m. Monday, Feb. 13—no other time—in Room 205 at 1560 Sherman-av., Evanston. The work for the men selected will be in this part of Cook county.

IMMEDIATE OPENING.

For six men between the ages of 25 and 45. The applicants must be men who can be entrusted with company funds.

This company is the largest in its field and international in operation. Therefore, we are not looking for any man who does not have obligations or does not know the meaning of WORK.

What Marinello
Training Means

We regard our graduates as personal representatives of the Marinello System. Therefore every girl is trained to the highest degree of efficiency before receiving her certificate. Each girl is graduated with the equivalent of at least a year's practical experience and ready to earn big money at once.

The most money is made in shops where particular women gladly pay good prices for the kind of service that Marinello Beauticians render. Why not train for positions that pay the most? That's good economy, good sense

Day or evening classes now forming. Easy tuition payments. Free international Employment Service—or we will help you establish your own business.

YOU MAY OBTAIN UP TO $300. The rate on amounts above $100 is LOWER than the lawful rate. No lower rate in Chicago. Take 20 months to repay, if you pay in less time you are charged only for the time you keep the money. The faster you pay the less it costs.

SOLUTION TO DEAD MAN'S BATH

Becker said Willard threw his clothes on the floor as he undressed, yet Fordney found the clothes in the WRONG order. His silk undershirt was UNDER his tie, dress shirt and suit, proving conclusively that Willard had not undressed himself.

Becker later confessed that he had undressed his friend while insensibly drunk, put him in the tub and drowned him. Jealousy was the motive.
